AND DESCRIPTION

Time gentleman, who was appointed a Brigadier for good behavior at Bull Run, lost, as you may remember, his right arm at the battle of Fair Oaks, on the 31st of May last .--He arrived here to-day from his home in New England, and reported for duty at once. He is a remarka ble man. He is the Havelock of our army. He is as pious as he is brave. Every morning and evening he calls around him his staff, and engages in religious exercises. He is always cool and self-poised, and, relying upon his God, goes into the shock of battle with the world behind him, his eye fixed upon the rewards of the just, and a clear title to "mansions in the skies." When the war broke out, he was Professor of Mathematics at West Point, but resigned at once, went home, and in one week it was at the head of a full regiment, and en route for the field. At Fair Oaks, early in the fight he received a shot through the right wrist. He bound it up, and still re-tained his place at the head of his brigade. An hour later, his horse received three bullets at once, the Gen. another through the elbow joint of the same arm first wounded, and two more through his clothes. He still, however, kept his place for some time, till loss of blood forced him to withdraw. His arm was amputated at once, and he set out for his home, in Auburn, Maine. He kept his house but two days. One week after his return, he rode by rail thirty miles to attend a conference of the churches in his district, where he made a most touching appeal to all who heard him to come over to Christ's side .--His words had great effect. After our reverses before Richmond, he at once took the stump to excite an enthusiasm for volunteering. His suc-cees has been great. His State has more than filled her quota, and though she is the most distant from this of any of the Eastern States, has alwedy here two overfull regiments thusiasm for volunteering. His suc-cees has been great. His State has already here two overfull regiments of her sturdy sons. So much for the good and brave Gen. Howard. ..... AN INCIDENT.

A woman from Indiana, hearing that her son, her only son, a noble youth, was wounded in one of the battles before Richmond, hastened to seek him. She obtain ed passes, but searched in vain for him through all the hospitais in the Peninsula. Her endeavors elsewhere were all equally fruitless. Having looked through our own hospitals to no purpose, alone in a strange city, friendless, almost heartbroken with motherly anxiety and grief, she hears, while in one of the wards, that a new boat load of wounded was in the harbor. An uncontrollable conviction sesses her that her son is among them. She becomes almost distracted with impatience to fly to him; and would not wait till the next day, when the wounded were to be landed. One of our noble up. town ladies, who devote themselves to the sick and wounded, happened to be present and could not resist her distress. She finally persuaded an officer to procure a boas, and at once go with the mother to the steamer. The very first wounded man looked upon her was her own son. He sprang to her with the exclamation, "O mother! I knew you would come." It was to her a terrible shock, for she saw that the seal of death was on him.-He was mortally wounded through the lungs, and died that night in his mother's arms, The lady who had interested herself in her, anxious to know her fate, yet hearing nothing, sought the ship on the next day, and found the mother alone with her dead boy, almost beside herself with grief. The wounded had been taken off the ship, the officers and crew had gone on shore, and there was nobody to care for the bereaved woman, whom no one knew. This heartless desertion is a lasting shame to the vessel, whose name we do not care to disclose. The lady soon made arrangements for having the body decently coffined, and took the mother to her own home. The American, Express Company, to their honor, or being acquainted with the facts, volunteered to convey the body to Indiana free of expense, and the mother, with her sacred charge left for her home. Before leaving she was induced to say something respecting her family history, and, singularly enough, it appeared that herself and her benefactor were originally from the same New-England village, and their fathers had been long and well tried friends.

A Successful Rebel Ruse.

The rebels have used our telegraph wire in Virginia recently with even more signal success than they had in Kentucky, and with quite as much impudence. The moment Fitz Hugh Lee captured Manassas, he telegraph ed in the name of Gen. Pope's Chief of Staff, to the proper officer in Washington, requesting him to send to the Junction a large supply of shelter tents, and harness for artillery horses. The order was promptly filled, and the rebels were soon gladdened by the appearance of a train loadened with what they wanted. Jackson, on his arrival, sent a message to the Superintendent of Military Railroads cooly asking him to change the time table on the road for his accommodation. We shall probably soon find these and other equally gratifying correspondence published in the form of a telegraphic operator's diary in the Southern newspapers.

The State of Illinois furnishes the Wew York market with more beef cattle than any other State in the Union. Last year the total re-ceipts from it were 80,500. The next greatest source of supply is Ohio, which sent during the same period 36,500.

The wheat crop of Minnesato this year will produce 6,500,000 bushels, which will allow the State to export year will produce 6,500,000 bushels, which will allow the State to export 500,000 bushels. Other crops are in a fine condition—running over with planti-fulness. W. G. W. DAY, Warnsumpas, May 7, 1962-3m. Proprietor.
