On Kooping the Month Shut.

Mr. George Catlin has written a book called "The Breath of Life, or Mal-Respiration and its Effects upon the Enjoyments and Life of Man,' the object of which is to warn mankind against the "disgusting and dangerous habit of sleeping with the mouth open." He learned the habit of sleeping with his mouth shut among the Indian tribes. He gives a ghasily catalogue of the evil consequences which result from keeping the mouth too much open, including decaying teeth, tainted breath, diseased lungs, pallid cheeks, polypus in the nose—this last feature, not being travelled over by the breath, becoming the seat of disease, just as roads which are not used become overgrown with weeds. Mr. Catlin says: in the nose-this last feature, not says:

The Treatment of Diptheria.

We notice that this insiduous disease is becoming quite prevalent in some parts of the country. It is a malady that if not arrested at its very outset, is almost certain to prove fatal. As soon as the first symptoms appear, a physician should be instantly summoned. Meantime, until the doctor arrives, temporary relief can be afforded by gargling the throat every ten minutes with a strong decoction of common salt and water. Make it as strong as the patient can endure it without strangling, say a teaspoonful of salt to two tablespoonsful of water. In many instances this simple remedy has been known to entirely ckeck the disease, without the aid of any further prescription.
