"The mischief makers: Nor-do they trust their tengues alone, But speak a language of their own; Can read a nod, a shrug or luok, Far better than a printed book; Convey a libel in a frown, Or wink a reputation down."

The duties and obligation of social life are often minunderstood, as well as sadly violated. The confidence of friends is abused, and the insidious, the hypocritical, and the malignant, take advantage of the thoughtless ex pressions, uttered, perhaps, in moments of excilemeni, la provoke distrust, loment jeslousy, and thus gause bitterness and ill-will. It has been well and forcibly said, "that to repeat what you have heard in social intercourse, is sometimes a deep treachery." The idle tattler, who runs from door to door, listens eagerly to all that is said, then repeats, exaggerntes, or by wicked insinuations, conveys a meaning that was never intended, is a source of infinite mischief, and often of bitter and boncless feuds between neighbors and famihes. We can conceive of no treachery more deplorable or censurable, than that which abuses the frankness and confidence of an honest nature, and by persuasion or distrust, crentes an offence and inflicts a wound where nothing of the kind was intended. Thus a confidential conversation will be repeated, with the most solemn injunction not to betray the mischief maker, who only tells the whole truth, but adds some unauthorized interpretation, or describes the manner as having been offensive, when the fact was exactly otherwise. Some dark suggestion, hint, or invendo, is also made, and thus a playful remark, or a frank expression is tortured into a slander, an insult, or a slight. The breach thus created-unwitting's created, so far as the original parts are concerned-is widened from day to day by a double system of treachery and betrayal; the mischief maker professing to be confidential with parties, and joining secresy upon both. Hence, hearts become estranged, friendship broken, and affection is stiffed.

makers who are so, thoughtlessly, foolishly, and without any deep, deliberate, or serious design of doing evil. They are simply blabbers, or tattlers, who lack discretion, judgment and common sense, and who have never been able to practice the philosophy of holding their tougues. But there are others who are subile, wily and adroit, and who, as if prompted by some incarnate fiend, seek for and study every apportunity to undermine. underrate, darken character, destroy reputation, impair confidence and sever friendship. We can conceive of no darker illustration of human depravity. There is scarcely an individual in existence who could not be injured seriously, if not fatally, by such insidious and double-faced guile. It is impossible, at all times, to be watchful and wary, especially in social life; and when the intercourse in free, frank and undisguised, at such times the thoughts and feelings are apt to be expressed with the utmost freedom, and even weakness and prejudices of cherished friends to be alluded to not in bitterness, or weakness, but in confidence, sincerity and sympathy .-I however, la malicious mischief maker happens to be at hand, it is the easiest thing in the world to misrepresent the real fact of the case, so as to annoy, irritate and inflame, to create a sentiment of distrust and of coldness, and thus to lay the foundation of a misunderstanding which, if followed up, is sure to end in enmity and ill will. Some persons are, moreov , quite sensitive on certain subjects, while others are particularly credulous. The mischiel maker is sure to discover all this and play his game accordingly.

There are we are aware, many mischief

There might be many illustrations pointed out; suffice it to say, the vice is heartless, cruel and dangerous, and its victims directly. or indirectly, may be counted by thousands. It is such an easy thing to wound a sensitive spirit. It is so light a thing to stain or soil the reputation; confidence may be so readily disturbed; suspicion may be so promptly excited. How many merchants have had their credit ruined; how many honest men have had their prospects blighted, and their families subjected to all the horrors of poverty; how many unkindnesses have been provoked; how many familes have been made miserable by the thoughtless, or the vicious, the heedless or the crafty and malignant propensity of ed over the year. No subscription taken for a shorthe mischief maker. The poor wretch who, it a moment of necessity, and laboring under the horrors of hunger, commits some pality these, with the object of satisfying the cravings. the mischief maker. The poor wretch who, theft, with the object of satisfying the cravings of nature, is promptly accessed, convicted and sent to "durance vile." But him miny destroyers of the peace of families, dis school (of fourteen lines or less,) for the first or three con-of the happiness of households, in brief, moral assassins of character, perform their wicked work so artfulty, stealthily and hypocritically that they see the ruin and the wreck they make, and yet contrive to escape the responsibility. Let them be assured, however, that a day of reckoning will come.

A WIFE'S INELUENCE.

A woman, in many instances, has her husband's fortune in her power, because she may or she my not conform to his circumstances. This is her first duty, and it ought to be her pride. No passion for luxury or display ought to tempt her for a moment to deviate in the least degree from this line of conduct. She will find her respectability in it. And other course is wretchedness itself, and inevetably leads to ruin.

Nothing can be more miserable than to struggle to keep up appearances. If it could succeed, it would cost more than it is worth; as it never can, its failure of the deepest mortification. Some of the sublimest exhibitions of human virtue have been made by women, who have been precipitated suddenly from wealth and splendor to absolute want

Then a'man's fortunes are, in a manner. in the hands of his wife, inasmuch as his own power of exertion depends on her .-His moral strength is inconceiveably increased by her sympathy, her council, he aid. She can aid him immensely by relieving him of every care which she is capable of taking upon herself. His own employments are usually such as to require his whole time and his whole mind.

A good wife will never suffer her hus-

An old woman keeping a so called "crocks ney stand," was one day accosted by a wag

"How do you sell these oranges?".

"Two cents,' she replied.

"Well,' said he taking up one and turn-ng it over in his hand, "how do sell this cake?"

"The same price." "Suppose I give you back the orange and ake the cake 7" "Very well."

"Is this pie two cents?" "Yes,"

"Well, I'll take this pie after all instead the cake. What do you ask for cider?"

"Two cents a glass." "I'ake the pie back and give me a drink of cider."

"Certainly."

A glass was filled and handed to the cusomer, who, after swallowing the came, smacking his lips with great gusto, was deliberately walking off, when he was accosted

"Please, master, you havent paid me for vour cider."

Our friend coolly observed.

"What should I pay for ?"

"The cider, to be sure."

"Did'nt I give you the pie for it."

"Yes, but you did'nt pay for the cake." "Very well, I exchanged the cake for it."

"I gave the orange for it." "The orange is two cents."

In a village in the Southern part of the State, a merchant had got painted on the fences round the village-"Go to Markham's to trade."

A keen, quick-witted rival followed around after him and painted under the line—"if you want to get skinned."

IF vanity overturns not our virtues it certainly makes them totter.

From A. Woodward, M. D., of Penn University Philadelphia.—It gives me pleasure to add my testi mony to the professional ability of the author of th Medical Manual. Numerous cases of Disease to the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health in some cases where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weak-ness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by self abuse or excessive venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recom mend him as one in whose professional skill and in tegrity they may safely confide themselves, ALPRED WOODWARD, M. D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehen-sive and intelligible work published on the classes of discuses of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers.
It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath io puff and too little presumption to impose, he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruit of some twenty years' most successful practice. —Herald.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual" says - "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and posterity The constitutions of thousands who are raising faurilies have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and they do not know the cause or cure. Anything, that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide aprend source of human wretchedeess, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, ou the present and coming generation. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicuting drinks) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race.
