Another method that I would recommend for destroying these millers that produce the opple worms, is to take shavings or straw, and light fires in the orchard in the evening, in the month of June. As soon as the millers see the light they will fly toward it and be consumed in the flames. Millions may be destroyed every season in this way.

The Potato Rot.

Mr. W. Fugate, of Kinderhook, Ill., claims to have discovered a preventative of the potato rot. He says that the rot is produced by an insect called the potato bug, which infests the vines. These bugs never appear until the vines are shedding their blossoms. By this time the potato has received its generative properties from the flower, and the vine is no longer necessary for the producing and enlargement of the roots. He therefore recommends as a remedy to mow the vines all off, being careful to leave some three or four inches above the ground, but permitting no leaves to remain on the Shrubs. He has tried this plan for the last two years with great success. The first year he cut his vines, it was done more through vexation at the bugs than at any thing else; but to his great surprise when usual digging time arrived, he had as fine potatoes as he had ever raised.

"Last year while mowing off the vines, he lest two rows unmowed for the bugs as au experiment. Those rows prouduced a few small potatoes, which were full of rot, while Alcohol, the others were perfectly sound. The same bugs fell to eating his tomatoes and beets. - Aloes, The beets stopped growing, and were of no Ammonia, use, and the tomatoes had a similar rot to Annetto, that of the potatoes. This had led him to Antimony, believe that these bugs deposit a poison of a Arnica, blighting nature in every vegetable they

Agricultural Reading.

The increased attention and encouragement given to this branch of literature of late years, demonstrates fully that farmers are sensible of its incalcuable advantages. The large number of well supported and flourishing agricultural periodicals which have sprung up within a few years, and the agricultural column, however poorly filled, to be found in every newspaper, are now indispensable to the farming community, and are read with fully as much interest, and we hope profit, as any other department. These publications are now within the reach of all, and no one can plead inability to subscribe and pay for such works as the American Farmer, the Country Gentleman, the Genesee Farmer, the Country Gentleman, the Genesee Farmer, and others published in other States, not to speak of our own Farm Journal, in which every Pennsylvanian should feel a local pride. Every farmer in the State should contribute to the support of this periodical, as it is devoted almost entirely to the agricultural interest of this State, and containing the experience and advice of our best practical

It is not alone by reading and commenting upon the experience and advice of others that we are benefitted by these publications. We should try for ourselves the experiments whose results are published by others, as wisdom is always better learned by our experience than by any other means. Our own judgment, when properly assisted by the careful and impartial consideration of the advice of our brother farmers, is the best and most reliable guide to success in agriculture.

As another evidence of the beneficial effect of agricultural reading, we need only refer to the great improvement which has been shown in the quality of all kinds of stock within a year. Information on this point can by no other means be so well disseminated, and all have ample opportunities of practically applying such information at our county and State exhibitions.

Although we advise every farmer in this county to patronize and read these publications which are devoted exclusively to agriculture, we would again remind them that our own columns are always open to communications and advice upon this important subject, in which none feel a deeper interest than ourselves .- Burks Co. Intelligencer.

NUTRIMENT OF ONIONS .- Prof. Johnson gives his opinion in favor of onions as a very nutritious vegetable, and for laboring men with strong digestive powers quite healthy.

From A. Woodward, M. D., of Penn University Philadelphia.—It gives me pleasure to add my testi mony to the professional ability of the author of th Medical Manual. Numerous cases of Disease 30 the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health in some cases where the patient has been considered beyond medicul aid. In the treatment of Seminal ness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by self-abuse or excessive venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recom mend him as one in whose professional skill and in tegrity they may safely confide themselves, Alfred Woodward, M. LEWIS C. PENDLETON.

Wellsborough, March 1, '55-tf.

For the Cure of COUCHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRON-CHITIS, CROUP, ASTHMA, WHOOP-

ING COUGH AND CONSUMPTION. PHIS remedy is offered to the community with the confidence we feel in an article which seldom fails to realize the happiest officets that can be desired. So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous the cases of its cures, that almost every section of the country abounds in persons, publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs, by its use. When once tried its superiority over every other medicine of its kind, is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmo nary organs, which are incident to our climate.

Nothing has called loader for the earnest enquiry of medical men, than the alarming prevalence and fatality of consumptive complaints, nor has any one class of diseases had more of their investigations and care. But as yet no adequate remedy has been provided, on which the public could depend for pro lection from attacks upon the respiratory organs, un till the introduction of the CHERRY PECTORAL. This article is t approduct of a long, laborious, and I believe successful endeavor, to furnish the community with such a remedy. Of this last statement the American people are now themselves prepared to judge, and I appeal with confidence to their decision If there is any dependance to be placed in what men of every class and station certify it has done for them if we can trust our own senses, when we see dan-gerous affections of the throat and lungs yield to it, we can depend on the assurance of intelligent physicians, who make it theif business to know,—in short, if there is any reliance upon anything, then is it irrefutably proven that this medicine does relieve and does cure the class of diseases it is de signed for, beyond any and all others that are know-to mankind. If this be true, it cannot be too freely published, nor be to widely known. The afflicted should know it. A remedy that cures, is priceless to them. Parents should know it, their children are riceless to them. All should know it, for health can can be priced to no one. Not only should it be circulated nere, but everywhere, not only in this country but in all countries. How faithfully we have acted on this conviction, is shown in the fact that already this article has made the circles of the globe. The sun never sets on its limits. No continent is without it, and but few peoples. Although not in so general use in other nations as in this, it is employed by the more intelligent in almost all civilized countries. It is extensively employed in both America, in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the far off islands of the sea. Life is as dear to its possessors there as here, and they grasp at a valuable re medy with even more avidity. Unlike most preparations of its kind, it is an expensive composition of costly materials. Still it is afforded to the public at a reasonably low price, and what is of vastly more importance to them, its quality is never suffered to decline from its original standard of excellence. Every bottle of this medicine, now manufactured, is as good as ever has been made heretofore, or as we are capable of making. No toil or cost is spared, in maintaining it in the best perfection which it is pos-sible to produce. Hence the patient who procures the genuine CHERRY PECTORAL, can rely on having as good an article as has ever been had by those who testify to its cures.

By pursuing this course, I have the hope of doing some good in the world, as well as the satisfaction of believing that much has been done already. Prepared by J. C. AYER, Practical and
