BY WM. C. BRYANT.

Once this soft turf, this rivulet's sands, Were trampled by a hurrying crowd. And flery hearts, and armed hands, Encountered in the battle cloud.

Ah! never shall the land forget How gushed the life-blood of her brave-Gushed, warm with hope and courage yet, Upon the soil they fought to save.

Now all is calm, and fresh, and still, Alone the chirp of flitting bird, And talk of children on the hill, And bell of wandering kine are heard.

No solemn ghosts go trailing by The black-mouthed gun and staggering wain:

Men start not at the battle cry, Oh! be it never heard again!

Soon rest those men who fought; but thou Who minglest in the harder strife For truth which men receive not now, Thy warfare only ends with life.

A friendless warfare lingering long, Through weary day and weary year; A wild and many weaponed throng Hang on thy front, and flank and rear.

Yet nerve thy spirit to the proof, And blanch not at thy chosen lot. The timid good may stand aloof, The sage may frown, yet faint thou not.

Truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again The eternal years of God are hers; But Error, wounded, writhes in pain, And dies among its worshippers.

Another hand the sword shall wield, Another hand the standard wave. Till from the trumpet's mouth is pealed The blast of triumph o'er thy grave.

Yes; though thou lie upon the dust, When they who helped thee flee in fear, Die full of hope and manly trust, Like those who fell in battle here.

CLOSE QUARTERS.

An officer just from McClellan's army, states that his post has for some time been so close to the rebel capital, that on a calm night, with the wind favorable, he could hear the clocks in Richmond strike the late hour. It must be impressive to stand on a picket post, with three or four thousand human beings around, within a circuit of fifteen miles, and every 1862.

In Marion Township, at the Treasurer's Office in Marion Township in thing as quiet as if you were lost in a wild desert. The thousand sounds of insects, and the rustling of myriads of forest leaves, would only add to the loneliness of the time, while to hear the chimes of midnight rolling solemnly out on the night winds, would be awfully impressive. At such a time the lonely sentinel would see phantoms and visions, which would make his heart "knock at his ribs," and send a thrill along his nerves like lightning.

THUS IT IS. All that is valuable in this world is to be had for nothing. Genius, beauty, and love are not bought and sold. You may buy a rich bracelet, but not a well turned arm to wear it; a pearl necklace, but not the pearly throat with which it shall vie. The richest banker on earth would vainly offer his fortune if he could write a verse like Byron. One comes in to the The difference in the fineness of a bit of linen is not much.
