"Thursday morning brought no confirma-tion of these hopes, "Every hour that passes, (says the Morning Chronicle,) tends rather to shake than to strengthen the statement.' On Change it was reluctantly admitted that there had been a mistake somewhere, but to what extent time alone could show. Respectable men, who might have ing of the church bells, were now careful to explain that that jubilation had been on account of the battle of Alma, only-Sevastopol was quite another affair. At a late hour of the afternoon, but fortunately before the merchant princes left off business for the day, telegraphic dispatches from London and Paris came to hand, stating that a notice posted did not behave worse than we have seen on the Paris Bourse, and an extra of the London (official) Gazette contradicted the news of the fall of Sevastopol. Friday morning brought the Gazette as under, and with n a declaration from everybody that they had never believed a word of the story !-However, while I write this, (Friday evening, to justify an absolute denial of the previous reports."-N. Destruction of the Town of Daroca, Spain, by a Waterspout.

A letter in the Madrid Tribune of Sept. 17th, gives an account of a terrible and extraordinary catastrophe that had occured at Daroca, a small town in Arragon, situate in a rich and fertile valley, abunding in corn and wine. From its situation, in a deep hollow, completely surrounded by mountains, this place is peculiarly liable to inundation; and as a remedy, a tunnel was cut in 1560, by a Frenchman named Pierre Bedsill. This tunnel is a magnificent work, 2340 feet long, 24 leet wide, and 25 feet high. The enterprise was patronized by the Pope, and assisted by alms from all Christendom. Previous to its achievement, the waters that flowed at wet seasons from two leagues of mountain rushed through the streets of the town on their way to the river. It appears that on the 11th September, at three in the afternoon, an immense waterspout, rising from the Lake of Galiocanta, remained for a considerable time hovering over the shore, about a league from Daroca. When it burst the whole district was converted into a lake. The waters poured down in the direction of the tunnel in a stream much larger, it is said, than the Ebro or Tortosa, and, seen from an elevation, appeared like moving mountains of liquid. The dimensions of the tunnel, which has a very decided slope, were insufficient to allow the passage of the vast mass, which then moved past, forming a spacious sea. This extended itself towards the town, at two hundred yards from which it was arrested by the causeway that has frequently saved Daroca, when menaced by perils of a similar nature, but less magnitude. Above this causeway the waters rose, heaping themselves up on it, says the account, to the height of three yards, and then plunging down on the unfortunate town.

The gateway, although an unusually large one, was not large enough to allow their encrumble under its pressure. "What then down. occurred," says the letter, " is an inexplicatrenches and bursting open the doors of the Pocado and of several shops, they spread beaten. through the squares and streets, inundating wine cellars, warehouses, and the first floors very roofs. Throwing down walls, and abandoning everything, the inhabitants fled to the mountains, whence they looked on at the horrible catastrophe.

The loss has been incalculable. In the vaults water has replaced wine; the contents of the shops are spoiled, and many houses are crumbling away. In the plain around the town, the inundation has destroyed evething. A young woman of twenty was carried away by the torrent, and many children anything but of counting their families, and seeing if any were absent. The animals that have perished are innumerable; among them many of the farm horses of the unfortunate peasants. It is horrible, "God have mercy on us?

RATHER EXTENSIVE, - Matrimony does agree very well with some people. Thurlow Weed, the editor of the Albany Evening Journal, in the midst of all the dirty turmoil of politics, has found leisure to enter largely into the cultivation of babies. He is now the father of 18 children—his valuable helpmate having presented him with one every eleven months since their marriage. We should say that Weed was rather a luxuriant kind or vegetation, anyhow.

THE Two DOUGLASSES .- Fred. Douglass has been invited to stump the State of Illinois will now have the Nebraska bill in black and ators and six whig representatives. white. In another view we may say that both the Douglases are black; with this difference, that the one is black outside, and the other inside. That is, the one is a black man, and the other a blackguard.

Novel Question .- At a debating society, the other day, the subject for discussion was the most beautiful production, a girl or a strawberry. After continuing the argument for two nights, the meeting finally adjourned, without coming to a conclusion—the older members going for the strawberries, and the young ones for the girls,

THE State of Connecticut is out of debt, and has money loaned out at interest. The school fund is valued at $2,076,000 and other productive property of the State is estimated at $400,000, the grater part of which is invested in Bank stocks.

highest degree of satisfaction.
We have been familiar with public gatherings in Connecticut many years, and have seen some scenes that would require strong proof to make the next generation believe ever had an existence in a civilized community that claims to be christian, moral, sober; decent, respectable.

We have seen at a single town training, more than two hundred men and boys crasy drunk. At every election of a new captain rum was brought out in pails full, free for been suspected of having voted for the ring. the train band and all the spectators to drink as long as they could stand. True they did not all get down, though some of them did. wallowing in the mud, but they got so they yelled like savages, and were as full of foolish antics as a herd of monkeys, and often as mischievous. We have seen a thousand drunken Indians in one company, but they companies of men in Connecticut. We have seen the reverse of this picture.

On Thursday last we saw the larges company of people together that we ever saw in that State, and we have never seen a better ordered assembly-no drinking, at least in sight, and no one daring favor the Bih,) the information at hand is too imperfect | practice in secret, to be seen intoxicated in public; and here, we believe, not one was seen. In all that assembly not a yell or angry oath, not a fight or foolish scuffle, no racing and running afoul of one another and breaking wagons and limbs, and injuring horses—no uncontrollable turbulence, or dis.

J. L. HUSBAND, Esq., No. 4 Sansom St., turbance of the quiet portion of the people by the recklessness of those who drank strong drinks; but one universal scene of harmony through the day and peaceful quiet through the night. "If such are the fruits of the Maine law, said a man to us who had been opposed to its passage, "God forgive me for what I have done against it, and in his strength will I repent and never oppose so good a measure again. But I did not believe it could be enforced, or that it would work in such perfection."

Similar remarks we heard from all, and that was not a few, that we talked with upon the subject. We could not hear of a single man who would openly advocate the repeal of the law; not even the liquor dealers, who have generally acquiesced in the law without

The only difficulty in the way of the complete eradication of drunkenness from Connecticut, is the facility of getting liquor from New-York. Every steamboat that arrives at New-Haven has more or less small packages for individuals, containing something to feed that depraved appetite, so long accustomed to stimulant that is hard to give up the practice. But the liquor so imported is not for sale, and is generally beyond the reach of the most drunken part of the community. It is for a class of "moderate drinkers," who will use it while they can get it in this way, but who would be the last to vote for a restoration of the same privilege to all the old soakers in the State.- N. What it Cost to put Col. Benton Down.

When, ripe in years and experience, Col. Benton deemed it his duty to devote himself ber flatters himto his country rather than his party, where, as the attempt to embroil us in a war with trance, and another great lake was formed | England about Oregon, the lines diverged, against the walls, which presently began to the democracy decided that he must be put

The first point was to get the veteran out ble thing. The waters fought with and of the Senate, to accomplish which the demoverthrew those houses whose position oppolocracy of Missouri supported the whig candised their current. They carried away the date. By a union, therefore, of the whigs fountain of San Pedro, and opening great and anti-Benton democrats in the Missouri legislature upon a whig, Colonel Benton was

But the electors of the Missouri district, resenting the wrong done to a distinguished of the houses; in some, reaching up to the statesman, immediately elected him to the House of Representatives, where the country has had the benefit of his talents, courage, firmness, and wisdom through a protracted and eventful session.

But his enemies were at his heels. His exclusion from the House of Representatives was decreed. And in this, Senator Atchison had the assistance of the administration.-Colonel Benton, to aid his enemies, had opposed the Nebraska swindle. There was, however, but one way to secure his defeat, and adults are missing. In the first moments even with slavery arrayed against him. The the anxiety was horrible. None thought of Atchison and Pierce democracy, almost en masse, voted for the whig candidate, who is

And to avoid against the possibility of Col. Benton's re-election to the Senate, the war upon him is kept up throughout the State; and as a consequence, six whig members of Congress have just been chosen in a State which, until the business of breaking down Col. Benton commenced, had not sent a whig to Congress in a quarter of a century.

The third and probably the last act in this political drama opens with Senator Atchison and Col. Benton as antagonist candidates for U. S. Senate. And here there is strong probability of a "Kilkenny fight." Benton may be again beaten, but in the conflict his "bitter end" persecutors will probably fall also.

As the final result, therefore, of the crusade against Col. Benton, democratic Missouri agazinst Stephen A. Douglas. The Hoosiers will probably find herself; with two whig sen-

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual" says—"Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide spread source of human wretchedcess, would confer the greatest blessing next to the relig-ion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generation. Wellsborough, July 27, 1854-tf. Important.

WHEREAS, on the night of the 24th of March last, James J. Jackson, and others by the use of false keys or otherwise, forced their way into the dwelling house of the subscriber, while the family were absent and removed his goods out of the house in order to get possession—and furthes, the said James I. Jackson took possession of the Books belonging to the subscriber, and refuses to de-liver them over to him, for all of which, the said James I. Jackson and others have given bail for their appearance to the next court of Quarter Sess. ions. This is therefore to forbid all persons paying any accounts to James I. Jackson made at the woolen Factory and Saw Mill from that time until the 1st day of March, A. D. 1852, as I have a lease of the Woolen Factory and Saw Mill from that time until the 1st day of March, A. D. 1855, binding me to collect all debts for work done.
