MAKING TRACKS

A light snow had fallen, and the to boys desired to make the most of it. It was too dry for snow-balling, and not deep enough for coasting. It did very well to make tracks in.

There was a large meadow near the place where they were assembled. It was proposed that they should go to a tree which stood in the centre of a meadow, and that each should start from the tree, and see who could make the straightest track— that is, go from the tree in the near-est approach to a straight line. The proposition was assented to, and they were soon at the tree. They start from the tree, and sec who SEO. HOSKINSON. AUTIK. ## ONLY A CUP OF WATER.

A young Englishwoman was sent to France to be educated in a Hu-guenot school in Paris. A few evenis before the fatal massacre of Bartholomew's Day, she and some of her young companions were taking a walk in some part of the town where BOOTS AND SHOES. there were sentinels placed on the walls. When a soldier is on guard he must not leave his post until he is relieved-that is, until another soldier comes to take his place. One of the soldiers, as the young ladies passed him, besought them to have the charity to bring him a little water, adding that he was very ill, and that it would be as much as his life was worth to go and fetch it himself. The ladics walked on, much offended at the man for presuming to speak to them, all but the young Englishwoher party, procured and who, leaving some water, and brought it to the soldier. He begged her to tell him her name and place of abode, and this she did. When she rejoined her companions, some blamed and others ridiculed her; but they soon had reason to lament that they had not been equally compassionate, for the grateful soldier contrived, on the night of the massacre, to save this young Englishwoman, while all the other inhabitants of the house in which she dwelt were killed.

From the Cumberland Presbyterian. TO A LADY FRIEND.

Friend of my heart, what can I say to thee, What can I write that would be worthy o Thine eve, or worthy of my pen. Shall I Discourse of beauty ? 'Tis a fading flower, Time can mar the fairest features and its Ruthless hand spares neither age or sex, all Are alike obnoxious to its ravages, And its deep furrows will deface the beauty Of the handsomest. Shall I discourse of wealth and fortune---The blessings they confer ? Alas for wealth, For oft times when we need it most, it takes

To itself wings and flies away. Shall I discourse of learning and accomplishments

Of mind? Here I might pause and think, bat 🗄

No, of what value is the mind without The heart? Though cultured to its full extent.

Tis not the mind alone that makes the man. What then, since neither beauty, wealth or Learning, seem worthy of our verse, of what Are we to write-what else remains? The one thing needful, that remains and well Deserves all we can say and more. Tis this That gives true value to the mind. Tis this That makes us place a proper estimate On beauty, that eminent meteor That dazzles for a moment then departs. Tis this, enables us to use our wealth aright. In doing deeds of kindness to our fellow-men. Shall I not then my new found friend express

In sickly phrase the wish that each and all Both learning, wealth and beauty should pour

Their untold treasures in thy lap. No, l Wish thee happiness, and joy and peace. And to this end I pray that thou may'st Have this "one thing needful," this pearl of price, This blessing without which alkother thinge Were vain. Then let me say to thee, Fear God

And his commandments keep, for this is all That is required of man, and woman too'; For woman is a part of man, a most Essential part, without which he were lost, A knife without a blade-a riddle in creation.
