Select Poetry.

[COMMUNICATED. One Hundred Years Ago.]

PEOPLE WILL TALK.

You may get through the world but 'twill
be very slow,
If you listen to all that is said as you go :
You'll be worried and fretted, and kept, in a stew,
For medlesome tongues will have something to do.

For people will talk.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed.

That your humble position is only assumed,

You're a wolf in sheep's clothing, or else
you're a fool ;

But don't get excited, keep perfectly cool,
For people will talk.

If generous and noble, they'll vent out their spleen ;

You'll hear some loud hints that you're mean and selfish ;

If upright, honest, and fair as the day,
They'll call you a rogue in a sly, sneaking way.

For people will talk.

And then if you show the least boldness of heart,
Or a slight inclination to take your own part,

They will call you an upstart, conceited
and vain ;

But keep straight ahead, don't stop to explain,
For people will talk.

If threadbare your dress, or old-fashioned your hat,

Some one will surely take notice of that,

And hint rather strongly you can't pay your way ;

But don't get excited, whatever they say,
For people will talk.

If you dress in the fashion, don't think to escape,

For they criticise then in a different shape You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid ;

But mind your own business there's naught
to be made,

For people will talk.

Now the best way to do is to do as you please ;

For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease.

Of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse ;

But don't think to stop them—'twill be of no use ;

For people will talk.

Miscellaneous Reading.

Peter Cartwright.

The Western Christian Advocate

says: As a mere antique, we shall miss him. He died only week before last, but he was older than the photograph, the Protestant Episcopal Prayer Book,

the American Post Office, the telegraph,

our oldest railway, ocean steamers, and the Constitution of the United States.

He was cotemporary to John Wesley,

George Washington, John Hancock, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, Henr'y

Clay, James Madison, John Randolph,

Roger Sherman, Richard Henry Lee, and other shining names. He came into the world before Abraham Lincoln, Stephen

A. Douglas, Theodore Frelinghuysen, Edward

Everett, and others who made their records long ago. When he was born, the Union had but thirteen States; it was still under the articles of Confederation, and the Continental Congress was in session in New York. When the first census was taken, five years after his birth, the country had a population of less than 4,000,000.

His long life of 87 years seems a short one, but the period is more golden than the seventy five years that witnessed the invention of printing, the mariner's compass, gunpowder and the Reformation.

The period bounded by 1785 and 1872 has no rival in history, and Peter Cartwright's life spanned it all. He died as old as the Republic, and all his labor was given to Methodism, that mainstay of the Reformist cause.

At Cartwright's birth John Wesley was still living. When he was converted in 1801 the American Methodist Church had less than 73,000 members, and the whole world had less Methodists than are now within the patronizing territory of the Northwestern. Long before his decease, in 1872, the world had 3,000,000 Wesleyans and a Methodist constituency of over 12,- 000,000.

His life has been entirely refited and re-furnished in every department, and under the supervision of the present proprietors, no effort will be spared to deserve a liberal share of patronage.

Their tables will be spread with the best of the Market affords, and their Bar will always contain the choicest Liquors.

The favor of the public solicited.

ROMANCE OF THE WAR.—One Colonel

Washington, a wealthy planter living near Nashville, Tenn., was rescued from a mob of drunken soldiers, whom he had offended, by Col. Downey, of Tiffin, Ohio, to whose regiment the troops belonged.

Downey has since died, leaving a widow and family in poverty. Washington also died recently, and in his will, it is stated, made a bequest to the widow and children of Downey to the value of $10,000.

Gratitude has still a home in the human breast, as is evinced by this generous deed.

Let us take as much pains in the development of our children as does the nursery man or the gardener with his trees and plants, "which are but for a moment." There are now good books published which give designs of churches, school houses and dwellings. Ample space for play ground (2 acres) with swings, ladders, ball paddles, race ground, marble grounds, if not blocks with which infants can exercise constructiveness, should
