Philanthropists bent on the abolition of capital punishment and substitution of the solitary cell for the gallows will, perhaps, be surprised to learn that some of the tender hearted people of the State of Maine deem even imprisonment, without the solace of companionship, too cruel for convicted murderers. There is a bill now pending before the Pine Tree State Legislature providing for the abolition of solitary confinement. Should this measure be adopted the convicts of Maine will hereafter be granted the sweet solace of society and assassins be able to compare notes. As both the halter and lonely dungeon seem too cruel for assassins in Maine it would be well, and may, perhaps, prove necessary, to provide asylums for murderers, pleasant retreats fitted up with gardens, libraries, and other adjuncts of a luxurious civilization, where men and women, too unfortunate enough to have labored their hands in the blood of their fellows, can pass their lives in dignified retirement.

It is said to be fifty-four years ago this winter since a season has run from November to March without a general thaw or break up. At that time the scarcity of water was similar to that existing now.

INDIAN MASSACRE.—The last Valley Echo publishes by request the following account of an Indian murder near Greencastle, taken from the History of the five Border Counties:

Greencastle, Jan. 23, 1845. Exhumation of the bones of the murdered school, comprising ten scholars and teacher.

"On the 4th of August 1843, the following persons, viz: Dr. Wm. Grubb, Dr. Jas. K. Davidson, Dr. Charles Michaels, Messrs. Jas. Mitchell, Geo. Sites, Jas. Johnston, Jacob Mowrer, John Osbraugh, Geo. Short, Christian Koser, Jeremiah Burke, John Rowe, Jr., Wm. Osbraugh, Col. David Detrich, Adam Shirey, Thos. Atherton, and two youths, M. R. Irvin and Isaac Heichert, repaired to the farm of Christian Koser, about three miles north of Greencastle, in the township of Antrim, where tradition said, the bodies of the murdered victims were buried, at the foot, and on the south side of a large hill, near a spring. Mr. Koser pointed out to them, a small plot of ground unmarked by anything, save the grass and the briars that distinguish it from the land around it—The spot is an open field, and the land around it was cultivated. Some of the party soon commenced removing the earth; and after digging to the depth of four feet and a half, found some rotten wood and several rusty nails of ancient construction. After digging a little deeper, part of a small skeleton was found; the bones were much decayed—and when the skull was handled, it crumbled into dust. The teeth, however, seemed sound. Near by the side of the skeleton, there was discovered another, which from its size, was evidently that of a man full grown—it was in a much better state of preservation and from relics found in close contact, where were a large metal button, some small ones, part of an iron box, which seemed to have been a tobacco box—it was manifest that it was the skeleton of the teacher. Several other smaller skeletons were discovered. The skeletons were found lying with feet and head in opposite directions.

I remember, when a youth, forty-five years ago, to hear it stated, that the teacher and scholars were all buried in the same grave, being put into a large, rudely constructed box, with their clothing on, as they were found after being murdered.—The relics found proved the truth of the tradition. The foul murder was perpetrated by the Indians, in August 1764, (July 26, i. d. r.) just 79 years before the exhumation took place. The name of the teacher was Brown, and three of the scholars were said to be named Taylor, Hart and Hale.

The relics above mentioned are now in the possession of those who were present when they were found. Some of the citizens of Greencastle and vicinity, to render sacred, and perpetuate this spot, where lies the bones of the innocent victims of Indian ferocity, design in the course of the ensuing summer, to raise a mound upon it, and inscribe its history upon a stone, to be placed at the side. Some of the remains of the school house still exist and mark the place of its location. It was truly a solitary one, and would be considered so at this day. It was situated on the brow of a hill. In the front of it, there is a ravine, deep and dismal—on the north and west, the surrounding hills are covered with a thick growth of underwood and pine. At the foot of the hill issues a clear spring, where rest in silence the bones and dust of the murdered school. A. B. RANKIN.

WILL OF A VIRGINIA UNION MAN.—The Richmond Journal of March 9th contains the following curious extract taken from the will of the late Horace L. Kent, lately a resident of the city:

"To my daughter—who has done so much to alienate my affections, but who I still deeply and tenderly love, I give as an evidence of the beauties of her doctrines of secession and rebellion, doctrines and aims which have reduced me from affluence to beggary, and as she yet thinks perhaps that 'The Last Cause' will be regained, she may think my request as valuable, more so, possibly, than the same amount given in Yankee securities. I give her the following viz: Twenty-five Confederate bonds of K. P. & Co., $25,000; eighteen servants emancipated by secession, $10,000; insurance and bank stocks, $15,000; all my claim against the so-called Confederate Government for the wanton, cruel and wicked destruction of my property on the 3d of April, 1865, $20,000. I could continue the list to the extent of more than half a million of dollars, but the above will suffice. She will see what the effects of secession has been, but for which I could have left all my children a handsome competency."

Grace Greenwood thus writes on the "Woman Question": "If I had the framing of the law, only such women should be allowed to vote as had sewing machines, and knew how to use them; no woman could have a vote who could not read and write; who was not able to cast up her millinery accounts, and cut them down; who could not make a loaf of bread, a pudding, sew on a button, wash dishes, and, on a pinch, keep a boarding house, and support a husband decently."

Col. J. L. Ritchie, Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, has appointed Harry Strickler, Esq., of Greencastle, his Clerk. A clever appointment.

Local News.

To OUR PATRONS.—In addition to our usual expenses during last year this office incurred a heavy indebtedness in the procurement of a new press and material, the bulk of which indebtedness falls upon us next spring, and the object of our present writing is to bring this fact clearly before patrons in arrears, either to large or small amounts. For the outlay we ask nothing but prompt payment of what is due, the subscription and advertising rates remaining the same as before the enlargement. We therefore intend this as an earnest appeal for payment on the part of ALL in arrears. It would be difficult for us in the midst of a throng season to draw off the accounts of individual subscribers living in distant parts of the country. They have an idea as to the amount of their indebtedness and can enclose the money, a check or P. O. order through the mail; where doubts exist as to the amount they can give us the benefit of them by sending enough, which will be properly placed to their credit. This notice, or their failure to comply with it, will tell us who our "dead heads" are.

Col. J. L. Ritchie, Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, has appointed Harry Strickler, Esq., of Greencastle, his Clerk. A clever appointment.

SITE FOR A PAPER MILL.—Mr. DAVID PATTERSON having sometime since engaged in the Milling business at Pittston, Pa., offers for sale, we understand, his valuable Mill property, on the Antietam, near this place. The improvements, including a fine brick Merchant Mill, are not perhaps excelled in this section of Franklin county. It has also the advantage of a most excellent water power, and is situated in the heart of a wheat-growing section which may be said in this respect to be almost unrivaled. With the necessary elements in abundance—water and material—it might be turned to profitable account by capitalists investing in it as a site for the manufacture of paper. The shortest and most feasible line for the proposed Branch Railroad, and therefore the one most likely to be adopted, passes near the buildings, which would make it still more desirable as a site for the manufacture of paper. A gentleman of more than ordinary business experience impressed us with this idea the other day in the course of a conversation with him, and hence this brief "local." Perhaps some one among our readers better posted as to this particular branch of manufactures will furnish us something more practical on the subject.

R. R. SURVEYS.—Mr. Gitt, Engineer, on Monday last finished running a second line from this place to the Western Maryland Railroad, making the connections two and a half and three miles North of Smithburg. The distance by either will be about six miles. He is now engaged in running a line from the Summit North. The probabilities are that a connection in this direction would make a longer road by three to five miles. His report which will be completed in a few days after finishing the surveys, will, however, set at rest all surmising on this point.

LOCAL OPTION.—Under the Special Local Option law passed for Shippensburg that borough voted last Friday on the question whether licenses to sell liquor within its limits should be granted by the Courts. The question was determined in the negative by a strong majority and Shippensburg must do without taverns for a while.

From the information we have been able to gather, we feel sure that a general Local Option law will be passed for the State, and Chambersburg will have the chance to vote on this question next October.—Spirit.

TOWNSHIP ELECTION.—The following gentlemen were elected on Friday last to fill, for the ensuing year, the respective township offices:

Judge, Simon Lecron; Inspector, Henry Walter; Assessor, Jno. Harbaugh, Jr.; Constable, Henry Henicle; School Directors, Samuel Frantz, James H. Clayton, Aaron Funk; Supervisors, Daniel Potter, Geo. V. Mong, John Rodgers, Jopathan Heffer; Auditor, Peter Rouzer; Treasurer, Daniel H. Garver; Clerk, John Price, Jr.

SEEN AGAIN.—A gentleman from Park Hill informs us that Messrs. Nathaniel Churchman and Jonathan Bowman on Tuesday night a week were confronted by that strange "animal." This time it is represented as appearing about the size of a yearling calf. The parties are said to have been as badly frightened as Mr. Hoke's "nag," and of course beat a 2-40 retreat. Our informant says Bowman's first leap was only excelled by that of Sam Patch.

BE CHEERFUL.—Emerson says: "Do not hang a dismal picture on your wall, and do not deal with sables and glooms in your conversation." Talmage takes up the strain: "Some people have an idea that they comfort the afflicted when they groan over them. Don't drive a hearse through a man's soul. When you bind up a broken bone of the soul, and you want splints, do not make them of cast iron." After such counselings and admonitions, lay aside your long faces.

QUINCY ELECTION.—The election in Quincy Township resulted in the choice of the following persons:

Judge, David M. Lowery; Inspectors, H. M. Small, J. S. Small; Supervisors, Alexander Johnson, Henry Rowe; School Director, Samuel Essick, Geo. Cook; Assessor, J. R. Smith; Constable, Calvin Kroma; Auditor, Wm. Slaughenaupt; Township Clerk, Geo. W. Beaty.

DECEASED.—Mr. JOHN J. IRVIN, whose illness we noticed last week, expired on Friday evening. An examination revealed the fact that his death was caused by cancer in the stomach. Mr. I. was an enterprising and much esteemed citizen. An unusually large concourse of friends and acquaintances accompanied his remains to the M. E. Church burying ground on Sunday afternoon.

Now is the time to decide the long mooted question—"Which is the mother of the chick, the hen that laid the egg, or the one that hatched it?" Can't the Pikesville Debating Society decide the matter?

We are willing to receive payment from any of our friends who may owe for subscription, advertising or job printing, and expect to continue in this frame of mind for some time.

The old ladies say that water obtained from snow on or after the 17th instant (Saint Patrick's Day in the morning) will be good for sore eyes.

BARNUM'S GREAT SHOW.—The other day we received a Circular from P. T. Barnum, the renowned Showman, at the bottom of which he stated in a note, that his great traveling Museum, Menagerie, Caravan, Hippodrome, Polytechnic Institute, and International Zoological Garden, in which he has One Million of Dollars invested, will probably visit our town during the spring or early summer. He has added some remarkable novelties to his establishment, among these are his Fiji Cannibals, his Sea Lions, and his Riding Goat Alexis. We copy the following from the New York Tribune of Feb. 24:

"A private exhibition was given yesterday by four Fiji Island cannibals, at room No. 14 Astor House, under the auspices of Mr. Barnum to 150 friends. He has obtained three of these natives by depositing $15,000 with the American Consul as security for their return in August, 1874, to Thokambau, the king of the largest of the Fiji Islands. In the event of their return they are to suffer death, and possibly will be eaten alive by piece-meal, according to cannibal custom. Mr. Barnum, however, disclaims any intention of sending them back to satisfy the demands of Fiji justice. A woman, who had been educated to this country, through the agency of the Missionary Society. She read passages yesterday from a copy of the Bible printed in the Fiji Islands. The captives were liberally daubed with paint, and displayed ostrich and peacock feathers on their heads. They performed war dances to the accompaniment of monotonous songs. The dwarf, Ra Biau, who has the most fierce and treacherous aspect of them all, varied the entertainment by playing on a flute through his nose. The tune was as enlivening as variation on two notes could possibly be. Mr. Barnum has lost none of his customary zeal in providing rare and expensive novelties for the patrons of his last great achievement. His Sea Lions, living Giraffes riding goat "Alexis," Black Leopard, Abyssinian Vulture, Zerk, Moving Musical and Mechanical Automations, and last, though not least, the four Fiji Cannibals, and the Museum Collection of Curiosities from the South Sea Islands, are sufficient of themselves to make a great show. But these are only few of the many thousands of extremely rare and recherche attractions with which this show proposes to regale his customers throughout the country during the traveling season of 1872."

Mr. George Small, of Small's Mill, Quincy township, met with a fatal accident in the mill on Thursday morning, the 7th inst. About 3 o'clock he got out of bed to put some lard in his lamp, and while doing so he set his clothes on fire, and burned himself fatally. He died on Saturday evening following. He suffered greatly, but bore it with patience. He was 58 years old, unmarried and wealthy, and was noted for his strict integrity.—Repository.

CLOSED.—The Brewery of Mr. A. D. Gordon in this place was closed one day last week by Geo. J. Balsley, revenue officer, for alleged infraction of the revenue laws. We understand the difficulty lies in this: Mr. Gordon could not procure fifty cent stamps and used twenty-five cent ones in their stead.

DENTISTRY.—From the amount of Dental work executed by Dr. A. K. Branisholts since his location in our midst we feel warranted in recommending him to all persons in want of the services of a good Dentist. Few operators anywhere are better qualified to perform all operations known to the profession.

The Pennsylvania Conference of the United Brethren Church, which recently met at Duncannon, appointed the Rev. W. T. Lower, as pastor of the Chambersburg Church, and the Rev. J. C. Smith as Presiding Elder of the Chambersburg District.

SADDLES.—For style, variety and prices, the stock of saddles now offered for sale by W. P. Weagley, is not excelled in the county. Persons wanting saddles should go and see for themselves.

REMARKABLE COLORED MAN.—One of the most remarkable colored men of the time is said to be John Lynch, the Speaker of the Mississippi House of Representatives. He is not over twenty-three, and could not read at the time of the capture of Natchez by the Union forces. Having received his first lessons of one of the American Missionary Association teachers, a Northern lady, he has been so diligent as to have acquired a fair general English education and a tolerably good acquaintance with law. His character stands unblemished, and his habits of study and attention to business are such that a distinguished career may with certainty be predicted for him. He excels as a presiding officer.

A Saloon keeper named Holmes, in Galva, Ill., was on a continuous drunk for days, during which time his horses were left to starve in a barn well stored with hay. COMMUNICATED.

Done Giving.

"I have done giving," was the answer of a man to me when asked to contribute to one of the benevolent purposes of the church of which he is a member.

Done giving! what a subject for reflection and thought. Done giving? have you indeed given all you have to give? Come, brother, let us reason this matter among us. Has the disciple done what his master did? was he rich, and has he become poor so that others through his poverty have become rich? Oh no, brother, you have more of this world's goods today than you had one year ago. You have an abundance—more than enough for your support. Your children have plenty, you have in no way impoverished yourself. You are, through the favor of Providence, full of this world's wealth; your barns are not emptied by giving—they are full; you are successful in business; the Lord gives lavishly to you; you are his steward; can you say, I have done giving, and thus honor your master? He says, behold, all these or mine. At His coming he will ask you to return the talent given you, with usury.

Why, my brother, is there no longer any to whom you need to give? are all the hungry ones fed? are the naked all clothed? have all had the gospel preached unto them? is there a Bible in every house in our own land? Do nations no longer sit in darkness? Have the glorious tidings of "Peace on earth, good will to men" been published everywhere? Do men no longer worship gods made with their own hands? Are the swords all turned into plow shares and spears into pruning hooks? Does one band of brotherhood bind all nations, and kindreds, and tongues, and do men learn the art of war no more? Is the wail of the orphan no longer heard? do the widow's tears no longer flow? has the cup of gladness everywhere taken the place of the cup of sorrow? Have you nothing to do with all these things? Yes, you are one of the Lord's husbandmen; the fields are white unto the harvest. As your deeds are, so shall your reward be. "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord." God is a good banker, and your checks are never protested at His counter, if you have funds there. "He who giveth a cup of cold water to one of these little ones in the name of a disciple, shall have his reward."

By your charity you may lay up treasures in heaven. "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thy hand, for thou knowest not, oh man, which shall prosper." And now, my brother, are you done giving? If you cease to give will you grow rich? Yes, you may increase the amount of "yellow dirt" or rustling paper; you may, like Shylock, claim the bond, but remember you will be called into judgment. You are done giving because others do not give; you think they should; for shame, because you think others niggards, will you be a niggard too? Think again, brother. Remember the example of your Lord, how He went about doing good. Yes, brother, continue to give as the Lord prospers you. "Let not your left hand know what your right hand doeth." Benevolence is the hot-house of grace. "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world." D. B.
