Crows can Count Three and no More.

A few months since we were riding in a stage coach with several gentlemen, when the conversation turned upon the subject of crows, and many interesting anecdotes were related.

Vanity of Life.

The following from a late speech of Mr. Benton, is a touching exhibition of the vanity of political ambition:

A Lady who was quite in the habit of dropping in at her neighbors about meal time, in the hope of obtaining an invitation to partake with the family, was recently completely nonplussed by the unhesitating frankness of a child.

Irish members always abusing the Government, and yet too happy to accept a situation under it.

Agriculturists paying enormous prices for Peruvian guano, and allowing all sewerage to be wasted in the cities.

Tradesmen giving their daughters the education of fine young ladies, and expecting them to mind the shop.

Condemning a boy to prison for stealing a handkerchief, and yet allowing a wealthy shopkeeper who has been convicted several times of using false weights, to get off with a small fine.

Patriots declaiming loudly about the liberty of the subject; and putting their servants in livery.

Government seeing the charitable necessity of ten hours bill in the cotton mills, and not passing a similar measure for the benefit of milliners, needle-women, and other oppressed classes with whom the hours of working are only limited by the will of the master.

WHAT PUNCH SAYS.—Punch says that there are several things "which you never can by any accident get a lady—be she young or old—to confess to."

Too Witty by Half.—A youthful reader of the Notions, thus experimented on his mamma, who was making the family bread, a few days since:

"Mother, it strikes me you are very lazy just now."

"How dare you say so!—Why, don't you see I'm making bread?" indignantly returned the lady.

"True, but that's neither more or less than loafing."

The wit got no hot cakes for several days. He makes no such puns since.

JOHNXY, one bright evening, was standing by the window, gazing at the moon and stars, and after looking for some time very intently, he turned and said to his mother, who was sitting beside him: "Mamma, what are those bright little things in the sky? are they the moon's little babies?"

—quite a—a—mutton in Parvo.

A Vicious Sheep.

Out West a settlement was sorely annoyed by a rogue who stole sheep frequently, but who, by his adroitness, always managed to escape direct proof of his guilt.

Hardly any two females kiss alike.

There is as much variety in the manner of doing it, as the faces and manners of the sex. Some delicate creatures merely give a slight brush of the lip. This is a sad aggravation.

He Wouldn't do it.—A friend of ours who deals in plain English, and has no acquaintance with large words at that, happened to take a walk to Swamscott one pleasant morning recently.

The Danville Herald has a devil who thinks this is a great world.

EVERYTHING useful or necessary is cheapest; walking is the most wholesome exercise, water the best drink, and plain food the most nourishing and healthy diet—even in knowledge, the most useful is the easiest acquired.

IF A GIRL thinks more of her heels than her head depend upon it she will never amount to much.

Among the curiosities lately added to the Schenectady Museum, is a mosquito's bladder containing the souls of twenty four misers and the fortunes of twelve printers—nearly half fat!

I would advise you to put your head into a dye-tub, if a rather red, and a joker to a sandy haired girl, if I would advise you to put yours into an oven, it's rather soft!

We decidedly object to a baby's little hand about our face, when it stands by, and remarks that the dear is decidedly beginning to "take notice."
