New Goods at Mt. Morris.

Our merchant friend, E. F. MORRIS, Esq., of Mt. Morris, in this county, has just received a large invoice of Spring and Summer Goods...

The Girard, Philadelphia.

We took occasion, in a late No. of the Messenger, to allude in terms of deserved praise to this well-ordered and admirable, hostelry...

Melancholy Occurrence.

On Saturday morning last, Mrs. HESTER A. HEDGE, wife of ANSON HEDGE, Esq., of this place was found drowned in a large, deep spring in the yard near the house.

The "Republican" gives the following account of the painful occurrence:—About six o'clock in the morning, her son, Samuel Hedge, on leaving the house to attend to some business on the street noticed his mother going out the back door of the house.

For the Messenger. CAMP NEAR BRANDY STATION, Va., April 11th, 1864.

Messrs. Editors:—At a time like the present, when Republican leaders at home, and Abolition officers in the army, are talking and writing so grandiloquently of the great changes that have been wrought in political sentiment among the rank and file, correct information upon that topic may not be unacceptable.

For Gen. McCLELLAN, 46. For Fremont and Lincoln, 15, which, as you will perceive, is a CLEAR GAIN OF ONE-TWELFTH, and what it might have been under FAVORABLE circumstances, such as Democrats enjoy at home, it is impossible to determine.

who have all the power,—your camp flooded with Abolition journals, and Democratic ones excluded, as they are mobbed and suppressed at home,—shut out to a great extent from the councils and advice of your older and more experienced friends; through all this you have kept fast hold on the anchor of Democratic faith and practice, while thousands of others have drifted away and been lost amid the boisterous waves of fanaticism.

But I have extended my letter to too great a length already, and for the present will close. Having considerable facilities for ascertaining the drift of political sentiment in various Regiments from our State, if you think such facts would be interesting to your patrons, you may likely hear from me again on similar topics. Very Respectfully,

A Member of "Co. A," 140th P. V.

A Surprise.

On the evening of the 19th inst., the subscriber was very unexpectedly to himself, surrounded by a large circle of the members of the Presbyterian Church of Waynesburg, Pa., and other kind-hearted Ladies belonging to other churches of the town, and was presented with a very liberal donation, consisting of a hat, literally filled with Greenbacks, (all honor to that hat,—may it never wear out,) and a pocket-book, well filled with the same kind of materials.

The Disaster in Louisiana Confirmed.

ANOTHER BATTLE FOUGHT! THE ENEMY DEFEATED! Two Thousand Prisoners and Twenty Cannon Captured.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The following was received at the Navy Department to-day at noon: CAIRO, April 19.—To Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy: I have received private letters from Rod river—one dated "Grand Ecore, La., April 10th," and one dated "Alexandria, April 12th," stating that the army under Gen. Banks met with reverses on the 8th, near Mansfield. Our army fell back to Pleasant Hill, and next day the rebels attacked them and were handsomely whipped. The loss is heavy on both sides. The Admiral, when last heard from, was about forty miles above Grand Ecore. The river was low. (Signed) A. M. PENNOCK, Fleet Captain.

Chicago, April 23.—The Evening Journal publishes extracts from private letters from members of the Chicago Mercantile Battery, dated April 12th, to the effect that on the day after the first disaster to the 13th Army corps, Gen. A. J. Smith, with the 19th Army corps, engaged the enemy and defeated them, capturing 2,000 prisoners, and 20 cannon.

Another Account. A member of the Chicago Battery writes: Our battery loaded with canister, commenced firing. We were on the left. The rebels charged the left of the line, and we had to fall back about a mile. We stayed there for over an hour, and then we were driven back again. Our guns were playing the "devil's tattoo" on the rebel ranks. We were charged three times, but drove the rebels back every time. Finally, owing to superior numbers against us, our forces had to retreat.

Twenty-four Guns Lost. Our Corps, the 13th, was all cut to pieces, so we fell back to this place, five or six miles from the battle field, to organize. We brought our guns back two miles from the field, and then had to leave them, as the road was all blocked up with the train. We lost twenty-four pieces of artillery, all there were in the fight. Our captain and two Lieutenants were captured. Lieut. George Throp was mortally wounded, seven men wounded and twenty-two missing. General A. J. Smith came up the next day and whipped the rebels, taking 2,000 prisoners and sixteen pieces of artillery. He sent word to the Rebel General Price, saying he would fight him all the way to Shreveport, and not take another prisoner.

On Saturday the battle was continued at Pleasant Hill, chiefly under the direction of A. J. Smith, who did prodigies of valor. We got all sorts of reports from the front. The latest is that Smith has whipped the rebels, taking two thousand prisoners and sixteen pieces of artillery. Our loss must have been immense in the first day's fight. A mere handful is left of our corps. The expedition is no doubt broken up, and our troops are falling back.

The Rebel Attack on Columbus—A Demand for the Surrender—Reinforcements Arriving.

CAIRO, April 13.—The rebel general, Buford, sent a flag of truce, at seven o'clock this morning, demanding the surrender of Fort Halleck, at Columbus, Kentucky—the white soldiers to be treated as prisoners of war, but no protection promised to the colored regiments found in arms. Five hours were given for the removal of the lumber and children. The steamer Crawford arrived here at 1 P. M., crowded with the latter. As she was leaving Columbus, two thousand men were seen below, with 600 caissons, and their way toward Cairo.

lough, also a battery. They were landed, and would doubtless materially change the calculations of the rebels. The steamer Olive Branch, from New Orleans on the 6th inst., has arrived, and reports that fighting was going on at Fort Pillow, all day yesterday, and up to the time she passed there, when there was cessation of hostilities. Negotiations were pending, and a flag of truce was visible. After passing, the fighting was renewed, and the Federal flag was seen to come down, but it was believed to have been shot away, as there seemed to be efforts made to raise it again. Among the passengers by the Olive Branch were Gen. Shipley, from Louisiana, Capt. Miller, late acting Mayor of New Orleans, and Capt. Thompson, of the General's staff.

LATER. General Buford's demand for an unconditional surrender of Fort Pillow. It was stated that if the fort was surrendered the negroes would be returned to their masters but if forced to take the place no quarter would be shown them. Col. Lawrence, of the 34th New Jersey regiment, commanding the post replied that his Government had placed him there to defend the fort, and that surrender was out of the question.

Paduach advises up to noon to-day report matters more quiet and the probabilities of an attack are greatly lessened. General Brayman has sent adequate reinforcements both to Columbus and Paduach and no fears are entertained by the military authorities for the safety of either place. Passengers from below report that Forrest recently crossed the Cold Water river near Jackson going South with 3000 horses and 1,900 wagons, but this is doubtless an exaggeration.

The Facts about the Massacre at Fort Pillow. A Memphis correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing under date of 14th inst., gives the following facts in relation to the fight at Fort Pillow: The fight commenced Tuesday morning about six o'clock. The rebels were in under a flag of truce, for the purpose, it is supposed, of demanding the surrender of the fort, and while the flag of truce was still in the fort, the rebels were drawing their lines around the doomed garrison, and even before the flag had got out the desperate struggle commenced. Major Booth, the officer in command, issued an order to his men that he would never surrender while there was one of them left. He fell dead at the first or second charge, but his invincible determination to conquer or die had been communicated to his little band, and they kept the fearful trust committed to them by their dead commander with heroic and unflinching fidelity. After a desperate fight of nearly eight hours' duration, and when they had nearly all been either killed, wounded or taken prisoner, they finally gathered what was left in a little knot at the foot of the pole from the top of which the flag of their country was still flying, and there made their last heroic struggle for victory or the grave.
