A WORD OF ADVICE TO THE INTEMPERATE.

Thou may st call intoxication "Just a little recreation," But its right name's Ruination. . A fiend who brings Disgrace, and blights the reputation,

She maketh beggars of the wealthy; She brings disease upon the healthy: And sometimes 'neath her steps so stealthy The great, the clever.

Ay, e'en of kings.

Sink, sink, alas! so very low, they Are lost forever.

Of crime she is the fruitful source; Of darkest deeds she is the nurse; The basest are by her made worse; She's the best friend

Of Satan; she's the bane, the curse. Of our fair land.

Mytiads in misery have died; Myriads committed suicide; Myriads upon a scaffold tied

Have met their end, That might have lived, their country's pride, But for this fiend.

Whate'er may be thy occupation, Genius, talent, rank or station, If given to intoxication, Thus saith my pen:

Thou'lt sink low in the estimation Of all good men. Oh, could poor erring mortals see

One half of her deformity. Mothinks they'd quit her company; For I am sure They'd then lose half the misery They now endure.

"Mother, Will our Charley Come?"

"Mother, I am very weary, Weary of the day now done; Mother, will you tell me truly, Will our Charley ever come? Will he come to bless us, mother, Bless you for your tender care? Tell me, mother, for I am waiting, Will our Charley meet us there?

"Tis just two long weary years" Since he left us for the war; Will his being a brave soldier Entrance into heaven bar? Will he not come to see me, Ere I leave this world of care? Mother, I have prayed for Charley, And I know he'll meet us there!

"Now, perchance, he's fighting bravely For our country's rights to save ; Mother, I am thinking often, Will he find a patriot's grave? Yes, your look is now my answer: Charley may not meet me here; But where all is bright and holy, He will see me, mother, dear!

IV. "There, amidst those heavenly angels, I shall see my Charley dear, Robed in garments shining brighter Than the soldier dress he wears! There, dear mother, you will meet us In a happy, joyous band; Mother, I feel very grateful, God has made that far-off land!

"Draw more closely to me, mother, Death is coming, coming now; But I do not fear him, mother, Shining bands shall deck my brow, And, dear mother, if our Charley Should return for you care, Tell him I have prayed long for him, And I know he'll meet me THERE!" *Words of a dying girl, six years old.
