

A New Prisoner.
A correspondent of the New York Times, giving an account, by a rebel prisoner, who participated in the affair of the capture of the Harriet Lane, at Galveston, relates the following remarkable incident:—Almost the first man struck down was the gallant Capt. Wainwright, and Lieutenant Lee, who both fought, the prisoner says, with a desperation and valor that no mortal could surpass. He saw them bleeding and prostrate upon the deck, still dealing death among their enemies. One young son of Captain Wainwright—only ten years old; just think of it!—stood at the cabin door, a revolver in each hand, and never ceased firing until he had expended every shot. One of his poor little hands was disabled by a ball, shattering his four fingers, and then his infantile soul gave way; he burst into tears and cried; "Do you want to kill me?" Darling young hero; may his country never forget him! Where is the Henans to wed his name to immortal verse, like another Casabianca? Philanthropists, whose hearts are yearning for something to love, here is a noble orphan boy on whom to lavish your care.—He is now a prisoner in the hands of the enemy.

MILITARY ELOPEMENT.
A Lieutenant in the Thirty-second Illinois regiment, falling in with a charming rebel spy at Nashville, Tennessee, became so infatuated that he some weeks ago deserted, and with the young lady escaped beyond the Federal lines. The young lady was wealthy, and by the use of her money the pair managed to get to Charleston, and arrived at the end of last Christmas day, when they were married, and are now living, it is said, in happiness and elegance.
