THE FRUIT-GIFT.

MY J. O. WHITTIER. Last night, just us the tints of antumn's sky Of success feder from our hills and streams I sat, vague listening, lapped in twilight's drea. To the leaf's rustle and the cricket's cry. Then, like that basket, flush with summer fruit, Dropped by the angels at the Prophet's foot, .. [ne Come, oh my friends, your gift of clustered sweet-full-orbed and glowing with the prisoned beams. Of summery mine, and rounded to completeness. By the soft kinese of the wind and dow. Thrilled with a glad surprise, methought I, knew.
The pleasure of the houseward-turning. Jew.
When Eschol'alclusters on his shoulders lay.
Dropping their invectors on his desert way.

I said: "This fruit beseems no world of sin," Its parent vine, rooted in Paradise,
O'ercrept the wall and never paid the price
Of the great mischief—an embrosial tree, Eden's exotic, somehow smuggled in.
To keep the thorns and thistles company. Perchance our frail, sad mother, plucked in haste rerenance our rran, and mother, pincked in haste
A single vine-slip as she passed the gate,
Where the dread sword, alternate, paled and burn'd,
And the stern angel, pitying her fate,
Forgave the lovely trespasser, and turned
Asido his face of Bru: and thus the waste
And fallen would but was its account

And fallen world hath yet its annual tasto Of primal good, to prove of sin the cost,
And show by one gleaned car the mighty harvest lost!

Original Papers.

BY JOE, A JERSRY MUTE.

[The writer of these articles is a deaf mute, a teacher in the Philadelphia Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. We suppose the credited articles are by the scholars under his charge. - ED. AGITATOR.]

The Agitator is sometimes an original, and at other times an unoriginal paper, of course excluding the editor's leader, paragraphs, book notices, and other fancies. To make the Agitator an entirely original journal this week, I have obtained at an enormous expense, the manuscripts of sundry and divers correspondents, and forwarded them by mail to Mr. M. H. Conn, the editor of the Agitator. To commence with the manuscript of a boy more than 15 years of age:

MARS.

BY BOB. This planet revolves in its orbit in little less than two years, at the distance of 144,-000,000 miles from the sun. It turns on its axis in little less than 25 hours. The light reflected by Mars is remarkable red. The degree of heat and light at Mars is something less than one-half what we enjoy.

VENUS.

It revolves round the sun at the mean distance of 68,000,000 of miles. It completes its revolution in about seven and a half months. and turns on its axis in little less than 24 hours. The light reflected by this planet is very brilliant, and pften renders it visible to the naked eye in the day time. Heat and light at Venus are nearly double what they are at the earth. EARTH.

It revolves round the sun at the mean distance of 96,000,000 miles. It completes this revolution in a year, and turns on its axis in a day, or 24 hours.

A LETTER TO MY MOTHER.

BY SALLY, AGED 13 YEARS. My dear Mother:-I received your kind letter yesterday, for which I thank you. I am glad to hear that my brothers and sisters are well. You spoke of coming to see me on Thanksgiving day; and I hope you will not fail to come. Indeed I am anxious to see you. At this writing, it is raining. The north wing of the Institution is now completed, and will soon be occupied. The examination of pupils will be resumed next Thursday afternoon. I wish you would come to attend the examination. New pupils daily come, and two or three new teachers are expected soon. I give my love to my brothers and sisters. Write me soon.

SHORT STORIES. BY JAKE, AGED 16.

A boy was sick. He went to bed. The matron of the Institution gave him some medicine. He took it; but he grew worse.

A girl wished to buy an apple, but she had no money. She asked her mamma for some money. Her mamma asked her what she wished to do with the money. She told her mamma that she wished to buy apples. She gave three cents to the girl. She was glad. She bought an apple and ate it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. BY BETSEY, AGED 12,

If we have no money can we buy anything ? No.

What day of the month is this? This is the 23d day of October. What kind of a place is Washington? It is a large and healthy city.

Mr. Poe died in consequence of his excesaive intemperance. A boy did not go to school yesterday in consequence of his headache. Many persons get sick in consequence of the bad weather. The boys cannot play in the yard in consequence of the rain. Will the editor of the Agitator say that his paper for this week is a splendid number, abounding in original matter, and that, too. from the pens of the best juvenile writers of the day? Go buy the Agitator. Price six cents a copy.

THE TURNPIKE BOX AND THE BANKER.

It was during a panic some years since, that a gentleman, whom we shall now, call Mr. Thompson, was sealed with something of a melancholy look; in his back room, watching his derk paying away thousands of pounds hourly. Mr. Thompson was a hon-ker of excellent credit; there existed perhaps in the city of London po safer concern, than that of Messra. Thompson or Co., but at a moment such as I speak of, no rational reflection was admitted, no former stability was looked to,; a general distrust was felt, and every one gushed to his bank to withdraw his hoard fearful that the next instant would be too late, forgetting entirely that this step was, of all others, the most likely, to insure the ruin he sought to avoid.

But to return. The wealthy citizen sat gloomily watching the outpouring of his gold, and with a grim smile listened to: clamorous demands on his cashier; for although he felt perfectly easy and secure as to the phimate strength of his resources, yet he could not suppress a feeling of bitterness as he saw, constituent after constituent rush in, and those whom he always fondly imagined to be his dearest friends, eagerly assisting in the run upon his strong box.

Presently the door was opened, and a stranger ushered in who, after gazing a moment at the bewildered banker, coolly draw a chair, and abruptly addressed him:

"You will pardon me, sir, for asking rather a strange question; but I am a plain man, and like to come straight to the point." "Well, sir?" impatiently interrupted the banker. "I have heard that you have a run on your bank, sir."

" Well ?"

" Is it true?" "Really, sir I must decline replying to your very extraordinary query. If however, you have any money in the bank you had better at once draw it out, and so satisfy yourself; our cashier will instantly pay you;" and the banker rose, as a hint for the stranger to withdraw. "Far from it, sir; I have not a sixpence in your hands.

"Then may I ask what is your business here?" "I wish to know if a small sum would aid you at this moment?" "Why do you ask that question?" "Because if it would, I should gladly pay n a deposit."

The money dealer started. "You seem surprised; you don't know my person or my motive. I'll at once explain. Do you recollect some twenty years ago, when you resided in Essex?"

Perfectly." Well, then, sir, perhaps you have not forgotten the turnpike gate through which you passed daily? My father kept that gate, and was very often bonored with a few chats with you. One Christmas morning my father was sick, and I attended the toll-bar. On that day you passed through, and I opened the gate. Do you resollect it, sir?"

" Not I, my friend." "No, sir; few such men remember their kind deeds, but those benefitted by them, seldom forget them. I am perhaps prolix; listen, however, only a few moments, and I shall have done."

The banker, who began to feel interested, at once assented.

"Well, sir, as I said before, I threw open the gate for you, and, as I considered myself in duty bound, I wished you a happy Christ-mas. 'Thank you, my lad,' replied youthank you, and the same to you; here is a trifle to make it so;' and you threw me a seven-shilling piece. It was the first money I ever possessed, and never shall I forget my joy on receiving it. I long treasured it, and as I grew up added a little to it, till I was able to rent a toll myself. You soon after left that part of the country, and I lost sight of you. Yearly however, I have been gaining; your present brought good fortune; I am now comparatively rich, and to you I consider I owe all. So this morning, hearing accidentally that there was a run on your bank, I collected all my capital, and have brought it to lodge with you, in case it can be of any use; here it is: and he handed a bundle of bank notes to the agitated Thompson. "In a few days I will call again;" and snatching up his hat, the stranger throwing down his card, immediately walked out of the room.

Thompson opened the roll; it contained £30,000! The stern banker-for all bankers must be stern—burst into tears. The firm did not require this prop; but the motive was so noble, that even a millionaire sobbed-he could not help it. The London firm is still one of the first in the city of London.

The £30,000 of the turnpike boy is now grown into some £200,000. Fortune has well disposed of her gifts.
