BANK ROBBERY.—The First National Bank of Anthens, Pa., was robbed on Monday a week by five men who seized and bound the cashier. Twenty thousand dollars were taken, mostly special deposits. While the cashier was working athis desk about 10:30 p. m. five men came in and gagged and handcuffed him. The vault doors and inner safe being open, the robbers secured everything that was therein and escaped. The cashier was found on the floor of the back office at 6 o'clock next morning not hurt, but in a state of nervous exhaustion.

The Associated Press courier, who carried the report of the Modoc execution from fort Klamath to the telegraph station at Jacksonville, Oregon, rode a distance of ninety-two miles in six hours and fifty-five minutes, over a mountain road of more than the usual roughness, employing only three well selected horses for the journey. The last forty-two miles he accomplished in exactly two hours, beating his principal competitor by thirty minutes, and getting control of the wire, which was necessarily occupied in the transmission of the Associated Press report until it was too late to forward any other.

THE BURIAL OF THE MODOCS,-The correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin thus describes the scene immediately following the Modocs' execution:

"Having dispatched my message, remained behind to witness the closing cenes of the tragedy. In exactly half an hour from the falling of the drop, the bodies of the hanged were cut down, and placed in their coffins, which were then removed to the blacksmith's tent; where the shackles, which had partly been disengaged, were entirely removed, and the remains put in decent order for burial. Only the necks of Captain Jack and Black Jim were found to have been broken. I saw strands of the rope with which Jack was hanged, and locks of his hair shorn off as perquisites by the executioners, sold as high as five dollars apiece. While this was done the troops were removed from the grounds by companies and dismissed. After that the remains were taken to the graves which had been dug for them at the west side of the guard house, and the interment completed. The Klamath Indians, about five hundred or six hundred in number, were marshaled in column by their sub-chief David Hill, and moved away. "Some, probably relatives of the victims, appeared stricken with grief, and filled the air with their mournful wailing. The proclamation is issued thus far in advance to give the opportunity to Governors of the several states to designate the same day, so as to avoid conflicting appointments such as were made by some of the Governors last years. The President in his proclamation says:

"Abundant harvests have been among the rewards of industry. With local exceptions health has been among the blessings rejoiced in. Tranquility at home and peace with other nations have prevailed. Frugal industry is regaining its merited recognition and its merited rewards.-Gradually, but under the providence of God surely, as we trust, the nation is recovering from the lingering result of a dreadful civil-strife. For these and all other mercies vouchsafed, it becomes us as a people to return heartful acknowledgments, and with our thanksgiving for blessings we may unite prayers for the cessation of local and temporary suffer-

The reckless slaughter of buffaloes on the plains continues, and the borders of Kansas and Nebraska are dotted with carcasses from which not a pound of meet has been taken. The skinners, as they are called, go in parties from two to ten in number, and destroy whole herds with their repeating rifles. Two men who were met recently on the line of the Kansas Pacific, stated that they had killed and skinned four hundred huffilees on two small creeks not twenty miles long. Over a thousand pounds of meet is left to rot upon the praries for every animal slain, and the price of each raw hide is a dollar and a quarter only. It is evident that measures must be taken to stop this wicked waste of valuable food, or the buffalo will soon be exterminated. The Indian who kills the white man's cattle, and that is about the first move in an Indian war justifies himself by the slaughter of the buffalo on which he relies for animal food during the winter, and protection from the

THE NEW SCHOOL HOUSE.—A correscondent sends us the following for publi-

"We have once before this time, referred to the heautiful new school house erected on Funk's hill, a little distance west of Waynesboro'. We cannot omit to mention pros and cons about this house after we give a little educational of the school system for twenty-five years past. This fall 25 years ago, it was decided that a school house be built at the Antietam meeting house, known as Price's Church -2 miles from Waynesboro'. The free school system of 1834 was then in force. In February 1849 John P. Farmer, vet eran teacher, (long since deceased) opened school in this house, taught 2 winters and 2 summers. That school is widely scattered. Some have gone to an Eternal home. Fond memory loves to linger on 'Das schule house on der grick."

The skating on the ice formed from the spring water, the beautiful grove of ash, oak, hickory, elm, &c., in which we roamed playing "fox and hound," the church to which we repaired to hear funeral sermons the grave yard where we learned our destiny, and the stream which forms a branch of the famous Antitam, are all pleasing mental pictures of by-gone days. Ned. Flanagan an old teacher, taught in 1851 and '52. John F, Stamy, of Lees this place for a recent delightful evening | X Roads, Cum. Co. Pa., (now a Dunker minister) taught in 1852 and '53. David Robinson, a mormon now residing in Utah, taught in 1853 and '54. I think that Mr. Solomon Stamy and Mr. Kelly together taught 4 years, while Rachel Kreeger taught during Summer, now consort of Rev. A. Stamy of Dry Creek Iowa. In the year 1854 the very unpopular office of County Superintendency was established with Mr. McDowell as its first officer for Franklin county. Though 25 years old there have been school houses erected since then in this township which were not so good as this, especially in the height of the ceiling, and were it tested night outlast some of those which were lately erected. Many of your readers will regret to learn that the old school house may now be torn down. Some of the matriculates are in the ministerial office, some in the medical profession, while others may be practicing law. The seeds sown in that house are producing fruiteither good or bad. From the year 1857 to 1861, the school was in charge of J. F. Boult, (then just from Iowa) who, having fich come in contact with yankee educational tio deas, was one of the most progressive and successful teachers employed. The mechanics of Altoona know better how to appreciate his skill-paying better wages for his services—than did the men who held the rule over the public schools of this vicinity. Mr. B. has left the school in charge of persons who do not feel a deep solicitude for the welfare of their pupils further than the green backs which they collect monthly, whose stay in the professional ranks are short, at low salaries. We omit 12 years of the history of this school and speak of the present. Through the influence of Mr. Harry C. Funk, upon whose farm the new building now

During the afternoon the mother went into the room and lett Joseph a boy aged about ten years, and the little girl together in another room. In this apartment was a revolver, which the boy unfortunately got hold of. He commenced to fool with it, and had cocked it, while he had the barrel pointed towards his sister's head. He pulled the hammer. and the cartringe was exploted, the bullet entering the child's head, penetrating the brain. The mother heard the report of the revolver and came rushing into the chamber, only to find her child laying senseless upon the floor, weltering in her still warm life blood, with her brains oozing from the wound in its head. The boy stood aghast at the result of his carelessness, and the mother, almost crazed, clapsed her dying darling in her arms and laid it upon the bed.
