

Waynesboro' Village Record.

Thursday, February 12, 1874.

The Empire coalmine near Wilkesbarre, Pa., has been on fire for six weeks and is still burning.

Evans, the contractor who printed all the confederate money, died the other day in a Georgia poor-house.

Jeff Davis sailed for Europe on the 25th ult. He has dropsy of the heart, and his physicians recommended a sea voyage.

The Maryland Legislature has elected the once notorious rebel guerilla Harry Gilmer, as one of the Police Commissioners of Baltimore city.

Hon. A. K. McClure has been nominated as the reform candidate for Mayor in Philadelphia. The Republicans have renominated the present incumbent Stokely.

Postmaster General Creswell recommends that the restriction prohibiting the free transmission of weekly newspapers through the mails, within the counties of their publication, be removed.

A woman, named Jane Foote was sentenced to ten years in the State prison at New York on Monday for participating in a highway robbery. One Mahony, a male confederate, was sentenced for twenty years.

Thornton Triplett, a citizen of Lynchburg, Va., who married a niece of ex-President Taylor, was found dead in that city one morning last week, coatless and with his pockets turned inside out. It is supposed he was drugged and robbed.

The Legislature of Maryland has been inundated with petitions for the passage of a local option law. In the West, the ladies have opened a prayer-meeting crusade. A large number go round, take possession of a bar-room, and hold prayer-meeting in it.

The grocery of Charles Mehr at Evansville, Ind., was burned Thursday night, and Mehr, his wife and three of his children were burned to death. His father-in-law and three children escaped. Mrs. Mehr had saved two of the children and rushed back for the others, and never came out again.

The proprietors of the American have purchased the Colvin Building, on the corner of South and Baltimore streets, Baltimore, now occupied by the Western Union Telegraph, and the adjoining property on South street, now occupied by the Baltimore Coal Company, as a site for a new American Building. The price paid for this property was $125,000.

The Utica Herald says two old ladies troubled a conductor on the Central road one protesting that she should die if the window were open, and the other protesting against shutting it, when an experienced traveller advised the conductor to settle the matter in this way "Open the window and kill one, then close it and kill the other and we shall have peace."

A CASE OF CONSCIENCE.—A retired grocer of Troy, N. Y., was lately surprised by the receipt of $675, with the accompanying note: "For twenty-five years I have been haunted with this grim spectre of guilt. I vowed to God that I would make restitution if I ever earned money enough. Thank Heaven, I have earned it, and to day I am happier than I have been in all these guilty years. God grant that others who were employed by you, and stole from you as I did, may return your just dues."

A bill of some importance was passed at the close of last week by the House of Representatives, relating to the public lands. It gives a quarter section of land to any person who, within eight years, shall have planted one-fourth of it with trees, and kept them in good condition, and it reduces the term of residence required of a homestead settler by two years, where one-eighth of the land has been planted with trees and cultivated. In the course of the debate—a very interesting one—it was stated that within fifteen years, at the present rate of cutting, the land in the United States now yielding trees for heavy timber would be entirely stripped. It shortens the time from ten to eight years, but allows the trees to be planted ten acres each year, and reduces the fees $24 to $14. The bill is asked for by a very great number of petitioners, and Western members say the privileges it gives will be much appreciated.

Body Found.—The body of Emanuel Glosser, son of Peter Glosser, drowned the latter part of last November, in crossing the Monocacy at Sell's Mills, was found on Saturday, the 31st ult. at Wilson's fording, about six miles below where he was drowned. His chin was first seen sticking out of the water, and upon being raised the corpse was found not to be decomposed. The body was found by Mr. Bowers' boys, who were engaged in making fence along the Monocacy. The remains were conveyed to his father's residence four miles north east of Emmitsburg, and interred in Mt. Joy Cemetery, Adams county, Pa.—Curian.

Prof. Wm. Davis, for many years a teacher in Chambersburg, died recently in Lancaster, Pa.

We notice an old friend, Mr. E. Hiteshow, of Chambersburg, is again out of business, having disposed of his stock of goods to Mr. Geo. W. Harmony.

MORE ICE.—The cold snap of the past few days has again started up the ice wagons. On Monday we noticed on our streets the finest article of the season. The different houses are now well stored for the coming summer season.

An exchange recommends when you buy a new lamp chimney that you put it in a vessel of cold water, set it on the stove and boil. You can never break that chimney unless you throw a flat iron at it, and it won't break even then if you miss it.

CONCERT.—There will be a Concert of Sacred Music given by the celebrated "Buell Family, consisting of Prof. Buell, his two daughters and son, in the Methodist church next Tuesday evening, Feb. 17th, commencing at 7 o'clock. Tickets 25 cents—children 15 cents.

MORE SNOW.—On Friday night last a snow storm prevailed in this section making a depth of some six inches on Saturday morning, which is the deepest snow of the season. Sleighting has since been fine and the weather very cold, which is rather damaging to the ground hog theory.

COPPER FARM SOLD.—We understand D. B. Russell, Esq. recently disposed of his copper farm on the South Mountain to a company of capitalists who purpose putting up a furnace for smelting ore in the spring. For the present we are not authorized to make public the names of the purchasers or the amount paid.

PROTRACTED MEETINGS.—The meetings commenced in the Presbyterian church of this town some three weeks since are still continued nightly. The pastor during the past week has been assisted by Rev. Mr. McAtee of Hagerstown, a very earnest and forcible speaker. Considerable interest upon the subject of religion has thus been awakened and several additions made to the membership of the church.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.—The following is the township ticket nominated by the Democrats to be supported at the election on Tuesday next: Judge, Samuel Omwake; Inspector, Wm. Loguen; Assessor, D. R. Miller; School Directors, Geo. W. Stophey, Jacob Hoover; Supervisors, Daniel Hartman, Daniel Johnston, Jacob S. Funk, Frank Honoole; Constable, Arnold Rodgers.

Mrs. HAMILTON.—The Repository, referring to the sudden death of Mrs. Alex. Hamilton, of this town, very appropriately adds: "Of her it can be said with unusual emphasis that she discharged during a long life her duty to her family, her community and her God. She was endeared to her neighbors by her gentle and loving disposition, and hospitable character; to her church by her pure and simple piety; to her friends by her generous and trusted fidelity, and to her family by her affection and unremitting care. Her walk through this earthly life was that of the "perfect and upright," and its end here was peace, to be continued and developed in that higher life beyond the grave."

—Wanted—a few bushels of choice apples.

THE EXECUTION OF DAVIS.—Joseph W. Davis, murderer of Abraham Lynn, was hanged at Westminster, on Friday last. The following account of the execution we copy from the Hanover Herald: The gallows was erected in the jail yard by Mr. George Less: it was 21 feet high to the platform and 30 feet to the beam. The platform was 16 feet square and reached by a flight of 29 steps. The height of the gallows afforded a fine view to the crowd outside the jail yard.

At an early hour the people flocked to Westminster, and as early as nine o'clock the vicinity of the jail was thronged with an excited crowd to witness the execution. Shortly after noon, after religious services in the cell, Davis was led to the scaffold, escorted by his spiritual advisers, Revs. Cremer and Richardson, the sheriff, two ex-sheriffs, and two reporters. On the scaffold, Davis faced the vast concourse, and made an address of three or four minutes, stating that he stood there accused of murder, that he was guilty, and had confessed, and that his confession would be published for the benefit of his sister. He called upon all to take warning from his sad fate, and declared evil associations had brought him to the scaffold. Then he bid all farewell, and hoped to meet them in the next world. He then turned to shake hands with those on the scaffold, when many in the crowd called out "Good bye, Davis."

Sheriff Devilliss now adjusted the white cap and placed the noose about the neck of the condemned man. Then walking slowly down the steps, he touched the lever, when half-way down, and Davis was swung into eternity. The body fell about 5 1/2 feet. Death was not instantaneous, there being many contortions of the body and shoulders. After hanging 15 minutes, the body was lowered, and life being extinct, it was cut down and placed in the coffin, a handsome black walnut case, with silver plate and handles, the upper-half of the lid being glass. The coffin was placed in his cell, where hundreds of persons viewed the remains. The countenance was pale, but showed no signs of a violent death.

The crowd that witnessed the scene was large, and the behavior such as is usual at public executions. Many were drunk and laughter, oaths and cries filled the air, while they were waiting for the execution. Fights were frequent. The whole scene was an argument against public executions.

Becoming convinced there was no hope of escaping death upon the gallows, Davis had made a full confession of his guilt to his spiritual adviser, Rev. Mr. Cremer, and also to sheriff Devilliss. He acknowledged that he killed Lynn, and stated that on the morning of April 5, 1872, they had some difficulty. While Lynn was in a stooping position and examining the bin to discover a leak, he said to Davis "I told you to repair it this morning." "I did," replied Davis. "You are (with an oath) a liar," replied Lynn. Davis further says: "I then kicked him in the side of the head, which stunned him, and as he attempted to raise up I struck him several times with a cooper's adze, and then threw him into the bin." Shue who was tried as an accessory is entirely exonerated by Davis.

It is claimed that Davis did not know that Lynn had the money when he struck the fatal blow. It is said he got the money afterwards, the wallet having fallen from Lynn's pocket and been carried up stairs with wheat by the elevator. If he had not touched the money, but allowed it to remain where he alleges it had been carried, there would no doubt have been a strong point in his favor, which would have cleared him and saved his neck from the gallows. The money lost was the motive for the murder, which had its weight. Otherwise the mystery of Abraham Lynn would still exist. He could not resist the temptation to take the money when he found it, if he did not kill Lynn for the plunder. He spent only part of the money.

RESOLUTIONS.—The following resolutions were passed at the recent Washington township Republican meeting:

Resolved, That the President appoint a committee of five persons whose duty it shall be to ask the Legislature to pass a law that will allow any citizen to present a petition in Court for the appointment of road or bridge viewers, and also to get administrators, executors or guardians appointed and that they may be allowed to settle their accounts; and that any person be permitted to sue for and collect a book account, note, judgement or lien without being compelled to pay an attorney a large fee for doing it for him.

Resolved, That the newspapers of the county be politely requested to publish the foregoing.

Since the salaries of judges have been increased would it not be right to require them to audit administrator, executor and guardian accounts, and thus save the expense of having an auditor to do it.

The Boston Globe has been trying to comprehend the mysterious philosophy of petticoats. After struggling through a whole column it gives up the subject in despair, saying, we confess we are unable to grasp it in all its amplitude. They have not adopted the new fashion of small skirts in Boston yet.

A sudden change in the weather yesterday spoiled the sleighing. The merry jingle of bells ceased with the close of the day.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.—At a meeting of Trinity Reformed Sunday School, of Marysville, Perry county, Pa., on February 1, 1874, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted in reference to the death of Jerome Beaver:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God in his inscrutable Providence to call from the cares and anxieties of this world, our beloved brother and Ex-superintendent Jerome Beaver, and deeming it proper to give expression to our sorrow at the loss of our esteemed brother, whose faithful labors and kind and fatherly traits of character endeared him to us all, therefore be it

At the same time the following Borough ticket was nominated: Justice of the Peace, E. Elden; Assessor, Joseph W. Miller; School Directors, Thos. S. Cunningham, Daniel Hoover; Chief Burgess, E. W. Washbaugh; Councilmen, Geo. Stover, W. A. Reid, Jacob F. Reininger, David Rider, G. W. McGinley.

The election will be held on Tuesday next the 17th.

ROBBERY.—According to a statement in the last Inquirer, a bold and successful robbery was committed in Bedford county on Sunday evening the 1st inst.—Four men with blackened faces and armed with cut-throats entered the house of Mr. Hugh B. Wertz, where he lived with a maiden sister. They were both beaten, Mr. Wertz until he was senseless, and then tied.—The house was ransacked. Miss Wertz lost four hundred dollars in United States bonds, six hundred dollars in greenbacks and a large amount in gold and silver. The brother lost considerable. It is supposed the robbers were strangers and passed through Cumberland Valley into Maryland. Two valuable horses were stolen the same evening from John J. Wertz, it is believed by the same parties.

A Harrisburg correspondent of the Shippensburg Sentinel says Mr. Butler of Cumberland county, has introduced a bill in the Legislature repealing the local option law and enacting in its stead a stringent hotel license law. Hotel keepers are not to have less than six bad rooms and twelve beds, and stabling for six horses. Heavy penalties are imposed for selling to minors, on Sunday, and to in-temperate persons. The license fee is to be regulated by the amount of yearly rental. No license to be less than $200. Bond of every license $2,000. All bar rooms are to be above the surface of the ground.

Representative Burchard made a point in Congress when he said what the country wants is not more currency but better. Such solid chunks of financial wisdom don't drop out of Congress very often.

HOW THEY CLOSE DRINKING SALOONS IN OHIO.—The women who are conducting the prayermeeting warfare against the Ohio saloons show the sagacity of the Scriptural serpent. A few men still bid them defiance, and refuse to shut their doors to customers or open them to missionaries. To conquer these last strongholds of Satan the teetotalers have had a "tabernacle" built. It is a small house on wheels, comfortably warmed and lighted. This they pitch before the enemy's doorway, and sing and pray within its walls as ad lib. At night, when thirsty mortals try to skulk stealthily into the saloon, the rays of a powerful reflector detect them. They are personally appealed to, and if they still enter are made the objects of special prayers, which, delivered in fervent tones, ring through and through the bar-room. The tabernacle remains until midnight, and reappears bright and early next morning. No man is yet been found who can resist it for three days.

LONELY DEATH.—Mrs. Susan Noel, living alone on a small farm in Mount-pleasant township, Adams county, along the railroad north of the York pike, was found in her house dead, with a newly-born child also dead, on Sunday afternoon of last week.

On Sunday one of the neighbors, not having seen her about her premises since Friday, went to the house, and found the doors locked; but opening the shutter, was horrified at the sight presented—the woman sitting in a rocking chair stark and stiff in death, and a dead infant at her feet.—Compiler.
