How to Thaw Frozen flesh.

-Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

The New York Post says frozen flesh ought never to be rubbed. The juices of the flesh tissues, when frozen in their minute sacs or cells, at once become in each one of these enclosures, crystals, having a large number of angles and sharp points; and hence rubbing the flesh causes them to cut or tear their way through the tissues, so that when it is thawed the structure of the muscle is more or less destroyed. The proper mode of treatment is this:-When any part of the body is frozen, it should be kept periectly quiet till it is thawed out, which should be done as promptly as possible. As freezing takes place from the surface inwardly, so thawing should be in the inverse order, from the inside outwardly.

The thawing out of a portion of flesh without, at the same time, putting the blood from the heart into circulation through it, produces mortification; but by keeping the more external parts still congealed till the internal heat and the external blood gradually soften the more interior parts, and produce circulation of B. GUNSEWHAUSER & CO. the blood as fast as the thawing takes place, most of these dangers are obviated. If the snow which is applied be colder than the frozen flesh, it will still further abstract the heat and freeze it wose than before. But if the snow is of the same temperature, it will keep the flesh from thawing till the heat from the rest of the LADIS TIRS, INDIRELLAS, &C. body shall have affected it, thus preventing gangrene. Water, in which snow or ice has been placed, so as to keep its temperature at thirty-two degree Fahrenheit, is probably better than snow.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's Cerman Bittets, prepared by Dr. C. M Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly as alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend, Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice, by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, whose suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was I howed by evident refuel, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I meant for for fix months before, and had almost desy, ared or regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.
