SPRING FLOWERS.

LAST POEM OF PHOENIX CAREY.

[This poem was written, after receiving a gift of flowers from her friend, Mrs. Mary Stevens Robinson, who had the sad privilege of being with the poetess through her last sickness and death at Newport.—Eds.]

O sweet and charitable friend,
Your gift of fragrant bloom
Has brought spring-time and the woods
To cheer my lonely room.

It rests my weary, aching eyes,
An sooths my heart and brain,
To see the tender green of the leaves
And the blossoms wet with rain.

I know not which I love the most,
Nor which the comeliest shows;
The timid, bashful violet,
Or the royal-hearted rose;

The pansy in her purple dress,
The pink with cheek of red,
Or the faint, fair hellebore, who hangs,
Like a bashful maid, her head;

For I love and praise you, one and all,
From the least low bloom of spring,
To the lily fair, whose clothes outshine
The raiment of a king.

And when my soul considers these,
The sweet, the grand, the gay,
I marvel how we shall be clothed
With fairer robes than they.

And almost long to sleep and rise,
And gain that fideless shore;
And put immortal splendors on,
And live to die no more.

ENJOYMENT OF LIFE.

'Tis not for man to trifle. Life is brief,
And sin is here,
And age is but the falling of a leaf—
A dropping tear.

We have no time to sport away the hours;
All must be earnest in a world like ours.

Not many live, but only one, have we—
Fruit, fleeting man!
How sacred should that one life ever be—
That narrow span!

Day after day filled up with blessed toil,
Hour after hour still bringing new spoil.

Miscellaneous Reading.

AMONG THE CELESTIALS.

A Miss Susan A. King, a lady who has accumulated quite a fortune by speculating in real estate in New York city, has made quite a tour through China, principally in the tea growing districts. A reporter of the New York World interviewed her the other day, and from that source we learn some interesting facts about the social life of the celestials. She says the condition of women in China is about the same as in this country that higher classes of Chinese women are taught like ours to control their voices; that it is not polite to speak above a certain tone. They study attitudes and certain tones. They study attitudes and certain tones. They study attitudes and certain tones.

The Salt Lake correspondent of the Sacramento Union gives the following as a copy of the paper signed by nearly 2,500 women of Utah, and forwarded by them to Washington in October:—
PETITION OF THE MORMON WOMEN.
—Mrs. President Grant: Honored lady, desiring it proper for woman to appeal to woman, we, Latter-day Saint ladies of Utah, take the liberty of preferring our humble and earnest petition for your kindly and generous aid; not merely because you are the wife of the Chief Magistrate of our great nation, but we also are induced to appeal to you because of your high reputation for nobility and excellence of character. Believing that you, as all true women should do, for in our estimation every wife should fill the position of counselor to her husband, possess the confidence of and have much influence with his Excellency, President Grant, we earnestly solicit the exercise of that influence with him in behalf of our husbands, fathers, sons and brothers, who are now being exposed to the murderous policy of a clique of Federal officers, in the midst of his labor had time to devote into the depths of philosophy, and explore an untrodden path of science.

King visited she saw much drunkenness and crime among the natives but when she got beyond civilization these evils disappeared. Tea is the universal beverage, and go where you will you find "The houses," and the moment you enter a cup of tea is handed you and perhaps some sweets; a sort of sugar bean is the usual kind. A cup of tea costs about one "cash," eleven of which are required to make one of our cents in value. Living is very cheap. Miss King says, if you conform to the Chinese methods, but if you want European articles of food, all of which are imported from Europe or America, a fortune will be swallowed up in less than no time. For instance, the cows are imported, and cost two thousand dollars each; the ownership, therefore, is confined to a few wealthy European families, and two or three great European hotels. You can imagine what butter and milk cost under such conditions as these. A sheet of English note paper costs $1, and a very poor bonnet that could be bought here for $3 to $5, costs $40 there. After a little experience says Miss King, I began to adopt the Chinese method of living, and finally got along very cheaply indeed. Chinamen can support a wife and family first rate on ten cents per day; he can do it tolerably on six; but ten cents provides really good living. The middle class women don't spend their time cooking and house-cleaning as the same class do here. There are cook-shops all along the streets, where men get their chow chow, and where women send for dishes already cooked for the family. Then they have no beds that need making or coverings that need washing, the better class sleep on mats, and the poor in the northern part of China, where it is sometimes very cold, have a corner bricked up, so as to make a sort of oven, or furnace. A very small fire is sufficient to keep this warm, so that the children can be put in it any time during the day and the whole family turned in to sleep at night.

Frederick the Great, with an Empire at his direction, in the midst of war, and on the eve of battle, found time to reveal in the charms of philosophy, and feast on the luxury of science. Napoleon, with Europe at his disposal, with kings in his ante chamber, at the head of thousands of men, whose destinies were suspended on arbitrary pleasure, found time to converse with books. And young men who are confined to labor or business even twelve hours a day, may take an hour and a half of what is left for study, and this will amount to months in the course of a year.

Build Him a Fire.
Ferrin, the landlord of the Westminster Hotel, in New York, is not often nonplussed, but last August a dapper little Frenchman staggered him for a moment. Walking up to the office he accosted Ferrin with:—
"If you please Monsieur, you shall send bill de fire in my room."
"A what?" said Ferrin, looking at the thermometer, which indicated 92 degrees.
"I wish ze bill de fire in my apartment," repeated the Frenchman.
"All right, sir," said Ferrin, with that outward imperturbability with which the true Hotel keeper receives an order for anything, if it be gold dust pudding with diamond plums.
"John I fire in 10,001."
"Yes sur—r!" said John; and by the time the Frenchman arrived at his room, John, with perspiration pouring off of him, had the grate filled and a blaze roaring up the chimney like mad.
"Vat ze diable you do?" cried the astonished foreigner.
"Built a fire, as ye ordered," replied the other exile.
"Fire!" screamed the Frenchman. "I shall roast myself with ze heat!" and rushing downstairs, he appeared at the office with inflamed face and moistened shirt-collar, exclaiming:—"I ask you not for ze fire. Vat! I think I wish to make myself more hot, I call for bill de fire—ze bill, ze carte, so can eat myself with my dinnare."
"Bill of fare? Oh yes, sir," said Ferrin. "I beg your pardon." And he politely passed out the programme for the day but deputed one of the garçons of the restaurant to answer any further orders from the subject of Napoleon.

A Curious Matrimonial Question.
The San Jose (Cal.) Mercury contains this singular story:
There resides with his mother in Santa Clara, Charles W. Sikes, a young man of good reputation, worthy and honest, but of humble circumstances in life. There also resides in the same town, with her parents, Miss Hattie Burnett, an estimable young lady of eighteen, of fine accomplishments and unusual character. These young people, it is asserted, formed an attachment for each other, against the wishes of the girl's parents, who sought, by various means, to break the intimacy between them, and they had to meet clandestinely.
This state of affairs existed for many months, until the 4th of September last, when Mr. Sikes, accompanied by a young lady who gave her name as Hattie Burnett, called at the law office of C. C. Stephens, of this city—an acquaintance of both parties—and stated as their object calling the intention of being united in marriage. Justice Stewart was called in, and the parties were duly married. They returned to Santa Clara, remained throughout the day at the young man's home; and then the lady went to her own home. Now comes in the mystery, romance, or what you may call it, of the whole affair. The fact of the marriage leaked out—for Sikes made no secret of it—and soon reached the ears of the girl's parents. They asked her if it was true. She said no, and seemed greatly surprised at the intimation.

The Women of Utah.
The Salt Lake correspondent of the Sacramento Union gives the following as a copy of the paper signed by nearly 2,500 women of Utah, and forwarded by them to Washington in October:—

A Word to Young Men.
Wishing and sighing, imagining and dreaming of greatness, little Wm. Wirt, will not make you great. But cannot a young man command his energies. Read Foster on decision of character. This book will tell you what is in your power to accomplish. You must gird up your loins and go to work with all the indomitable energy of Napoleon sealing the Alps. It is your duty to make the most of time, talents, and opportunity. Alfred, King of England, though he performed more business than any of his subjects, found time to study. Franklin, in the midst of his labor had time to dive into the depths of philosophy, and explore an untrodden path of science.

Isn't it queer that contractors should be employed to widen streets?
An old bachelor is a traveler on life's railroad who has entirely failed to make the proper connections.
One who has reflected; a good deal on the lapse of ages—prefers, on the whole, the age of seventeen.
A lady describing an ill-tempered man, said, he never smiles but he feels ashamed of it.
The quickest way for a man to forget all common miseries is to wear tight boots.
Why are married ladies like a scanty harvest? Because they require husbandmen.
Swedish brandy is flavored with red ants, but a fellow that we know says he has an aunt flavored with brandy.
Three Providence families have named their cats; Morgiana Longtail, Nicodemus Paschblossom, and Josephus Orangelblossom.
A young man in town, who is wrestling with his first mustache, proposes to name it after two leading baseball clubs, because there are nine no a side.
A sensible lady of mature years says that it does not look well for a young lawyer to put his arm around a girl at a circus and comb her hair with his fingers.
Teacher to a Sunday School boy, "O, you have an elder brother; well how old is he?" Boy: "Dunno, Miss, but he's just started o' swearing."
