For the Messenger. FROM NORTH MISSOURI. Messrs. Editors :- Having learned, from rate gource, that the eyes of many of your citizeus are directed toward our State wich a. view of, settling hereafter peace is restored; I have thought a few lifes from here occasionally might not be uninteresting to them. I live in North Missouri, on the Railroad of that name, eighty miles fram St. Louis. No one, un-less de bas travelled over Western Texas, has ever seen a more beautiful section of comperythan this is. And this has the advantage over Texas in that its beautiful rolling prairies are everywhere interspersed with running streams and groves of large pak and hickory timber. Western Texas is the greatest stock-growing region in the would, and it has an excellent soil, but timber is scarce, and the dry seasons so common there render agriculture almost a der Black Republican domination as Mastailure. Middle and Eastern Texas equal up a desirable country. But those who wish to seek their fortune in the west, cannot fail to be pleased with Missouri.

Our State, it is true, has been desolated by civil war. Scenes of horror have been vitnessed here that no civilized people ever beheld before. War at best is a terrible scourge, but a war between citizens act, we look with an anxious eye to try, embarrassing the national cause, gress. Hon. J. Oh, that this nation could fully most enlightened, and happiest people realize the true posture of things, and on earth, slaying each other with the avidity of fiemls, burning houses over the heads of the innocent and helpless. and laying waste whole States. And for what 7 To give freedom to four millions of Aricans, whose condition has been infaitely improved by means of slavery, and who are to-day by all odds tetter provided for and happier at home with their masters than when turned loose upon the community free. This statement I make from actual knowledge of facts. It cannot be controverted successfully. But I am digressing from my object in writing this letter, which is to give your readers some idea of the present posture of things in Missouri.
