THE TIOGA COUNTY AGITATOR.

TOTELLIZED REALED FLATERANCE FOR THE FARMER. Thoughts Upon Feeding with Hay and Mixed Provender.

When hey and prain are plenty and offerpa-we Yankees trouble curselyes very little a-bout the peculiar value of their nutritive qualities. We push the hay into the rack, and pour the grain into the provender dish, without stint, and without caring about his peculiar properties, or the comparative nutritive qualities of the several grains used.

When the hay crop is cut short, and grain comes at a high price in the market, then we begin to enquire into the economy of this or that kind of feed. This enquiry, we grieve to say, is most generally prompted more to save our coppers than from any inherent desire to enlighten ourselves in the true philosophical qualifies of the feed we use. We care more for our pockets than for our brains, in this particular.

A common observer, who feeds farm stock any length of time, will learn that almost every kind of food given them will have pecultar results. Take the different kinds of hay, for instance that composed of the carex or sedge grasses-hrakes and polypods, from our boy lands-given to cattle will afford but] little futtening materials or muscular matter, and will render them costive or sluggish .---Sheep, however, will live on it better and longer than horned cattle. Now feed with the joint rush, or gunbright, as itis called, (the Liquisetum of botoaist,) which my and generally does, grow in the lower part of the same bug, but where the water stands in a' shoul, stagnant condition, and you see almost the reverse result. The muscles begin to fill out, the coat becomes more lively and glossy, the bowels become lax and the milk of the cows increase in quantity.

Now, there is no particular appearance of either to the eye, that will lead us to judge of religion ! What can I do for you ?" what would be the peculiar effects of each when fed to cattle. These effects are only ascertained by the experiment of feeding out, and why or wherefore such results take place can only be certainly determined by careful chemical analysis.

We see some such difference in the results of feeding caule and horses with the different kinds of upland hay. That made from clover has a different effect upon cuttle and horses from that made from some of the ordi-'nary grasses, such as red top, herdsgrass, The clover, being coarser and more Sec. bulky, distends the stomach more fully, and has a more relaxing action on the bowels than that made from herdsgrass, red top, &c., pound for pound.

Hay that contains "white weed." or "ox eye daisy," as some call it, has some such action as clover. Now, farmers have become acquainted with the facts, without knowing exactly the why or the wherefore. If this "why and wherefore" were truly known, a good deal of advantage might ofientimes be obtained from the knowledge.

For instance, if circumstances compelled you to feed your calle on bog hay, and you knew exactly what it lacked in order to enable it to bring about the same results that feeding on herdsgrass or clover hay would, you might probably add some other material by which the desired result would be obtained

This species of knowledge is well illustra-

Sowing cloverseed in the spring upon grain, or upon land that had been previously seeded with timothy, is so well understood in this region, that information upon this subject is scarcely information at all. Still we may not be doing any harm, in giving the method of an Indiana farmer, which will be found de-tailed below. The objection to sowing in the chaff, is the uncertainty of the quantity sown -otherwise the views of our Indiana friend

may possess some weight: My time for sowing is in the 8d month. (March,) about the last freeze, or cold spell, when the ground is frozen; if rain or wet weather precedes it, there will be icicles, as it were, oozed out of the ground, the seed falls between these, and when melted covers the seed nicely; it saves the trouble of harrowing, which is recommended by many, and s considered indispensible to late sowing. 1 also find, by experience, that sowing in the chaff is much the surest plan, as the hull or chaff, that encloses the seed, in dry weather holds moisture, and in late frosts or freezos, after the germ has made its appearance, it protects it and serves as a manure to strengthen the germ. Two years ago this spring, a neighbor sowed the same way I did, the fields adjoining-he put in clean seed, I sowed in the chaff: the result was, that mine was pretty well set, while his was an entire fuilure. sow 40 bushels in chaff on ten acres, having the previous fall sown it with timothy seed-that is equal to one clean. Sow plenty of seed and you are almost sure of having a good set. A clergyman was once sent for in the middle of the night by one of the ladies of his congregation.

"Well, my good woman," said he, "so you are very ill, and require the consolations "No," replied the old lady; "I am only nervous and can't sleep." "How can I help that?" asked the parson.

"O, sir, you always put me to sleep so nicely when I go to church, that I thought if you would only preach for me now !---" The parson "made tracks."

ted by using the different kinds of grain for provender. An observing farmer found that when he fed his horse on gais alone, his muscles seemed to swell out, and he was lively and strong. When he fed him on corn only, she found that he became more covered with fat, which, filling in around the muscles, caused him to look more plump and roundthat he was strong, but more dull, or less lively.

The chemist, by his analysis of these two grains, finds that there is most carbonaceous or fat forming material in the corn, and most nitrogenous or muscle, or in other words, flesh making material in oats. The farmer, learning this fact, says-"I can make it right now," and so had his corn and oats ground together, and fed the mixture to his horse .----By so doing, he became noted for having handsome horses. They were muscular, fat, strong and lively.

A true knowledge of these things makes the teeding of cattle not only pleasant but satisfactory to the reasoning power, but also profitable in a pecuniary point of view .--Maine Farmer.

Facts About Cattle.

IT is a fact that all domestic animals can be improved in size and value. One hundred and tifty years ago the average weight of cattle at the Smulfield Market was not over 370 pounds and that of the sheep 28 pounds. Now, the average weight of the former is over 200 lus, and of the latter 80 pounds.

The average weight of cattle, properly termed beeves, in the New York market, is about 700 pounds, and sheep 50 pounds.

- The average live weight of the heaviest drove of beeves of 100 in number ever brought to this market, was 2,087 pounds, weighed from dry feeding, in Illinois, last spring.

The mode of selling cattle in New York, is at so much per pound for the estimated weight of meat contained in the four quarters. The estimation is made upon the live weight of cattle as follows:

A drover in buying a lot of grass fed, common stock in Illinois, should never calculate to get an estimate of over one-half here of the live : weight there. That is, if a drove averages 12 cwt., they will make 6 cwt., o meat each.

Medium beeves may be estimated at 54 or 55 pounds per cwt. Good beaves at 56 or 57 pounds. Extra good, large and fat, from 58 to 62 pounds per cwt.

In the Boston market, is generally estimated upon "five quarter." that is the product of meat fat and skin. There the cattle are generally weighed, and the product estimated upon an average, 64 pounds per cwt. In New York not one bullock in ten thousand goes upon the scales to determine his price to the butcher.-N. Y. Tribune.
