Mrs. E. M. Stanton, widow of the ex-Secretary of war, died last week, near Philadelphia.

The Memphis Appeal sums up the mortality of that city from fever pestilence at two thousand.

The General Shrinkage, of whom we hear so much now-a-days, is the offspring of General Speculation.

S. S. Mallory, Secretary of the Navy of the Confederacy during the war, died at Pensacola, Florida, last week.

The New York Times predicts that before long currency will be a glut, and four per cent. be considered a high rate of interest.

The London Telegraph says: "Reasons of policy and humanity, would lead England to favor the annexation of Cuba to the United States."

Rosenzweig, the abortionist, convicted of complicity in the death of Alice Bowley and sentenced to the penitentiary in New York, was discharged last week by Judge Sutherland. "Technicalities of the law" did it.

Hon John P. Hale, of New Hampshire, died at Dover, in that State, last Wednesday a week.

The funeral took place at Dover, N. H., on Saturday. There was a marked observance of the occasion. Stores were closed and bells tolled from 2 to 4 o'clock, P. M.

Lycoming County is getting up a reputation for deeds of crime. A few days ago Wade expiated his guilt of murder on the scaffold; about twelve days ago another murder was committed, and now we are informed that on Wednesday last the dead body of a murdered man aged about 50 years was found in the vicinity of Williamsport, Lycoming county.

REMARKABLE LONGEVITY.—One of the most remarkable families, says the Charleston, W. Va., Spirit, in point of longevity that we know of is the Wyong family of this county. Four brothers, all raised in Shepherdstown, are now living, and are aged respectively, as follows: Joseph, living in Ohio, ninety-one years; Isaac, residing in Frederick city, Md., eighty-five years; Lewis, aged seventy-six, and John, aged seventy-three, still living near Shepherdstown.

Eli Howard, colored, of Baltimore, and who was about 45 years of age, will never drink any more whiskey. On Wednesday evening of last week he proposed to a comrade named Waters, to drink a quart of whiskey if the latter would pay for it. The proposition was accepted and Howard drank the quart of whiskey in less than half an hour. Shortly after he was taken home, singing on the way. "The old man's drunk again," and before midnight he was a corpse. The coroner's verdict was that Howard came to his death from the effects of drinking a quart of whiskey.

A New Hampshire paper thus illustrates the importance of prompt payments of small debts in these "hard" times, and the amount of indebtedness which a few dollars will discharge, when put in circulation:

In Dover, on Thursday, a one hundred dollar bill actually paid debts amounting to $1000, and within eight hours returned to the man who first paid it out in the morning. It happened that A owed B $100. He paid it. B owed C $100, so he paid the bill over to him. Thus it went, and the ninth gentleman to whom it was paid, happening to owe A $100, paid it over to him, so that it paid all these debts and came back to its original owner. This is a fact.

The second trial of W. M. Tweed "Boss" of the Tammany ring of thieves, resulted on Wednesday a week in his conviction on all points, comprising fifty-five claims and two hundred and four counts. The counsel of W. M. Tweed could not induce any judge in New York to grant a stay of proceedings, and on Saturday he was sentenced to pay a fine of $12,750 and be imprisoned for twelve years in the city jail. The offense of which he was convicted being only a misdemeanor, Mr. Tweed escaped the penitentiary. If he lives to serve out his term in jail, however, it is to be hoped that he will come out a wiser, and better man.

PRICES COMING DOWN.—The New York Mail says: "Undoubtedly the financial panic and the consequent stringency in the money market will have the effect of bringing down the price of most of the necessities of life. People will feel more like cheapening things and getting, when where they cost least, and this will make competition sharper and profits smaller. That there is room for shrinkage nobody in the class of purchasers will deny. The extravagant and reckless spirit which has prevailed during the flush times of inflated values and fictitious fortunes has enabled all sorts of tradesmen to demand and obtain exorbitant prices, and to dream of making a fortune instead of merely making a living."

The panic is not without its blessing. It has suspended the boaring of life insurance agents.

Ladies can get a month's steady squeezing for 50 cents—by buying a low priced corset.

REVIVAL.—A revival of religion has been in progress in the M. E. Church since Sunday a week.

Pay us half the amount you owe us if you cannot pay all. "Half a loaf is better than no bread."

Rev. Dr. Higbee, of Mercersburg, preached in St. Paul's Reformed Church last Sunday, morning and evening.

The property of Jacob Stouffer & Son, who recently failed, near Chambersburg, has been appraised at $178,000.

During the meeting of the Teachers' County Institute next week the public schools in our town and township will be closed.

A communication from our Philadelphia correspondent, J. Ralph Halde-man, on the new Constitution, will appear in our next issue.

THANKSGIVING.—Union services in Trinity Reformed Church this (Thursday) morning. Sermon by Rev. John Donahue, of the M. E. Church.

DEAD BEAT.—John Keppeler, of Adams county has failed to pay his dues for subscription at this office. We therefore consign his name to our "black list."

There exists in every community and Waynesboro has its full share, those scrofulous excrescences of society, tale bearers, and they must be tolerated for the same reason as toads and lizards, because God made them.

As we write—Tuesday morning—snow flakes are flying in the air, and other appearances are most threatening. We would wish it otherwise, but the outlook points unmistakably to an early commencement of winter.

Those who failed to repair their pavements or put down new ones during the past season are now in a muddy plight. Serves them right. They ought to "mire" as often as they venture beyond their thresholds.

The Trinity Reformed Sunday School of this place will hold a Christmas Festival on the night of Christmas Day. Several friends from a distance are expected to be present and take part in the exercises. Further announcements will be given in the Record hereafter.

FLORAL GUIDE.—We are in receipt of the first number of Vick's Floral Guide for 1874. It is handsomely embellished and contains a full catalogue of all the various flower and vegetable seeds. 200 pages; 500 engravings, and colored plate. Published quarterly, at 25 cents a year. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

GOOD ARTICLE.—We have tried the Rev. Jacob Snider's preparation for softening and preserving leather, and find it an excellent article for that purpose. It answers equally as well for harness as it does for boots and shoes. Call at his store room, Oellig building, and get a box.

CURIOUS.—Mr. G. V. Mong last week exhibited to us a curiosity in the shape of an apple, second bearing, a little larger than an egg. It is nothing uncommon for fruit trees to bloom the second time, but we have no recollection of seeing any fruit produced as large as the specimen to which reference is here made.

SNOW AND RAIN.—We had a regular snow storm about noon on Sunday, which was followed with a succession of rain showers up to noon on Monday. The earth at this writing is thoroughly soaked, and cisterns, etc., are full to overflowing. Millers, washerwomen, and the like, need not complain of a scarcity of water for some time to come.

SUSPENSION.—The Geiser Manufacturing Company of this place have suspended business operations. We are gratified to learn, however, that their suspension is only temporary.

Messrs. Frick & Co. have reduced the number of workmen, and are now working five days per week and eight hours per day. We understand their orders are ample for them to run full handed, but, like many similar establishments, owing to the deranged state of financial affairs, they are unable to do so, for the present, at least.

THE NEW HALL.—We believe the finishing stroke was last week put upon the Odd Fellows new Hall. In height the building is full three stories. It presents a handsome appearance inside as well as outwardly, and certainly reflects credit upon the builders, the Waynesboro Manufacturing Company. The store room on the first floor, which is to be occupied by Messrs. Stover & Wolf, for size, beauty of finish and convenience, is perhaps not surpassed in the county. It is an ornament to East Main Street and one of the finest improvements in our town.

The Quincy case.—We learn from reliable authority that the parties to whom the stomach and other organs of the late Mrs. Dr. Hess, of Quincy, were entrusted for analysis, report the discovery of poison, (strychnine) from which of course it must be presumed her death was caused.

If the reports in circulation are worthy of any credence, whatever, it will next be determined whether the case was one of suicide or murder, and if the latter, by whose hands the poison was administered. We confess to a surprise at this result of the investigation, having all the while taken a more charitable view of the case, which was that the deceased died from natural causes. This revelation however removes all doubts upon the subject, and no other conclusion can be arrived at than that either a suicide has been committed or a foul murder perpetrated at Quincy.

We observe that, in a number of towns and cities, the clergymen of the various denominations have called upon their congregations to organize sewing circles, for the benefit of the poor. This mode of helping to alleviate distress might also, with great propriety, and probably with excellent results, be adopted here.

FREED DEAD.—Mrs. Adam Spidal, of Fayetteville, while engaged in cleaning house, on Saturday morning last fell over upon the floor and expired shortly afterward. She leaves a husband and several grown up children to mourn her sudden departure. She was aged about sixty years.—Opinion.

The Johnstown Steelworks resumed operations last week. It is no less gratifying to learn that other important works, that had suspended, have again resumed operations. Surely the financial outlook is improving.

The work of rebuilding the Antietam paper mill, which was burned down last summer, near Hagerstown, is progressing rapidly.

MURDER.—From the Harrisburg Telegraph we gather the following additional particulars of the murder committed near Middletown, Dauphin county, on Friday a week, the victim being Mr. Abraham Behm:

Two colored men entered the barn and came up behind him, one took the hatchet and struck him in the back of the head with it, while the other struck him with a club, causing, as one report has it, instant death, while another report states that there was evidence of a fearful struggle.

The housekeeper noticed the men going to the barn, and as they remained an unusually long time she suspected that all was not right, and took the dinner horn and proceeded to sound an alarm for the purpose of notifying the neighbors. As soon as the outlaws heard the sound of the horn, they emerged from the barn and proceeded to attack her, one throwing a club and the other hurling stones at her.

They then made their escape, and in a short time after the neighbors assembled and proceeded to the barn, where they found Mr. Behm lying dead and covered with corn cobs and other matter.

The most intense excitement was caused among the residents of that vicinity, and they turned out en masse with the officers of the township and proceeded to scour the country in search of the murderers. It is supposed that it was intended by the colored men to kill all the inmates of the house, and that all that prevented them from carrying out their intention was the alarm given by the housekeeper.

A despatch received at the Mayor's office says that one of the murderers was about five feet eight inches in height, and the other not quite so tall. The tallest one wore a dark suit, a cap and light shoes. The other was dressed in light pantaloons, black coat (the coat being a rather tight fit) and wore a high crowned hat.

The club used in conjunction with the hatchet, to commit the murder, was the supple of a flail—that is, the heavy, hickory part. It was brought to Middletown all covered with blood.

The deceased was unmarried, and resided on the property on which the deed was committed, with his brother (also unmarried) and the housekeeper. He was somewhat advanced in years, and was held in high esteem by his neighbors.

The parties were afterwards arrested and are now lodged in jail at Harrisburg.

AMONG THE QUAKERS.—Colonel Evans the senior editor of the Milton (N. C.) Chronicle, in his recent publications got among the Quakers of Guilford county, N. C. Here are his impressions: "We attended the yearly meeting of the quakers, held in Guilford, last Sunday, and it was truly a big gathering. Quakers from all parts of the world being present. We heard six men and four women preach, and our idea is the sisters beat the brethren preaching. There was present 1,064 females, and of this number 802 got seats and the balance didn't. Of babies there was assembled 158 mother's darlings; and they were all beautiful—in fact we have never seen an ugly baby—their innocence and purity make them all pretty in our eyes. Of this 158 babies, 75 of them made the welkin ring with their screams. Wish they had all cried, because it is the sweetest music on earth. The Friends or Quakers were talking about turning their large Chapel over to their school or college and building a mammoth church in Greensborough. We did not learn what they decided on."

NEW CASTLE, DEL., November 22.—The following prisoners were whipped today between 11 and 12 o'clock: Sky Duke, Samuel Bush, and William Pickering, white, received twenty lashes each, and William Zills, Trusty, and Wm. Kenty, ten lashes. Hawkins was compelled to stand in the pillory for one hour, and received forty lashes. Blood was drawn from two of the white men.

A Spanish Slaughter House. A gentleman arrived in New York whose long residence on the Island of Cuba has made him very familiar with its topographical aspect, as well as with the manners and customs of its inhabitants. For many months he has resided at Santiago de Cuba, and on more than one occasion he has witnessed the vengeance of the Spaniards at that place. His information concerning the manner in which the executions are conducted, is of peculiar interest at this time. The city of Santiago is on the southern side of a gently sloping hill. A narrow harbor is strongly guarded at its entrance, and after a zig-zag course, opens into a commodious basin, where the vessels may lie at anchor. On the shore the Calle de Teatro leads into the centre of the city. At a distance of several hundred yards from the harbor is the prison where the captives are confined. It is a low, gloomy looking structure, only two stories high, and is built of stone or granite. From this place the prisoner often goes forth to execution. These executions always take place in the slaughter-house, about three-fourths of a mile distant. It was there that the Virginian victims ended their lives. From the prison near the centre of the city, the Calle del Teatro makes a somewhat sudden curve. On the morning of an execution, the battalion of volunteers are summoned at an early hour from the barracks, and proceed to the prison. The prisoners are led forth, bound, and the solemn procession then takes up its death march. In the van are the musicians, whose only instruments are the drums, which are beat with a low ominous sound and measured regularly. The street leads out of the city toward the west, past the Hotel Teatro, the office of the United States Consul, and further on, the office of the British Consul. Out into the suburbs runs the broad, unshaded street, and on an eminence, which may be seen from every portion of the city, stands the building where the victims die. It is a low whitewashed structure of forbidding aspect—an adobe house with a steep roof, which projects far beyond its walls on either side. Around this building is a trench, into which the waters from the roof fall. It is about two feet deep. On the upper side of the building the procession halts and forms a hollow square, the prisoners in the centre. The side next to the slaughter house is opened, and the victims are led to the border of the trench. Here they are bound hand and foot, though their eyes are left unconfined. They are then required to kneel along the trench, with faces turned toward the wall. In the midst of the hollow square stands the Colonel and the priests. The duty of the spiritual advisers being at length performed, they retire with the Colonel, and at a signal from the latter the whole company fires. The unfortunate victims fall forward into the trench, some dead, some dying, others only slightly wounded. The artillery force, who have been stationed in the background, now advance and drive their clumsy carriages carelessly over the victims. Several times is this part of the ceremony repeated, and it is by this time supposed that all are dead.

The dead wagons are then heaped with corpses, among which is sometimes seen a still quivering body. A half mile away they are buried, and the soldiery disperse to their barracks.

The slaughter house is scarred and battered with bullets on its northern side.—Here are inhumanly slaughtered persons of all ages and both sexes. The Spaniards show no mercy to gray-haired patriachs, to women, or to children. Three years ago a little girl four years old was led forth to her death.

The offence was a refusal to make known her father's hiding place. The days of execution are gala days in the city. Hundreds of men, women and children pour forth from its streets and press forward in the throng. As the victims fall dying in the trenches these crowds push madly forward to view the bleeding bodies, the military give way for a moment, and not until that moment arrives are the appetites of the bloodthirsty spectators satiated.

The Baltimore, American says the excitement over the Virginian affair is abating, and "the second sober thought" is beginning to show its influence upon the tone of discussion. The thinking people of the United States, while they may accept war as an inevitable necessity, certainly do not desire any such termination to this most unfortunate controversy.

The despatches which came by way of London on Saturday, announcing that attempts had been made on the life of Minister Sicles, have been authoritatively contradicted. No insult has been offered to Gen. Sicles, except the howling of a mob in front of his house on Wednesday night. The ruffians were promptly driven away by the police. Equally untrue were the reports of the bad feeling between General Sicles and the members of the Spanish Cabinet. There has been no interruption of personal or official intercourse, and the correspondence between the two Governments has gone on without interruption, and with the prospect of a peaceable solution of the difficulty, which will be entirely satisfactory to the people of the United States. Still our Government will go on preparing for war, so that if we are compelled we will not be taken at disadvantage.

RETRIBUTION.—There is a lady living in Louisville, who, in 1825 succeeded in gaining the affections of a married man, who got a divorce from his wife and married the lady above referred to. By his divorced wife he had one son, who is now living in Cincinnati, and is wealthy. The father died some time ago, and the first son by his second marriage was drowned at sea being a captain; the second son was drowned in the Ohio river opposite that city; the third son was hung as a deserter from the United States army; the fourth was shot in Louisville while settling up some business with his partner; the sixth had his neck broken by a runaway horse; and the last died a natural death after barely having escaped the penitentiary for stealing.

THE RUN OF THE BANK BRIGADE. BY JOHN H. BARNES. Half a square, half a square, Half a square, on ward, All for the Buchu Bank. Rushed the six hundred. Each with bank-book in hand, Eager their cash to demand, On strode the frenzied band, Rushed the six hundred. Forward the Bank Brigade, Every man dismayed, And full well they knew That they had blunder'd. Theirs not to stop and sigh, Theirs not to reason why, Theirs but to onward fly, And for the Buchu Bank. Rush'd the six hundred. Creditors to right of them, Creditors to left of them, Creditors in front of them, Onward they thunder'd. Then came the bank in sight Push'd on with all their might Clutch'd they their bank-book tight Fagg'd out each man quite, Anxious six hundred. Flash'd all their bank books bare, Up to the bank they tear, "Close'd doors" they meet there, Oaths fill'd the murky air. And they all wonder'd. Close'd was the bank that day, "Can't realize" they say, We'll every dollar pay To the six hundred."

Back then strode the wild band, Still with bank books in hand, But without greenbacks, and Shatter'd and sander'd. Pity the Bank Brigade. Honor the run they made, "Can't realize," they said, Busted six hundred. PITTSBURG, Nov. 18, 1873.

DEATHS. On Thursday, November 20th, MAGGIE JOHNSTON, wife of John N. Johnston and daughter of Henry and Mary Besore, aged 27 years. The deceased was a great sufferer for several years, though not confined to the house or bed until a few weeks before her death. She bore all her sufferings with Christian patience, never murmuring or complaining, acknowledging her affliction to be from the hand of God who she loved. She was very much devoted to her Master and her church, and the Master loved her and took her from the church militant to the church triumphant, and her loss is her gain. Her greatest earthly desire was to make home happy and comfortable; she was a devoted wife and daughter and manifested an unusual concern for the welfare of her brothers, whom she was ever ready to serve or advise. Truly they have lost an excellent counselor, and the parents an estimable daughter. A few years ago death came and took a loved daughter and now
