of European Travel. The following letter from Rev. W. R. Wheeler, who, with his wife, was caught in the war maelstrom, is addressed to his parents at Endeavor, Hon, and Mrs. N. P. Wheeler, and gives a graphic idea of what all European sojourners had to put up with

when the great war broke out: GENOA, ITALY, Sunday, Aug. 16 1914. DEAR FATHER AND MOTHER:-We are here in this port, from which Columbus tried to sail for America. He couldn't get accommodations in the form of credit and ships for the voyage at first, as you remember and we are rather in the same position But he finally reached his goal, and we expect to do the same, ultimately.

I will try to give you in outline our ac tions since the war broke out, two weeks ago. We were on our walking trip over the Grimsel Pass to Interlaken, where there were no recent newspapers. We heard all sorts of rumors; saw Swiss soldiers leaving for the frontier, etc. One paper (Aug. 2 German) said Germany had mobilized and was about to declare war on Russia and way to Crown and stopped for dinner France. Thinking we had better hurry a hotel where we had stopped for the night, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cottle of Tionests to drive to Interlaken, or at least to the Meiringen, on the way to Interlaken. Next the rig. There was a chance to get two seats in the Diligence, the stage that carmiles from Goeschenen to Meiringen. We and rode to Meiringen and thence by railroad and steamer to Interlaken. There the town was mostly deserted, people had gone mainly to Bern and Geneva to be near the English and American Consuls. We were advised to do all sorts of different things. A Holland officer with his wife was trying get back to his country as the army was gotten no word. He could get out through the declaration of war of England, as well as of Austria and Germany. If possible, we wanted to get back to England, and so went to the railroad station to ask about The past school year has become a part trains to Paris. The agent said the road County, with but few causes for regret of Switzerland was by way of the and many recollections of good which Simplen Pass into Italy. We did not wish has been accomplished. We do not wish to stay in Switzerland as the banks were all however to emphasize the good results closed, and the food supply might soon be short. The hotel service was very poor; of our own, nor to minimize the errors the proprietor, porter, and sixteen out of in the North Sea. I imagine some decisive twenty waiters at our hotel having already gone. The Swiss army calls for all able men between 18 and 60, and that's quite cable to America, so it seemed the best

I asked The telegraph office said it took about four days for a cable to go and return to America and that they were not guaranteeing any message. We had $200 left in the letters of credit besides the Swiss money, so we moved from the Palace Hotel to a cheap one and prepared to wait. Milan is the necessity of ventilation as well as heating strongest financial center in Italy and we thought it would be the best place for credit. I went to a meeting of American men that afternoon where F. W. Vander-None of the Americans could get large ums on their letters of credit, and none of them had succeeded in getting a cable through to America. It was rather amusing to see some of these magnates standing in line for $50 or $100, when they had millions at home. We settled down to wait as we didn't dare travel because of the cost, and figured we could last four or five weeks even if we didn't hear from you. But Sunday the cable came, and Monday the bank have been these two weeks. Here at Genoa there is more activity than at Milan. The harbor is full of fine ships that seem quite promising, though so far they have only promised. The Milan combination,-Vanderbilt, Butler, and Mr.

Smith, N. Y. commissioner of Navigation, chartered a steamer and it sailed on the 12th with about 500 on board. First class was $250.00, four in a cabin. They have lists of Americans at the Consulates, and those on the first list are taken first. Now, a Mr. Blodgett, a lumberman from Michigan, who knows father and Jack, is trying to charter another ship which may sail this week. He has to pay 800,000 francs gold for it, ($160,000). He is trying to make up the amount by charging high prices for first class accommodations. We put in on names for first class but when it was an nounced that first class would be $500,00 apiece, four in a stateroom, we withdis

We have been finding out about by rail through France to London, and wi try that by way of Marseilles, Lions and Paris. We nearly boarded a British steamer which sailed last Thursday, but as we would have had to go steerage and there was a pretty rough looking bunch of British "subjects" aboard, the food supply not certain, and the boat would take nine or ten days, we gave it up. British subjects were taken first, then Americans who had the tag end of the steerage given them. As it was, almost 90 Americans tried it, most of them being women, most of them out of money, and all much wrought up.

It looks now as if we could get through France as the soldiers have been mostly transported to the frontier. We can judge a great deal better about conditions in England by being there. Some of the touring agencies have suffered very much in reputation, as at first they would not cash their own letters of credit, or redeem any tickets. American Express held up very well, cashing their checks to a certain degree; also American Bankers

Association checks. It has been quite hot but we are taking things moderately and are getting accus tomed to the climate. I hope so much that you are not worrying; that is one thing, would make us hurry home, but condition don't warrant that yet, and it would cost a lot at present rates, unless you can buy a boat. The Government is very slow in actnobilizing. He had wired three times and ling. The Consul here could have gotten all the Americans out of Genoa, about 2,000, France or Germany, he said. We read of in ten days, he stated, if only he could get authority from headquarters to act. But we have heard of the two-and-a-half million grant, and of the transports, and the film story as portrayed by Mary Pickford.

England and France seem to command the high seas so that passage there will not be obstructed.

It has been a great experience to make our own way with what French and German we have, without any help from guides. We have been studying Italian interesting, too. We have heard many wild stories from various refugees. I'm sure we will be safe. I have seen the American, French and English consuls, have our passports, and tickets through to London. We will cable you when we arrive there.
