Ex-Governor Curtin is ill in New York.

The magnificent Masonic temple, now being built at Philadelphia, and which is to be dedicated June 24, 1873, will cost $1,000,000. This amount has nearly all been raised on the simple pledge of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, which is reckoned to be the richest organization of the kind in the United States.
The old elm tree under which Washington took command of the armies of the United States is still standing in Cambridge, Mass., with an iron railing around its ancient trunk and a granite monument beneath its branches, but it is beginning to show the effect of old age. Last week one of its largest branches, measuring upward of thirty feet in length and a foot in diameter, fell to the ground. The venerable tree will soon disappear with other relics of the revolutionary period.
Huge Mars, the accomplice of James Dougherty and Neil McLaughlin in the assassination of Detective Jas. Brooks, the assassin of Alderman M. Mullin, and the participant in many other crimes, is again in custody. He had a hearing on Friday afternoon, at which Alderman McMullen appeared and identified him as the assassin. On default of bail, which was fixed at $10,000 he was remanded to prison. Alderman John Buck made the arrest. He has applied for the reward for the apprehension and conviction Mars, of $2,500.
Two important associations of men engaged in the production and manufacture of iron have held a meeting in Pittsburg and resolved to advance the price of iron to $4 a ton and of nails a quarter of a dollar a keg. The advance is made solely on the ground that the demand for the article over-runs the supply. The mills and foundries are running at the top of their speed, and the iron interest never was so prosperous as at present. There has been a decided advance in iron everywhere, and great hesitation is observed in making contracts. Buyers hope for lower rates, and producers fear they cannot fill contracts at rates for which they can be placed. The advance in the price of coal in England, the increased wages of men employed in mining or in foundries, the enhanced cost of producing iron—all these causes have unsteadied the market and have brought about an advance in prices which is most encouraging to iron-masters. For the first time in many years, in fact in all the years of their enterprise, they find not only an unusual demand for their products, but prices which make the furnace stocks fairly blaze with joy. There is no doubt that the iron interest of the country is rapidly growing into most commanding proportions, and those familiar with it predict a prosperity such as the world has not seen.
A horrible murder was perpetrated in Baltimore on Tuesday a week. Mrs. Amelia Wheat was a lady of eighty years residing at 664 West Lombard street, a few doors above Mount street. She possessed considerable wealth, and her heir was understood to be her nephew, Jesse Uppercue, twenty-two years of age, a graduate of St. John's College, and a student of Law, who with his mother and sister resided in the same house. About two o'clock on Tuesday morning the sharp report of a pistol was heard in the room of Mrs. Wheat. The cry of murder was raised by Uppercue, from the front door, and upon inspection, Mrs. Wheat's body was found lying on the bed, with a pistol shot through the temple. She had apparently died without a struggle. The room was in disorder. The only statement purporting to give a clue is that of young Uppercue himself. According to his declaration he was in his apartment, in the second story, when she called him to come in her room, saying that she felt nervous. He complied, and fell asleep. He was awakened by the report of a pistol; perceived a man retreating from the room, and followed him, firing two shots from his revolver at him, without apparent effect. From this statement the theory would be formed that robbers were the perpetrators of the crime. The testimony before the jury goes to discredit this supposition. An examination of the kitchen door through which the robbers are said to have entered, resulted in a distinct opinion from the officers who were on the premises, that the door had been forced open from the inside. Suspicion has fallen upon young Uppercue, but the coroner's jury thought the evidence insufficient to hold him for trial. The young man was, however, committed to prison to await the grand jury.

R. R. EXCURSIONISTS.—On Thursday last Col. D. V. Ahl, P. P. Dandridge, Chief Engineer on the Metropolitan Railroad, E. W. Mealy and Frederick Zeigler, Esqrs., arrived in this place, our friend Jos. S. Gitt, Civil Engineer, having arrived the evening before. After dinner the party accompanied by Joseph Douglas, Esq., started on a tour over the proposed H. & P. R. R. line. Mr. D. informs us that they examined the ore banks, iron works, paper mills, &c., on the route and that they were surprised and delighted, particularly with the evidences of mineral wealth in that region. About twenty-one miles of the H. & P. R. R. are graded, a portion of which is ballasted. The country in an agricultural point of view is represented as unsurpassed. A corps of engineers will run the line between this place and Hagerstown, referred to in our last issue, next week, which will be continued to Clevensburg by Mr. Gitt.
Of this visit we will give a more extended account in our next issue.

—This week The Banner of Liberty, published at Libertytown Frederick county, Md., by J. S. L. Rodrick, Esq. reaches us in a new dress and enlarged form.—In size and general appearance it compares favorably with its country cotemporaries. Its enterprising publisher merits a liberal support.
—FAST WORK.—A correspondent informs the Public Opinion that Mr. John Shoemaker commenced threshing at Mr. James W. The work was done with Geiser's celebrated grain separator—horse power. This is certainly fast work and hard to beat.
—PARTIDGER.—We understand parties have recently been seen in this vicinity hunting partidges. A two story weatherboarded dwelling house on the West side of Leistersburg St. was also sold for $1375. Purchaser, McCarty.
—SUMMER COMPLAINT.—As this is the season when almost everybody suffers from this distressing malady, we reprint the following recipe for its cure, from the Wonnah Advance:—
"Take about one gill of rice and place it in a spider over the fire, stirring it constantly until thoroughly brown, fill the spider with boiling water and let it boil till the mass is of the consistency of thin paste. If the rice is not cooked perfectly soft, add a little more water and let it boil away again. Be careful at the last moment that it does not burn on the bottom. When cooked soft, turn into a bowl, sweeten with loaf or crushed sugar and salt to suit the taste. Eat in milk.—It is rarely necessary to repeat the dose."
The remedy possesses the three-fold merit of being simple, harmless and accessible to every family.

State Teachers' Association.
We often hear it said that the stability of a Republic depends upon the intelligence of the people. In a Monarchy the ignorance of the masses may be the bliss of the monarch, but not so in a government like ours. Here the problem of universal education is one of the greatest problems that we are called upon to solve, and hence everything bearing on the subject merits more or less attention. Connected with this problem are difficulties which can be removed only by the strength of united action and the wisdom of a "multitude of counsellors." Hence, the need of such organization as that which held its 19th Annual Convention in the Academy of Music, Phila., Aug. 20, 21 and 22, 1872. No pains were spared to make this Convention the largest and most successful one in the history of the Association. The programme of exercises was published in many of the newspapers of the State and all who read it need not be told that it was a good one. Of the many educational topics discussed, space will permit me to allude to but a few, and I shall try to select those that I think will be of most interest to the reader.
In his inaugural address, the Pres., Hon. Henry Houck, Dept. State Superintendent, after tracing the history of the Association (which, according to another speaker, was born in Phila., and is now being nursed by its mother) spoke of the educational advances made in late years, citing among other evidences of progress, the willingness of the people to be taxed for school purposes, the erection of better school houses and the increase of Teachers' salaries.—Your enterprising Borough might be offered as a striking illustration of the two latter heads, and it is, it may be hoped, no exception to the first. "The school tax is the best tax," says the motto. It is true.
The report of State Superintendent Wick-erham on the proposed monument to our distinguished educators was also a part of the first day's proceedings.—This interests every pupil in our schools and every Teacher in the State, from the fact that all are expected to contribute something toward the erection of the monument.—The plan is to ask every child to give 2 cents, every teacher 10 cents, and every Superintendent $1.00. More may, of course, be given by the parties if they choose, and contributions from other sources will not be refused.
Prof. Cartel, Pres. of Lafayette College, read a paper on the introduction of the Latin and Greek writings of Christian authors in our colleges, strongly favoring the idea. The college student's mind is, he argued, too much influenced at present by heathen authors.—Hence the sad results that so frequently follow a classical course of study. There should be an elementary course from Christian writers, and afterward the master pieces of the Greek and Latin language might be studied with less detriment to the morals of the student.
From an address on the compensation of Teachers, delivered by Edward Shipp, Esq., one of the school officials of Philadelphia, it appears that the average wages of Teachers in this state is about 50 cts. per day! Rather a sickly sign of "progress," but no doubt Mr. Shipp's arithmetic might be called in question. He made some statements in regard to the comparative daily earnings of Teachers and such intellectual beings as horses and oxen; and the inference seemed to be that the party suffering most by the comparison was not the ox, much less the horse! The battle is to the strong, muscle bears away the palm. But it will not always be thus—the stain will wipe out. Speed the day.
The co-education of the sexes was discussed by some of the leading educators of the State, but the sentiment was all—or very nearly all—on one side, the affirmative. Views have greatly changed on this question within the last twenty years. Eighteen years ago when the Teacher's Convention met at Pottsville, a vote was taken on the question, and the negative carried. At the late meeting in Philadelphia Supt. Wickersham moved to reconsider the vote of eighteen years ago, and this time the measure was sustained without a dissenting voice. The question as now discussed, does not have reference to putting boys and girls together in our common schools.—the propriety of doing this is admitted,—but it relates to the admission of women to our colleges on an equal footing with men. The idea of doing this seems to have originated among the society of Friends, and has already gained strength enough to break open the doors of some of the leading educational institutions in the land. The theoretical arguments heretofore urged against the measure seem to have been exploded by actual experiment.
Japan seems to be taking a great interest in the educational affairs of the New World. Mr. Mori, minister from that country, was present at the Association and made a report of the educational condition and needs of that densely populated part of our globe. Besides sending some of their young people over here to be educated, they have secured the services of Hon. B. G. Horthorp of Conn., who will go to Japan to show the inhabitants thereof what a Yankee school-master knows about education, language, religion, industrial pursuits, &c.
There were many pleasant features connected with late Teachers' gathering in Phila. Perhaps no class of workers stand more in need of a little recreation than do Teachers—especially those who are pent up in the school room for nine or ten months in the year. One advantage of the Association is that it enables the Teachers to enjoy this recreation,—to renew old friendships and form new acquaintances, to visit interesting sections of the country and see sights which would otherwise remain unvisited by them. Last year the northern part of the State, western New York and Niagara Falls were visited; this year Phila., the southwestern part of the State, central N. Jersey, Long Branch and "Old Ocean"; next year the Association will convene at Erie, in the northwestern part of the State on Lake Erie.

[COMMUNICATED.]
Something for the School Directors and citizens to think about.
The people often ask the question whether the Directors have authority to employ teachers without a valid certificate. I have quite recently heard it spoken of by the patrons of the township and borough schools. By a reference to the school law it will be seen that the employment of a teacher without a valid certificate is illegal, for the law expressly says "no teacher shall be employed in teaching any branch of learning other than those enumerated in his or her certificate." The very act of the Directors in employing a teacher without a valid certificate is unlawful for he is principal or subordinate teacher, because the act of employing a teacher without a certificate is certainly contrary to the letter and spirit of the school law; therefore the Directors cannot lawfully employ a teacher first and have him examined afterward, because the law positively forbids them to do so. The violation of the law consists in the act of employing teachers without a certificate and the law always looks on the intention of the Directors.
By a strict construction of the law no teacher has any right to teach in any school recognized as a public school in this commonwealth without a certificate setting forth his or her qualification.
Directors who think that teachers who hold College Diplomas are exempt from examination and can be employed to teach in our common schools without a valid certificate are surely mistaken in the construction of the law. It is the duty of every citizen who pays school tax to see that the Directors comply with the very letter and spirit of the law, if they neglect or refuse to comply with the requirement of the law let citizens remonstrate and report such proceedings to the school department.
The citizens have a perfect right to demand of the Directors that every teacher who is not exempt from an examination by the law be subjected to a public and not a private examination by the County Superintendent.
It is not complying with the law to subject our teachers who teach the primary schools to the exciting ordeal of a public examination and allow others to teach the higher branches without being examined at all. Directors sometimes make a great mistake when they employ teachers on personal recommendation without ever thinking that a good certificate is the safest guide in selecting teachers in regard to professional standing and skill in the art of teaching.—Whenever Directors wish to have some of the teachers whom they have employed examined privately, they should have the law made to require that such examination be conducted by the County Superintendent.

Three hundred boats have already been built to compete for the prize. So far, none of them have succeeded, and a magnificent reward for the successful inventor.
