BELLEVIE Daniel Late of the France !

Few crops can be turned to better account on a poor, light, gravelly soil, than backwheat. It possesses a chemical action on the soil, by which the coarser particles are disintegrated, or rendered finer, and the soil is, earth unmixed with animal or vegetable matter-is produced by the disintegration, or pulvenzing of rocks. Silex, or sand, is the oxide, or rust of silicum; or, to take if more familiar, it is pulverized quartz. Clay is produced by the decomposition of feldspar. Now all the quartz and feldspar in the world, while existing in the form of rock, will not produce a blade of grass; it is only when decomposed, or pulverized; and the finer the particles, the better the soil.

If a soil, then, is coarse, the object of the farmer should be to pulverise it, which can only be done by some chemical application. or the growing of some crop which has that chemical power. Buckwheat, by a process yet undiscovered, has that power, and the longer it is cultivated, on a given piece of ground, the finer will be the particles of the soil. It injures land for corn, but leaves it in fine order for potatoes, and is the best crop to kill out bushes, wild grass, and mellow green sward. To fit the land for the next succeeding crop in rotation, plow in a crop of buckwheat in blossom.

As a food for man, except in small quantities, we could not recommend it as cakes made from it, though light when hot, are heavy as liver when cold. A constant use of it, has a tendency, also, to produce cutaneous diseases; but, boiled with potatoes, apples, or pumpkins, it is first rate for hogs. When ground, it is excellent for milch cows. Fed raw, or left standing in the field, it is great for Shanghais, (they being allowed to harvest for themselves.) The blossoms afford material for the very best honey, and at a season of the year when other flowers are

It should never be given, in any form to horses, as it bloats them, rather than fattens; and what appears to be fat, put on a horse by buckwheat in a week, will disappear, by hard work, in a day .- Ohio Farmer.

Ashen Plaster, and Suit for Corn.

Ma. EDITOR:-I notice communications giving the results of experience in the use of various fertilizers for the corn crop, and I propose to give you an accidental experiment of my own. About four years ago I planted with small eight-rowed, yellow corp, near the middle of May, a field of five acres, which had lain in pasture for a dozen years or more, and was turned under just before planting. The corn came up looking yellow and stunted, and grew very slowly. When I had stunted, and grew very slowly. completed the first hosing, I considered the prospects of a crop desperate indeed. I had a couple of barrels of salt unfit for any domestic purpose. I made a compost by mixing four bushels of ashes with one of plaster and one half bushel of salt, and applied a small handful to each hill, about the roots of the corn. The effect was truly surprising. Within a very lew days the color changed to a luxuriant green, and my workmen asserted "they could fairly see it grow." The result was, I harvested 60 bushels per acre of the soundest, heaviest corn, (weighing 62 lbs. per bushel,) where at one time I did not expect one-sixth of that amount. I have since tried all combinations of ashes and plaster without salt, but never with such marked results. la looking over the American Muck Book

I find an analysis of the corn crop, that gives potash and soda as among its most important constituents. Potash is supplied by wood ashes, and soda by common salt, (chloride of Sodium.)-therefore, it strikes one that the union of these two must make a powerful manure for this important crop, upon all soils not already overcharged with these elements. As plaster is an acknowledged friend of this grain, an addition of this mixture must enhance its value, and aid in the preparation of proper food for the growing plants. I would like to hear from farmers who have had experience in the use of compost upon this and other crops, especially compost of which salt has formed a part. J. B. S. -Rural New Yorker.

Spare the Little Birds.

The swallows are the natural enemies of the swarming insects, living almost entirely upon them, taking their food upon the wing. The common martin devours great quantities of wasps, beetles and goldsmiths. A single bird will devour five thousand butterflies in a week. The moral of this is that the husbandman should cultivate the society of the awallows and martine about his land and out buildings.

The sparrows and wrens feed upon the crawling insects which lurk within the buds, foliage, and flowers of plants. The wrens are pugnacious, and a little box in a cherry tree will soon be appropriated by them, and they will drive away other birds that feed upon the fruit, a hint that cherry growers ought now to remember and act upon.

The thrushes, blue birds, jays and crows, prey upon butterflies, grasshoppers, crickets, locusts and the larger beetles. A single family of jays will consume 20,000 of these in a season of three months.

The woodpeckers are armed with a stout long bill, to penetrate the wood of trees, in which the borers deposit their larve. Theylive almost entirely upon these worms.

For the insects which come abroad only during the night, nature has provided a check in the nocturnal birds, of the whippoorwill tribe and the little barn owl, which take their food upon the wing.

How wonderful is this provision of Providence for the restraint of the depredators that live upon the labors of man; and how careful we should be not to dispute that beneficial law of compensation by which all things are preserved in their just relations and proportions .- Am. Agriculturist.

Natural History of the Locust.

The following information concerning the habits of the seventeen year locust, given by a writer in the Boston Advertiser, will be found interesting at the present time. In calling attention to it, we would suggest to students of natural history the propriety of making accurate observations of these curious insects, during their present appearance:

The locusts tayoriss resort in that of a copse of young and rather thin oak wood, where the soil is rather soft and light. They are first discovered in the ground near the surface, in the form of a large white grub or worm, and a quarter of an inch in diameter. Where or in what mode they pass through the crysalis state, and become fully invested with wings and other members, I do not know; but they are suon found in vast numbers, and in a full chorus of penorous voices, among the branches of the small trees. They have a distinctly marked W found on the back. In this stage of their lives they do not seem to feed. On opening one, the body appears to be a mers hollow shell, without any feeding or digesting organs. "They continus in this state, I believe, about six weeks or two months.

Shortly before their disappearance, many of the small twigs of the young cake appear to be girdled and partially out off, and hang suspended from the extremity of the branches. The leaves turn red as when touched by frost in autumn. On examination these twigs appear to be sawed about two thirds off and girdled, so that the circulation of san being cut off, it soon dies, and probably falls to the ground during the citeting whater by the acwous bus ning balw to noil

The general belief is, that by a curious and remarkable instinct, the ineset is led to deposit its eggs in some secure unaper upon these email twigs, and then thus partially to sever them from the parent stock, so that by their fall the eggs shall be borne gently and safely to the ground, into whose bosom they are in some form received and cherished, to resppear in the form of full-grown locusts, after the lapse of seventeen years. I am not aware that this fact of the deposit of eags upon the falling twig has been verified by actual observation, it is one of the points which require careful examination.

COUCHS, COLDS, MOARSENESS, BRON-CHITIS, CHOUP, ASTROL, WROOP-INC COUCH AND CONSUMPTION.

TVHIS remedy is offered to the community with the confidence we feel in an article which sel-dom fails to realize the happiest effects that can be desired. So wide is the field of its maginess and so numerous the cares of its cures, that almost every section of the country abounds in persons, publicly known; who liave been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs, by its use When once tried its superiority over every other medicine of its kind, is too apparent to escape obser. medicine of its kind, is to appeared to establish controlled in white antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmo nary organs, which are incident to our climate.

Nothing has called loader for the estress enquiry of medical men, then the alarming prevalence and Stalify of consumptive complaints, nor has any one class of diseases had more of their investigations and care. But as yet no adequate remedy has been provided, on which the public could depend for protection from attacks upon the respiratory organs, until the introduction of the CHERRY PECTORAL. This article is the product of a long, laborious, and I believe successful endeavor, to furnish the community with such a remedy. Of this last statement the American people are now themselves prepared to judge, and Lappeal with confidence to their decision if there is any dependance to be placed in what men of every class and station certify it has done for them, if we can trust our own senses, when we see dan-gerous affections of the throat and lungs yield to it, if we can depend on the assurance of intelligent phy-sicians, who make it their business to know,—in short, if there is any reliance upon anything, then is it irrefutably proven that this medicine does relieve and does cure the class of diseases it is de signed for, beyond any and all others that are knowto mankind. If this be true, it cannot be too freely published, nor be to widely known. The afflicted should know it. A remedy that cores, is priceless to them. Parents should know it, their children are riceless to them. All should know it, for health can can be priced to no one. Not only should it be circulated nere, but everywhere, not only in this coun try but in all countries. How faithfully we have acted on this conviction, is shown in the fact that stready this article has made the circles of the globe. The sun never sets on its limits. No continent is without it, and but few peoples. Although not in so general use in other nations as in this, it is employ ed by the more intelligent in almost all civilize countries. It is extensively employed in both America, in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the far off islands of the sea. Life is as dear to its possessors there as here, and they grasp at a valuable re medy with even more avidity. Unlike most prepa rations of its kind, it is an expensive composition of costly materials. Still it is afforded to the public at a reasonably low price, and what is of vastly more importance to them, its quality is never suffered to lecline from its original standard of excellence. Every bottle of this medicine, now manufactured, is as good as ever has been made heretofore, or as we are capable of making. No toil or cost is spared, in maintaining it in the best perfection which it is possible to produpe. Hence the patient who procures the genuine CHERRY PEOTORAL, can rely on having a good an article as has ever been had by these
