Proved False Prophets.

A few months ago the enemies of Senator Penrose professed to be delighted because this year, for the first time, his nomination to succeed himself would be made by a popular vote of the Republican party at the primaries. In this they claimed to see an opportunity for his defeat. They freely asserted that the old system of electing United States senators by the votes of the legislators gave him an advantage that he would not have at the primaries, where the people would have a say, and they were jubilant over the prospects of his defeat for renomination.

The result proved they were false prophets. Mr. Penrose was nominated for the United States senate as the free choice of a majority of the Republicans at the primaries, and as the standard-bearer of his party in Pennsylvania he will be elected in November by a vote that will carry diamain into the camp of his traducers.

Pennsylvania, with its great population, its vast resources, its multiplied activities, its glorious past and its prospects of a magnificent future, recognizes in Senator Penrose a man of the caliber, experience and capacity essential to its welfare. The records he has made through all his public career and stands today for the substantial greatness of the Commonwealth. The state's workers and its industries have in him a representative of the type of man that makes for achievement.

During his many years of service in Harrisburg and Washington his powerful influence and active support have been given in behalf of laws for the welfare of the people. The records will prove this fact. His opponents charge him with undue power, but the beneficent mining laws, the factory laws and the many other acts passed for the welfare of the wage-earners prove that his efforts have been for the public good.

His devotion to the principles of protection for American industry has made him the target of special abuse by his free trade opponents. But in this he has been actuated by a profound sense of his duty to the state of Pennsylvania, whose pre-eminence is mainly due to this sound economic policy.

Industrial protection has made Pennsylvania prosperous, and no man in recent years has done more in its behalf than Senator Penrose. The development of the state's industries, keeping pace with its great growth in population, has been the result of his advancement of the commonwealth to its present proud position.

The opponents of industrial protection are the enemies of real progress in Pennsylvania, and they realize that if they succeed in defeating Senator Penrose they would remove from public life one of the most powerful advocates of the protective tariff that stands in the way of their destructive free trade doctrine.

Foreign War Justifies Tariff.

The wisdom of the protective policy which has developed Pennsylvania's industries and those of the nation, and which enables them to supply the American market, is now more apparent than ever when all the countries of Europe are involved in the vortex of a fierce and destructive war.

If the theories of the free trade advocates had prevailed in the past and we were now dependent on foreign imports, as we would be were it not for the building up of our industries under Republican rule, this country would be unable to supply the things it needs because its manufacturing activities would be undeveloped.

The Republican policy of a protective tariff, of which Senator Penrose is the foremost advocate, has resulted in bringing to a high state of perfection the great industrial establishments of the nation and the state, and furnished the stimulus for the employment of American labor to supply our home market independent of imports from foreign workshops.

Although the war in the Old World has barely begun, it has already demonstrated the value of the protective tariff to encourage American industry. Those desires who have depended for their supplies on imports from Europe already realize that they would be better off if they had directed their energies to the production of the things they need at home. The perpetuity of our national life demands the industrial independence of the republic, and protection is the cornerstone of our industrial independence.

Pennsylvania should take no steps backward in the present crisis of our world's history. The state should not risk the prosperity of its people at this time by accepting theories that are destructive of its best interests, or electing to important office men whose economic doctrines are opposed to its vital and substantial welfare.

The man to be elected United States senator this year is the man who by his record has proved himself the unfaltering supporter and advocate of protection to American industry, and that man is Boies Penrose.

INDORSEMENT DECLINED

Second Term Plan Checked by President Wilson.

At the direction of President Wilson Secretary Tumulty wrote a letter to New Jersey Democrats declining to have them indorse the president for a second term.

Secretary Tumulty's letter was to Edward A. Grosscup, state treasurer of New Jersey. It follows: "You were generous enough to consult me as to whether the Democrats of New Jersey should at this time indorse the president for a second term. I had a talk with the president about it and he deeply appreciates the generosity of the suggestion, but New Jersey is his home state, the men who would act in this matter are his own personal friends and he feels that it might seem as if he were taking advantage of the extraordinary situation now existing to gain some personal advantage through such an expression of confidence by them.

"This would be inconsistent with his whole thought and spirit and he shrinks from it as from something that would embarrass him rather than help him.

"He feels confident that you will know the spirit in which he says this, that in urging the Democrats of New Jersey not to do this he is not abating in the least his deep appreciation."

CRUISERS TORN TO PIECES

England Aroused by Destruction of Three in North Sea.

Not even news of big fighting by land forces has caused the shock that disturbed the English people when they read the announcement of the worst blow dealt the English navy since war was declared.

One German submarine sunk in the North sea the three English armored cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue. Advice were that the effect of the torpedoes was so great that the cruisers were torn almost to pieces. Were it not for the prompt arrival of the cruiser Lowestoff and the presence of trawlers and destroyers in the neighborhood few probably would have been rescued.

So far as can be ascertained 1,067 officers and men were saved out of a total of 2,200 who were aboard the English cruisers when torpedoed. If these figures are correct 1,133 officers and men were killed.

The British admiralty announced the loss of the submarine AEI belonging to the Australian fleet. No details were given in the cable from the Australian government reporting the loss. The AEI had a displacement of 810 tons.

BANKS ARE HOARDING MONEY

Secretary McAdoo Warns Institutions About Piling Up Reserves.

Secretary McAdoo adopted measures to urge national banks to extend legitimate credit and charge normal interest rates on loans. He telegraphed to ten national banks in the four reserve cities in the south that their requests for additional crop-moving funds from the federal government would not be granted at this time and made it clear that his action was taken in connection with reports of excessive interest rates and restriction of credits.

Mr. McAdoo declared that there was an extraordinary hoarding of money by banks throughout the country and piling up of reserves without occasion. He said reports showed that money hoarding has been carried on by banks to an extreme degree and announced that he expected to focus attention upon the guilty banks by issuing a daily list of those with excessive reserves.

Bankers Are Sentenced.

Herman F. Borchers and George F. Hofmeister, former Colonial Trust company employees, pleaded guilty in a Pittsburgh court to a charge of embezzling $85,000 of Freehold bank funds. Borchers was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,500 and serve a term of imprisonment in the workhouse of two years and six months. Hofmeister was sentenced to the penitentiary for a term not exceeding four years and six months and not less than three years.
