

...treatment every one of us have received from him during the time we have spent on board his ship. His own comforts he gave up in every respect for our relief. The Rev. Mr. Walker and his wife and another gentleman, who were passengers on the Cambria, have been successful in their endeavors to procure the comfort...

The vessel and all on board we shall ever owe a debt of gratitude for their unbounded kindness to us. From the Frenchman who was picked up we learned that the steamer with which we came in collision was the screw-steamer Vesta, from St. Pierre, bound from and belonging to Greenville, France. As near as we could learn, the Vesta was steering E. S. E. and was crossing our course two points, with all sails set—wind W. by S.

Her anchor stuck, about seven by four inches square, was driven through the bows of the Arctic, about 18 inches above the water line; and an immense hole had been made at the same instant by the fluke of the anchor about two feet below the water line, raking fore and aft the plank, and finally breaking the chains, leaving the stock remaining in and through the side of the Arctic, or it is not unlikely that as so much of her bows would have been crushed in, that some of the heavy longitudinal pieces of iron running through the ship may have been driven through our side, causing the loss of our ship, and I fear hundreds of most valuable lives.

Terrific Thunder-bolt.
A correspondent at Peoria, Illinois, sends the following account of a terrific thunder-bolt which fell upon a house in that city, about midnight on the 24th September:

Those of our citizens who had retired were startled from their slumbers by one of the most deafening peals of thunder that we candidly believe, ever reverberated through the firmament. It was not a particularly sharp, but rather a collected roaring, as if a million pieces of artillery had been discharged at once; and the sound seemed in no direction or locality, but to fill all space—in fact, it seemed as if the entire universe united in the terrific utterance. The lightning which preceded the explosion (strictly speaking, although it appeared to be at the same instant) was as intensely vivid as it is possible to conceive. It must have been one of the most voluminous bolts of electricity that ever descended, for its effects were amazing, and almost unprecedented. It seemed to burst in all its fury upon the residence of Capt. Morrison, on Third street, and left in its traces a sad record. The house was a story and a-half of brick. The bolt first struck the East chimney, and passed down the same to a bar that passed through the building to secure the walls, where it forked, one of the forks ripping up the roof on the North side of the building, tearing apart the East wall, and running along the earth in the back yard to the privy; another fork passed down the diningroom, shattering the ceiling, and finally took the same shoot as the other, running nearly parallel with it to the privy, where they met. A third fork passed into the second story, where it branched in two opposite directions—one branch streaking through the chambers, shattering into fragments a door which was closed, and passing out through the West side of the house, after which it ran over the ground in the adjoining yard in a singular manner; and the other branch passed above the stairs into the hall, and out at the front door, tearing up the outside steps, and coursing about the front yard and tearing up the earth in the same manner as the other forks did back of the house. At the foot of the stairs two sons of Capt. Morrison were lying in the hall, having chosen that place on account of the warmth of the night. The eldest of these received the whole force of the electric stream, and was rendered senseless and incapable of speech, giving utterance only to a few feeble groans. Instant efforts were made to restore him, but they were of no avail, in an half an hour after life was extinct. The body, to all appearance, was not injured in the least, there not being even a fracture of the skin. Next morning the face wore an expression as natural as life, and presented the appearance of calm slumber. The other brother was terribly lacerated, both thighs being furrowed vertically, to the bone, by a number of frightful gashes. The physician who is in attendance upon him has but little hope of the sufferer's recovery.

Capt. Morrison was sitting in the dining-room at the time of the catastrophe, looking out of the South window, and he describes the impression produced upon him as similar to being struck upon the head with a brick. He, in a moment he recovered from the shock, and discovered the room filled with dust, and the wreck of the wall lying around him. He immediately proceeded to look after the safety of his family, who were uttering frightful shrieks from all parts of the house, when the sight of his two sons, one in the last agonies of death, and the other weltering in blood, struck his stout heart with terror, and completely unmanned him. His daughter, a young girl, narrowly escaped injury, although she was considerably shocked. She slept in the chamber, the door of which was shattered as above stated. She said her first idea was, that the house had been blown up with powder. There were two other ladies sleeping in the house at the time, neither of whom was seriously injured.

The building presented next morning a frightful appearance, having been completely riddled, from the roof to the cellar. The steps to the upper chambers, as well as those which led to the cellar, were thrown some ten inches from the walls, and so shattered as to render them unsafe to use. One of the iron rods used to fasten the carpet to the steps, was taken by the electricity and hurled up through the stairway with such force, that it penetrated one of the rafters of the roof, to such a depth as to require an ordinary-sized man to pull it out. The atmosphere in the vicinity was strongly impregnated with sulphur, as if there had been an immense powder explosion.

In conclusion, we may safely say that this occurrence is one of the most wonderful and terrible phenomena of electricity on record. The lady who took everybody's eye must have had quite a supply.

WELLBORO' ACADEMY.
THE FALL TERM of this Institution will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the supervision of MR. J. R. BOWEN, LL. B., N. Y., a graduate of the Massachusetts University. The Academy is a boarding school, and is situated on a beautiful farm, and has a large and commodious building. From the testimony received of its character and qualifications, it is highly recommended, and from his great success here and elsewhere, we are cheerfully recommending the school to the patronage of the public.

In addition to the branches usually taught in such institutions there will be a Teachers' class composed of those who intend to engage in the business of teaching, which will receive particular attention and instruction, both from the Principal and the County Superintendent of Common Schools. Arrangements have likewise been made to procure suitable Chemical and Philosophical instruments, such as are used in the higher order of Schools in the State of New York.

The Academy building is now undergoing a thorough repair and in a few days will be best prepared to receive the students. Boarding can be obtained in respectable private families at a price not exceeding $1.50 per week. The rates of tuition will be as follows:

Important.
WHEREAS, on the night of the 24th of March last, James I. Jackson, and others by the use of false keys or otherwise, forced their way into the dwelling house of the subscriber, while the family were absent and removed his goods out of the house in order to get possession of the same; and the subscriber, in order to recover the same, has been obliged to sue James I. Jackson and others for their appearance to the next court of Quarter Sessions. This is therefore to forbid all persons paying any accounts to James I. Jackson made at the woolen Factory and Saw Mill from that time until the 1st day of March, A. D. 1855, binding me to collect all debts for work done.

DR. HUNTER'S Medical Manual, and Hand Book for the Afflicted. Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by all kinds of venereal diseases, with advice for the prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, with an outline of complaints incident to females, from the time of twenty years' successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the FEVER and AGUE. Testimony of the Professor of Obstetrics in the Penn Medical College, Philadelphia.—DR. HUNTER'S MEDICAL MANUAL.—The author of this work, unlike the majority of those who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

From A. Woodward, M. D., of Penn University, Philadelphia.—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the Medical Manual. Numerous cases of Disease of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing, have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health in some cases where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by self-abuse or excessive venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves.

ALFRED WOODWARD, M. D.
"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff and too little presumption to impose, he has offered to the world the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruit of some twenty years' most successful practice."
—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be kept awake in pain and mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."
—Peoples' Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual" says—"Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks) has slain thousands upon thousands, and is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and believe me your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy (securely enveloped) will be forwarded, free of postage, to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or the equivalent in gold. Address, (post paid) COSDEN & CO., Publishers, or Box 196, Philadelphia.

WELLBORO' ACADEMY.
THE FALL TERM of this Institution will commence on the 1st day of September next, under the supervision of MR. J. R. BOWEN, LL. B., N. Y., a graduate of the Massachusetts University. The Academy is a boarding school, and is situated on a beautiful farm, and has a large and commodious building. From the testimony received of its character and qualifications, it is highly recommended, and from his great success here and elsewhere, we are cheerfully recommending the school to the patronage of the public.

In addition to the branches usually taught in such institutions there will be a Teachers' class composed of those who intend to engage in the business of teaching, which will receive particular attention and instruction, both from the Principal and the County Superintendent of Common Schools. Arrangements have likewise been made to procure suitable Chemical and Philosophical instruments, such as are used in the higher order of Schools in the State of New York.

The Academy building is now undergoing a thorough repair and in a few days will be best prepared to receive the students. Boarding can be obtained in respectable private families at a price not exceeding $1.50 per week.
