

THE FOREST REPUBLICAN.

J. E. WERN, - EDITOR & PROPRIETOR. WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1914. REPUBLICAN TICKET. STATE. U. S. Senator—Boies Penrose.

ONE of the most popular post card photographs in London, is of President Wilson. The stationers can hardly supply the demand.—Democratic Vindicator.

A PROGRESSIVE who votes for McCormick for Governor is voting for a Democratic national administration—President, Congress and all.

THE call of the Elephant to the men who have been following the Bull Moose, but now have no candidate of their own for Governor, is being heard and heeded.

THE Public Ledger of Philadelphia, one of the staunchest of the Republican papers, foresees what evil effects the attempt to re-elect Penrose would bring to the party in this state.

THE Public Ledger is not now and never was a Republican paper, and the most conservative and best placed people positively declare that its attitude in the campaign will add not one less than 25,000 to Penrose's majority in Philadelphia alone.

THE determination of the administration at Washington to impose burdensome war taxes in times of peace, as a ruse solely to cover the failure of the Democratic tariff legislation, has brought the voters of Pennsylvania to a full sense of their duty at this particular time and the Republicans have abundant reasons for their belief that the people will not only rebuke the administration, but will vote with all possible emphasis against Mr. Palmer who has had much to do with framing the disastrous Democratic policies at Washington.

THE Eagerly Helpful Congressman. Extracts from a letter written by a Congressman to one of his constituents: "If you have in mind any particular government document... please write me and I will try to secure it for you."

"If there is a baby in your family I can send you a very valuable government document entitled 'The Care of the Baby.'"

"If any of your friends are lost or stranded in Europe please let me know and I will try to locate them for you and assist in getting them back to America. I have already * * * located many relatives and friends of my constituents and it will afford me pleasure to aid you in this way."

NO TIME TO SWAP HORSES. As sure as you are living, if Forest county sends a new man to the legislature this fall, one who is not thoroughly posted on the way they have of doing things in Harrisburg, the iniquitous and hideous war snake, against which our county made such a brave fight two years ago, will pass the legislature, and our county be turned over to the tender mercies of the water grabbers, and the hideous dame, the mere thoughts of which have given us nightmares and put us all on the verge of nervous prostration, will become a reality and Forest county will be practically wiped off the map.

Consider these facts thoroughly, thoughtfully. Lay aside any prejudice you may have formed. Forget your likes or dislikes and make up your mind to vote for and work for your own interests. This is no time to swap horses.

Candidate Pinchot Passed Through.

Gifford Pinchot, who claims a "yoting residence" in Pike county, and wants to be Senator from Pennsylvania, made his much heralded trip through this section last week. Saturday he reached Tionesta, where he gave a short street talk to the small Saturday afternoon crowd that is usual to our town at the corner of Elm and Bridge streets, the burden of which was his anxiety to seek Senator Penrose. His car arrived about three o'clock from Tidoute and one of the men members of the party was our old friend Geo. Munn of Warren, a very strong advocate of pure politics. Mr. Pinchot was met at Tidoute and escorted to our city by a number of our townsmen, among whom were E. W. Bowman, A. M. Dunt, J. C. Geier, F. B. Lanson, W. J. Campbell, Harry Watson and William Wilcox.

In a somewhat extended speech Judge Irwin introduced candidate Pinchot, and among other things he made the rather startling statement that Senator Penrose had said "he owned the voters of this state." The Judge afterward admitted that he had only heard some one else say this.

Candidate Pinchot's speech was almost wholly devoted to abuse of Senator Penrose, whose job he freely admitted he would like to beat him out of. With him it was "anything to beat Penrose," the awfully bad boss. He charged the Senator with favoring every bad law and opposing every good one. When he came to specialize his most serious charge was that Senator Penrose had voted for the Canadian reciprocity law, but he forgot to say that one of the strongest advocates of that bill, while it was under consideration in Congress, was Col. Roosevelt, who made speeches in its favor and recommended it as a splendid measure for the people of the United States, especially the working man. He furthermore forgot to state that his Democratic opponent, A. Mitchell Palmer, who also wants Penrose's job so bad that he can taste it, was one of the main leaders in the passage of the free trade law now in force and that allows Canada to export her goods into this country duty free, but gives the United States no chance to export the same privilege to the Canadians.

But it isn't Palmer's scalp that Gifford is after. He rather hopes to draw enough Republicans to himself to let the big Democratic boss, Palmer.

Another of Mr. Pinchot's complaints was of the manner in which the state highways were handled under Commissioner Bigelow, knowing full well that Auditor General Powell held up the road fund for a year so that no work could be done on the roads during that period, and knowing that this course would bring odium upon the highway department. Could Senator Penrose or Mr. Bigelow have had their way of it the state highways would today be in the very finest condition, and that without one penny's cost to the taxpayers of the country.

Mr. Pinchot, it should be remembered, is a very wealthy man, perhaps no wealthier man ever aspirated to the Senatorship from Pennsylvania. After being pried loose from his job as chief forester at Washington in 1910, he established a "yoting residence," to use his own words, in this state, and if he has been the good "house-cleaning" citizen that he pretends to be, and has not been absent at his "real residence" on election day, he has voted at just four general elections in Pennsylvania. This should entitle him to be elected as our representative in the U. S. Senate, by all means! It would be an easy job for him, and he wouldn't be bothered but once a year, when of course he would have to hunt up his "yoting residence" and cast his ballot.

THE Late Sebastian Cook. Sebastian Cook, son of John and Kathryn Ritter Cook, was born at Cooksburg, Barnet Township, July 4, 1837. He was a member of a family of eighteen, three of which survive him, who are Jerry and Squire Cook and Mrs. Martha Snyder of this place. Those who have gone before are Dan, John, Mar. Piper, Mrs. Young, Phillip, Andrew, Mrs. Berlin, Mrs. Phipps, Mrs. Lindsey, Mrs. Slocum, Mrs. Henry and Elijah.

Mr. Cook spent nearly all his life in this place and to him do we owe the debt of helping to clear the land and building permanent homes in Cooksburg. In the year 1861, when Lincoln called for volunteers, Mr. Cook was one of the first to respond, enlisting on the first day of July, 1861. He enlisted in the Tenth Regiment of the Pennsylvania Reserves, Company E, and was under Capt. Phipps, and later, Capt. Knox. He fought in some great battles, among which were the battle of the Wilderness, and battle of Bull Run. He fought in the Seven Days' Battle until the fifth day, when he was wounded in the ankle by a bullet shot by a rebel soldier. After suffering for almost a week from this wound he was taken to Baltimore to the hospital, where he remained for six months, when he insisted on going back into the battle field Physicians, understanding his physical condition, refused his request and he was granted an honorable discharge January 1, 1863. Yet no man ever loved his country better; he never boasted of his service but many an old soldier will today tell of his great bravery.

In 1865 he was married to Miss Sara Morgan, who still survives him and has indeed proved herself a faithful companion. To this union nine children were born, all of which survive him, except one, Mrs. Betty Slocum, who preceded him to the other world five years ago. The children are Andrew, William, Augustus, Ooburn, Mrs. Robert Cook, of this place, Mrs. Ida Boyd of Clarion, Mrs. William Southers of Kane, and Mrs. Edward Merchant of Mayburg. He was also survived by thirty-nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mr. Cook was taken ill on Wednesday, Sept. 9, 1914, and though everything that human hand could do, the "Angel of Death" could not be barred and he was called to his eternal home on Monday morning. While sick he was attended by Dr. Rimer and Miss Nayton. He was a good citizen, a kind neighbor, a faithful worker, and will be greatly missed. From the beginning of his illness friends hoped for his recovery, but when they saw it in vain his son-in-law asked "if he was ready to die." He said, "I am." He had a smile and a kind word for everyone, and was known to everyone in the community as "Uncle Boss." We grieve at the thought that he is gone, never to return, but he has erected a monument in the memory of all that will never perish.

On Thursday as we entered that home to lay the dear one to rest, a feeling of sadness came over us, when we saw the Stars and Stripes hanging at half mast. Then, as we saw the casket also wrapped in our country's flag, our minds went back to those days from '61 till '65, and we could not help but realize the great sacrifice made by our veterans. The floral offerings were abundant, being among the most beautiful flowers.

Rev. H. Smalberger of Kellestville preached the funeral sermon. Although a complete stranger to the deceased, Mr. Smalberger said he could fully realize his popularity in the community by the large concourse of friends who had come to show him last earthly respect. Mr. Cook's favorite hymns were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Clough of Clarion. After the services he was laid to rest, a number of our old comrades following him to the grave and giving him military honors. Then as we returned to our homes in our little valley town and saw the sun sink silently to rest beneath the hills, to rise again in its glory at the beginning of another day, we thought of the one whom we had laid to rest in the glory of eternity.

Cooksburg, Pa., Sept. 21, 1914.

CARD OF THANKS. Mrs. Sebastian Cook and family of Cooksburg wish to express their most sincere thanks to the people of that vicinity and elsewhere for their kindness during the illness and death of their beloved husband and father. They also wish to express their thanks for the beautiful floral offerings.

Greatness of Pennsylvania. For many years Pennsylvania has been admitted the great "Iron I state." The opponents of Republican rule assert that the policy of a party is destructive, but if it be, it is because it that the Republican state of Pennsylvania, with its population of eight millions, is one of the most prosperous states in the Union?

The facts speak for themselves and they furnish eloquent proof to show that in every field of human endeavor the much maligned but splendid state of Pennsylvania is pre-eminent. It bears the palm in everything which makes for real, lasting progress and prosperity.

The state of Pennsylvania is the world center of the steel industry, its manufacturing and mining activities give employment at good wages to an industrial population of about 10,000,000. It is favored in intelligence and thrift with the people of any similar area in the world. The mining output of the state for the year 1913, as reported to the state geologist, aggregated the remarkable sum of nearly six hundred million dollars, almost one-fourth of the entire national output of the United States. If expressed in figures its multitudinous manufacturing activities would make a showing equally picturesque.

Repelling a Slander. Democratic newspapers and orators, who are now busy trying to fool the people, insist that Republican away has been a savior of Pennsylvania, but the glorious old commonwealth repels this slander from every mill and mine and factory and railroad within its borders and makes a saving bank in which the surplus earnings of its frugal and happy people are deposited.

Not only is Pennsylvania great in its industries which have been fostered and made possible under the protective system of the Republican party, but its educational system is unexcelled in any other state. Its public schools, in which hundreds of thousands of the people receive the benefits of a good education, have been brought to their present efficiency under Republican rule. The free text books, which make it possible for the children of the poor to enjoy equal advantages with the children of a well-to-do, are a result of Republican research and legislation for the welfare of the people.

Republican policy has been and is being prosecuted to defeat the end sense, and this fact is so plain that it cannot be obscured by the most diligent Democratic slanderer of Republican candidates and policies. Just now the foremost shot in the Democratic camp are concentrating their torments of abuse on Senator Penrose in an effort to defeat his re-election. They are unscrupulous in their assertions, but they cannot justify their denials for nearly a century ago the man against whom their vicious attacks are directed has been a potent factor in shaping and supporting legislation for the welfare of Pennsylvania.

Penrose and the State. This mighty commonwealth, with its flourishing industries, its prosperous people and its happy homes, has had no more able or devoted advocate of all that makes for its prestige and perpetuity than Boies Penrose.

Senator Penrose is a man that he has done and is doing things for Pennsylvania. He proved this fact to the satisfaction of every fair-minded man in the state in an effort to defeat his re-election. He stands for Pennsylvania first and for these policies which make for the happiness and prosperity of its people, and Pennsylvania will stand by him with its ballots in November.

That Ledger Fiasco. It has become known that John Cribbell, in addition to having declared for Senator Penrose, had enrolled himself as a member of the Penn. Y. A. Protective Union, has a resigned as vice president of the Public Ledger Company and director of the Curt Publishing Company.

This is perhaps the hottest shot that has been fired into the anti-Penrose column to date. Mr. Cribbell has long been a prominent figure in the Car I companies, and the fact that he has demanded that his name be taken down from the editorial columns of the Ledger will make it very difficult for that newspaper to continue to discredit all those who follow the standards of the Republican party as regards its candidates for the upper and lower branches of congress.

The Scott's Consolation. He was a frugal Scot, and when the collection plate came round he dropped in a florin in mistake for the humble copper. Speedily discovering his mistake, however, he stepped softly down the aisle and requested the collector to give him back the coin, which request was politely but firmly refused. A shade of disappointment flitted over the northerner's face as he walked slowly back to his pew. "Aweel," he said, "it's a loss, but there's some sma' consolation in reflectin' it's a bad one. It might have got me into trouble anywhere else."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mirabeau as an Orator.

No one, not even Talleyrand, could approach Mirabeau as a speaker, and, curiously enough, this violent, emotional man was, as orator, perfectly self possessed.

"During the debate on the disturbances at Marseilles the Right interrupted his speech with cries of scandalous libel, scoundrel, assassin. He stopped for a moment and looked at the excited members who were patting him with their vile words: I am waffling, gentlemen," he said, "for these amenities to die down." Then he went on with his speech at the point where he had broken off.

Meerschaum and the Turks. Meerschaum used to be considered a mere curiosity by the Turks, who had no other use for it than as a substitute for father's soup. The story runs that the Turkish ambassador at the Austrian court, in the eighteenth century, was a native of Esaki Schelr. Wanting to help his city at a time of great poverty, he took a sample of this queer stuff to Vienna, thinking that the "franks," as all foreigners were then called, might have some use for it. The Germans were quick to see its utility for pipe bowls, but declared that it was good for nothing else. More than a century has confirmed this judgment, for who has yet discovered any other use for meerschaum? For pipe making it is an ideal raw material. Here is a stone which is easily moulded when wet, and when dry becomes hard and resists fire.

Acute Indigestion. "I was annoyed for over a year by attacks of acute indigestion, followed by constipation," writes Mrs. M. J. Gallagher, Geneva, N. Y. "I tried everything that was recommended to me for this complaint but nothing did me much good until about four months ago I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them from our druggist. I soon realized that I had gotten the right thing for they helped me at once. Since taking two bottles of them I can eat heartily without any bad effects." For sale by all dealers.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I advised the 'boys' when they enlisted for the Spanish war to take Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with them, and have received many thanks for the advice given." writes J. H. Houghland, Eldon, Iowa. "No person whether traveling or at home should be without this great remedy. For sale by all dealers."
