A DOMESTIC STORY.

Early one morning, Mr. Jones was seen sected in his buggy driving a spirited horse, in pursuit of a girl to do housework. This was the fourth day of the campaign; and bid fair to prove as unsuccessful as the former trary, is always faithful to her duty, where ones, yet he drove on, hoping against all past community or mankind are interested. In experience, till meeting a neighbor he reined deciding upon the right and wrong ut ques-

"Good morning, Mr.-Mason; can you tell me where I can find a girl to do housework? My wife is sick, and I wish to get one for a few weeks I am willing to pay any price!"
"Indeed, Mr. Jones, that's a hard question;

there's girls enough to be sure, but they won't female conventions—the unlady-like bloom-do housework. Neighbor Hardpan, down in erism and ranting which sometimes prevailthe hollow there, has a half a dozen, but I ed. Yer from a consideration of so much of at the door of Mr. Hardpan.

"Good morning, Mrs. Hardpan; I called that right. Elmira Republican." to see if I could get one of your daughters to do housework for me a few days?"

"Oh! dear man; why, massy on us, Mr. Jones, you've no idea how feeble my darters are; they wouldn't be tough enough any way, they couldn't stand it to do housework a minute. Anna Maria has got a desperate lame side, and I don't purtend to put her to doing struct. anything. She's so feeble; and Susan Sophia has a dreadful weak stomach; she can't eat any thing unless it is cookedd just soshe don't even make her own bed; and as for Amelia Angeline, she's troubled with a terrible palpitation of the heart; she can't lift half a pail of water. Why don't you get an Irish

Here Mrs. Hardpan paused for breath, and Mr. Jones bade her a good morning, and renewed his journey; and just at night succeeded in getting a married woman, who brought her baby with her, to come and do a little baking, and stay a day or two till he could make a further trial.

This, dear reader, is no fancy sketch. And now let us for a moment look at the feebleness of Mrs. Hardpan's daughters. Anna Maria is tough enough to live in a dress which compresses her ribs from four to six inches, and leaves for both lungs about as much room as one ought to occupy! Of course she could not do housework. Susan Sophia can stand it to dance till midnight, then read novels till day-light, sleep till eleven o'clock in the morning, eat hot cakes, and drink strong coffee for breakfast; beef soups, butter, gravies, mince pies, and fruit puddings for dinner, pound cake, lemon tarts, and half a dozen cups of green tea for supper; with cloves, chalk, charcoal, and slate pencils for a dessert. Poor weak stomach! Amelia Angeline is a pale, slim, delicate creature, yet she "can stand it" with her breast bone pressed upon her heart by a tight dress, so that it can scarcely beat! No wonder it is at times obliged to make a "terrible" effort to free itself of its surplus blood. Amelia Angelino too, is strong enough to carry six or eight pounds of cotton batting, and a small "cut of cloth" about her hips, wear thin shoes, and go in " bare armed" in winter. What a wonder that she should have palpitation of the heart !"

Now is it any wonder that young ladies, managed in this way, are not able and willing to do housework? Their dress, manner of living, habits of thinking, all have a direct tendency to engender and confirm disease, Hence spinal complaint, dyspepsia, heart disease, consumption, etc., are the legitimate evils, are corrected. Let them lay aside the strait jacket and adopt a dress which allows the free motion of every joint and muscle, and the full expansion of the chest; exchange their novels for histories, biography, poetry etc., take at least half an hours exercise in the open air duily, during pleasant weather retire and rise early; exchange the hot cakes and coffee for cool bread and pure water; eat no rich dinners and late suppers; open the blinds, and let the sunlight shine in upon them, if you would not have them look like plants which grew in the cellar; take them into the kitchen, and instruct them in the various branches of housewifery; do not be afraid of soiling their hands—they are much hands—they are months, and when strictly is advance, only, payment must be made strictly is advance, or it will be charged. The foregoing terms will be strictly and the must be made strictly is advance, or it will be charged. The foregoing terms will be made strictly is advance, or it will be designed. The foregoing terms will be made strictly is advanced to the must be made strictly in advanced to the must be made strictly in advanced to the must be made at the must be must be made at the must be made at the must be must be must be must be made at the must be must be made at the must be more easily cleansed than their hearts. And lady, nor will it lower them in the estimation of any man whose respect is worth securing.

Washing, baking, sweeping need not prevent your daughters from becoming expert musicians, finished painters, profound mathematicians or good wives.

Woman's Rights.

The indefatigable co-workers in this cause have been before the Assembly Committee again this session, with a strong and overwhelming petition for a recognizance of, and action upon the question of Woman's Rights. The remarks made before that Committee were worthy the best head of the Legislature, and the earnest, and hopest consideration of the Assembled Legislators. There is one thing clear-if women have any rights which they can conclusively make appear, from their constitution, and social relations, as intelligent, accountable beings to government and its laws, that belong to them, and which they do not now enjoy, why our legislators can do no less-and do honorably and justly-than to grant them. If ill advised laws bring misery, and unhappiness upon her as well as man, and good ones dispense to her the same blessing of pence, contentment and liberty as to man; and the infringement of any law brings upon her the same penalty attached to the transgression by man, and obedience the same fruits of properity, and quietude .- if she suffer and enjoy from the same causes which man suffers and enjoys from; if right-political and moral-be with her equally a right, and wrong equally a wrong with man; and if she be equally as capable of judging, of reasoning, and feeling on all these points, with man, why are not her rights, moral, social; and political equal, and the same with those of man! We think,-and so does every man who thinks above his prejudices,—that to be right, and act right upon all questions of momentous moral import. Man is swayed by his selfish interest from the high ground of a rational conscientious conviction. His principles, if they be ever so good and commenduble, will not stand against the promise of personal emoluments Women on the contions, there is a characteristic abitegation of self. We have not given much of our attention to Woman's Rights. We have never been an advocate—and indeed we have had but indignation worked up to quite a fearful pitch, at the spectacle represented at these don't suppose you could get one for love of the subject as we have given, we cannot but money. I've tried then time and again; and they won't go out."

"Thank you," said Mr. Jones; there's goes. Nay, if our premises be worth any nothing like trying." So saying he stopped ting, the conclusion is inevitable, that in her there is a superior fitness for the exercise of

A Pleasant Surprise.

A young man eighteen or twenty, a student in a University, took a walk one day with a professor, who was commonly called the student's friend, such was his kindness to the young men whose office it was his to in-

While they were now walking together and the professor was seeking to lead the conversation to grave subjects, they saw a pair of old shoes lying in their path, which they supposed to belong to a poor man who was at work in the field and who had nearly finished his day's work.

The young student turned to the professor, saying, "let us play the man a trick; we will hide his shoes and conceal ourselves behind those bushes, and watch to see his perplexity when he cannot find them."

"My dear friend," answered the professor, we must never amuse ourselves at the expense of the poor. But you are rich, and you may give yourself a much greater pleasure by means of this poor man. Put a dollar in each shoo, and then we will hide our selves."

The student did so, and then placed him self, with the professor, behind the bushes close by, through which they could easily watch the laborer, and see whatever wonder and joy he might express.

The poor man had soon finished his work and came across the field to the path where he had lest the coat and shoes. While he put on his coat, he slipped one foot into one of his shoes; but seeling something hard, he stooped down and found the dollar. Astonishment and wonder were seen upon his countenance; he gazed upon the dollar, turned it round and looked at it again; then he looked round him on all sides, but could see no one. Now he put the money in his pocket, and proceeded to put on the other shoe; but how great was his astonishment when he found another! His feelings overcame him and he fell upon his knees, looking up to heaven, and uttered a loud and fervent thanksgiving in which he spoke of his wife, nick and helpless and his children without bread, whom this imely bounty from some unknown hand would save from perishing.

The young man stood there deeply affected, and tears filled his eves.

"Now," said the professor, "are you not much better pleased than if you had played your intended trick."

"O, dearest Sir," answered the youth "you have laught me a lesson now that I will nev results. If we would have our daughters or forget. I feel now the truth of the words healthy, let us see that these, and kindred which I never befere understood, "it is better to give than to receive."

We should never approach the poor but with the wish to do them good.

DR. HUNTER'S Medical Manual, and Hand Book for the Afflicted-Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease contracted by promiscuous sexual inter-course, by self-abuse or by sexual excess, with ad-vice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities and everything that would offend the car of decency; with an outline of complaints incident to females, from the result of twenty years successful practice, exclusively dexoted to the cure of discuses of a delicate or pr vate nature.

To which is added receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and ouro of the FEVER and AGUE.

Testmony of the Professor of Obstetrics in the Penn Medical College, Philadelphia—" DR. HUNTER'S MEDICAL MANUAL."—The author of this work, unlike the majority of those who adver-tise to cure the diseases of which it treats is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

Jos. S. Longshore, M. D.

From A. Woodward, M. D., of Penn University, Family Grocery & Provision | Philadelphia.—It gives me pleasure to add my testi mony to the professional ability of the author of the Medical Manual. Numerous cases of Disease the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health in some cases where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weak ness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by self-abuse or excessive venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recom mend him as one in whose professional skill and in tegrity they may safely confide themselves, ALFRED WOODWARD, M. D. "This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the classes of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his son. The author her deared the hands of his sons. The author has devoted ma ny years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff and too little presumption to impose, he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruit of some twenty years' most successful practice.

"No teacher or parent should be knowlede impared in this valuable work. It would save years of pain and mortification and sorrow to the youth unler their charge."-Pcoples' Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual" says—"Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into th habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and posterity The constitutions of thousands who are raising faurilies have been enfectled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remov this wide spread source of human wretchedcess would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, ou the present and coming gen eration. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicuting drinks) though it has slain thousands upon thou sands, is not a greater scourge to the human race Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and be lieve me your co-worker in the good work you are to actively engaged in."
