the seed his become partially matured, as lew and very small at thet. My method of they suppose the superior value of this adds the planter of the planter with the potatoes in the half fred this method, and am satisfied that the planter with the planter with the potatoes in the have tried this method, and am satisfied that the planter with the potatoes in the have tried this method, and am satisfied that the planter with the planter wi commence as soon as infloresches begins: He will then have time to get through having before the crop becomes too far advanced to wards maturity, and his hay, though less heavy, and consequently somewhat less valmable ha a market product, perhaps, will be much more succulent and sweet, than if permitted to stand till a later period, or till it becomes dead ripe,

The old method of making hay in the sun, and draing it till scarcely a particle of moisture is foll in the fibre, is now almost universally deprecated. On this subject, one of the greatest farmers who has ever lived, has the following remarks: ...

"As soon as the grass is fairly freed from moisture, it is put into narrow heaps, which are made as high as possible; and to prevent these from falling down, a small stake is driven into the ground, around which the grass is carefully arranged with the hands. A handfol of grass is then faken from one of the swaths, and the longest and strongest portions are chosen from it to cover the top of the heap or hay-cock with care being taken to trim the upper or flowering part of the grass downward. These pyramidial heaps are then suffered to remain until the grass of which they are composed, is thoroughly dry which is generally somewhere between the eighth and fifteenth day. On the heap being opened, the grass in the interior of it will generally be found to retain its hue and freshness. 1 have seen grass thus made into large beaps, in dry and windy weather, which has made very rapidly without requiring to be moved; and has been quite green. Temporary rain or showers will not do it any harm beyond that of depriving the external parts of some portion of its greenness; but should the wet weather continue for any considerable period of time, there is a possibility of the hay becoming too much compressed; it will then be necessary to open the heaps, and shake and loosen the hay, in order to prevent it from acquiring an unpleasant flavor."

This may be obviated by making the cocke small—say of about eighty pounds weight, when first put up, and covering carefully with green grass. I give you this for what it is worth-some may be induced to try it this season, on a small scale, and report the result. One thing is admitted by every one, which is, that the less the hay, in making, is exposed to the sun, the more valuable it is-it retains its color and flavor better, and consequently is worth a great deal more per ton than when dried up by the burning rays of the sun. I am respectfully Yours. J. B. R. Burlington Co. N. J.

Ashes in Agriculture.

Wood ashes is one of the most important fertilizers. It is easily obtained in any quantity and at little or no expense. Take them carefully from your hearths, and save them until your corn and potatoes have risen two inches from the ground; then take a basket on your arm and from it take a small handful of ashes and cast it at the root of your plants, and hoe them soon so as to cover the ashes. By this means you will increase your crop half.

Ashes contain all the inorganic substances of the wood or plants which are consumed, part of these are soluble and part insoluble; but the soluble substances mixed, with water will "dissolve the insoluble. Thus dissolved potash will dissolve silica and prepare it for glazing the stock of the cane corn, wheat, &c. Not a particle of ashes should go to waste, Leached ashes have parted with most of their potash, but still retain their phosphoric acid, and most of their lime.

Ashes neutralize acids in the soil; they warm cold, mossy, wet places; they are destructive to insects; they assist to break down and dissolve the course fibres and stocks in the compost heaps, render hard, clayey soil open, loamy and fertile.

The potesh, so material to most crops, can be obtained here only from ashes. In granite regions, potash is obtained from a dissolution of feldspar, but we have none in this country

Wheat contains a large portion of potashfifty-nine per cent, of the ashes of corn is carbonate of potash, and one-half of the earthy part of Irish potatoes, is pure potash. Save your ashes therefore as carefully as you do your five and ten cent pieces, and apply them to your crops with care, and you will find them of a rich, deep color while growing, and heavy with nutriment at har-

FARE INPLEMENTS .- To use that old plow longer is bad economy; repairs have already come to more than the original cost, and still it is an old, ricketty plow. It always did "run to land" too much, and always will, perplexing the plowman and fretting the team. It has a radical defect past all cure of inventor or mechanic. Do not work with heavy, uncouth implements—they drag down the body like a perpetual sorrow upon the mind. Boys often acquire a disgust for farming merely from the use of the miserable implements placed in their hands. The light. er the took the better, if strong enough for the work for which it was intended. The workman who uses his shovel to pry up a stone, and breaks it, should be required to pay for it, and the next time, if not incorrigibly lazy, he will probably use the bar. Use light rakes, made of good material, and so of hoes, spades, shovels, and all other implements, We have beaten the English in the construction of our agricultural implements, in their adaptation to the work required of them.-

Philadelphia.—It gives me pleasure to add my testi mony to the professional ability of the author of the Medical Manual. Numerous cases of Disease 10 the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health in some cases where the patient has been considered beyon medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produce by self-abuse or excessive venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as kinduces to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recom mend him as one in whose professional skill and in tegrity they may safely confide themselves, ALFRED WOODWARD, M. COUGUS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRON-CHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOP-ING COUGH AND CONSUMPTION.

THIS remedy is offered to the community with the confidence we feel in an article which selden fails to realize the happiest effects that can be desired. So wide is the field of its oscillages and so numerous the cases of its cures, that almost every section of the country abounds in persons, publicly known, who have been restored from darming and even desperate diseases of the lungs, by its use. When once tried its superiority over every other medicine of its kind, is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmo many organs, which are incident to our climate. Nothing has called londer for the earnest enquiry of medical men, than the alarming prevalence and fatality of consumptive complaints, nor has any one class of diseases had more of their investigations and care. But as yet no adequate remedy has been provided, on which the public could depend for protection from attacks upon the respiratory organs, un till the introduction of the CHERRY PECTORAL. This article is the product of a long, laborious, and believe successful endeavor, to furnish the community with such a remedy. Of this last statement the American people are now themselves prepared to judge, and I appeal with confidence to their decision If there is any dependance to be placed in what men of every class and station certify it has done for them, If we can trust our own senses, when we see dan gerous affections of the throat and lungs yield to it, if we can depend on the assurance of intelligent physicians, who make it theif business to know short, if there is any reliance upon anything, then is it irrefutably proven that this medicine does relieve and does cure the class of diseases it is designed for, beyond any and all others that are knowto munkind. If this be true, it cannot be too freely published, nor be to widely known. The afflicted should know it. A remedy that cures, is priceless to them. Parents should know it, their children are to them. Farents should know it, for health can ing orders may rest assured of having them exceptions to them. All should know it, for health can ing orders may rest assured of having them exceptions by priced to no one. Not only should it be circulated nore, but everywhere, not only in this coun particular the same as though they attended in pertry but in all countries. How teithfully we have acted on this conviction, is shown in the fact that already this article has made the circles of the globe. The sun never sets on its limits. No continent is without it, and but few peoples. Although not in so general use in other nations as in this, it is employed by the more intelligent in almost all civilized countries. It is extensively employed in both Amer ica, in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the far off islands of the sea. Life is as dear to its possessors there as here, and they grasp at a valuable re medy with even more avidity. Unlike most preparations of its kind, it is an expensive composition o costly inatorials. Still it is afforded to the public at a masonably low price, and what is of vasily importance to them, its quality is never suffered to decline from its original standard of excellence. every bottle of this medicine, now manufactured, is as good as ever hus been made heretofore, or as we are capable of making. No toil or cost is spared, in maintaining it in the best perfection which it is possible to produce. Hence the patient who procures the genuine Cherry Pectoral, can rely on having as good an article as has ever been had by those who testify to its cures.

By pursuing this course, I have the hope of doing some good in the world, as well as the satisfaction of believing that much has been done already.
