When builer is designed for keeping a num ber of months, it is of the highest degree of,), importance that it should be worked free from all regiality of butter milk. "Pore butter is an oil which will keep equally as well as lard or tallow. Buttermilk, on the contrary, contains casoin, a pitrogenous compound, which decays very soon when in contact with sir! Were it possible to temove every particle of the buttermilk, and all traces of impurities or foreign substances, no salt would be required, nor would it it be necessary to pack butter away from the air.

SALTING.

In saling butter the salt itself should be of the purest kind, and it should: be so thoroughly worked in that every particle of the remaining buttermilk be left in direct contact with a particle of salt. A very simple method of purifying salt for butter or cheese is, to add a pint of boiling water to four or five pounds of salt; stir them well now and then for an hour or more; drain off- the water, and hang the undissolved salt in a bag to drain and dry. (The drainings may be used for salting an mals, or putting upon hay.)-In this process the water dissolves out the bitter; disagrecable portions of the salt,—the chlorides of magnesiun and calcium, -which are more soluble than pure salt. A little care of this kind is a thousand times remunerated in the sweeter taste and better quality, both of butter and cheese.

The amount of salt to be added to butter depends upon its freedom from casein-that is, upon the amount of working and washing it has received-and upon the length of time it is to be kept; and also upon the manner of packing and the climate or degree of heat to which it is to be subjected. If butter is thoroughly freed from casein and packed in vessels nearly air-tight, with the salt well worked in, and when not to be subjected to high temperature in warm climates, it will keep well with less than half an ounce of salt to the pound. Where none of these conditions are met, one and a half ounces, or even more, are required.

Many of the best butter makers reccommend to add one half of the salt, and let it stand twenty-four hours; then work over ngain and add the other half. This process removes more of the water, and, as a consequence, more of the casein. To secure uniformity in adding the salt, spread the butter in a thin sheet, sprinkle a little salt all over the surface, roll it together, and repeat the gathers in the ripened grain of life. Life the process, till all is added.

PACKING.

For home use, stone ware vessels are undoubtedly the best. For transportation to These should always be made of perfectly seasoned timber, and be water tight. There is so much danger of "flavor" from the wood that we have recommended heating the inside of the butter tubs nearly to charring, and then soaking them in a strong brine for a few hours or days. The heating can be done by placing them over a small coal furentire inside is charred. The aromatic sap of the wood will, by this means, be destroyed, and the tubs will be all the more durable .-After burning, the inside should of course be scraped entirely clean. The importance of packing tubs. In putting down the butter, let it be thoroughly pressed together to free it from confined air, and then let its surface be kept as much as possible from access of nir. If the tubs or firking can be headed up, so much the better.

We have kept butter in a tub unchanged for an entire year, by covering it with a strong brine, and taying a cloth over it.

The First Telegraph Message.

The following from an exchange paper, gives a description of the circumstances connected with the successful termination of Professof Morse's efforts to establish the electric telegraph, together with the occasion for the treasmission of the first telegraphic message that passed over its wires:

Ele now returned to his native land, from Europe, and proceeded immediately to Washingion, where he renewed his endeavors to procure the passage of the bill granting the appropriation of $30,000. Towards the close of the session of 1844 the House of Representatives took it up and passed it by a large majority, and it only remained for the action of the Senate. Its progress through the may live comfortably when we grow old; and House, as might be suspected, was watched when we are old, we preceive it is too late to with the most intense anxiety by Professor Morse. There were only two days before the close of the session, and it was found onexamination of the calender, no less than 143 bills had preceeded it.

. Prof. Morse had nearly reached the bottom of his purse, his hard earned savings were almost spent, and although he had struggled on with undying hope for many years, it is hardly to be wondered at if he felt disharted now. On the last night of the session he remained till 9 o'clock, and then lest without the slightest hope that the bill would be passed. He returned 10, his hotel, counted his money, and found that after paying his expenses to New York, he would have seventy five cents left. That night he went to bed sad, but not withot hope for the future, for through all his difficulties and trials, that neves forsook him. The next morning, as he was going to breaklast, one of the waiters informed him that a young lady was in the par-lor waiting to see him. He went in immediately, and found that the young lady was Miss Ellsworth, daughter of the Commission. er of Patents, who had been his most stead fast friend while in Washington.

"I come," said she, "to congratulate you." "For what ?" said Prof. Morse. "On the passage of your bill," she replied.40h, no; you must be mistaken,! said he. "I remained in the Senate till a late hour last night, and there was no prospect of its being CAnt the first then," she exclaimed joy-fully, "to tell you?"

"You Killiand so. ZE JIIIAN "Well," she continued "Yather remeine I asked him it I might not run over and lell

you. Annie said the Professor, his emotion almost choking his atterance, "Annie, the first message that is sent from Washington to Baltimore shall be sent from you."
"Well," slie replied, "I will keep you to YOU THER FOR CAME was no statement with

While the line was in process of completion, Prof. Morse was in New Work, and ppon receiving intelligence that it was in working order, he wrote to those in charge, telling them not to transmit any message over it un-til his arrival. He then set out, immediately for, Miss Ellsworths, informing her that he was now ready to fulfil his promise, and asked what message he should send.

To this he received the following reply: "What hath God wrought?"-words that, ought to be written in characters of living light. The message was twice repeated, and each time with the greatest success. As soon as the result of the experiment was made known, Gov. Seymour of Connecticut, who is at present United States Minister of St. Petersburg, called upon Prof. Morse and claimed the first message for his State, on the ground that Miss Eliaworth was a native of Hartford. We need scarcely add that his claim was admitted, and now, engraved in letters of gold it is displayed consequely Butts and Screws, Door Hangings, Bitts, &c., &c. letters of gold, it is displayed conspicously in the archieves of the Historical Society of Connecticut.

To Cook New Potatoes.

No matter how small new potatoes are they may be cooked so as to be a most delicious and healthful summer vegtable. After boiling, you should let them get thoroughly cold. They should then be sliced into a wooden bowl, and chopped with a chopping knife, but not very fine. Put them into a frying pan and let them warm over a slow fire, adding a lump of butter and milk sufficient to moisten well. Season while warming with salt to suit the taste.

Another Method. Scrape the potatoes; and boil in just water enough to cover them; when done, pour of the water, and add butter or good milk or cream, with salt or a little parsley. Let it come to a boil, and take it

Indeed, wery few are the discussed in which a Purgative Medicones is not more or less required, and much sick-mess and suffering might be prevented if a harmless but effectual Cathartic were more freely used. No person can feel well while a costive mobil of the first in the serious and often fatal discusses, which might have been avoided by the timely and judicious use of a good purgative. This is alike true of Colds, Feverish symptoms, and Billous derangements. They all tend to become or produce the deep seated and formidable distempers which load the hearness all over the land. Hence a reliable family physic is of the first importance to the public health, and this Bill has been perfected with consummate skill to meet that demand. An extensive trial of its virtues by Physicians, Professors, and Patients, has shown results gurpassing any thing hitherto known of any medicine. Cures have been effected beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Among the many eminent gentlemen who have testified in fuvor of these Pills, we may mention:

Hotel, and others.

Did space permit, we could give many hundred certificates, from all parts where the Pills have been used, but evidence even more convincing than the experience of eminent public men is found in

These Fills, the result of long investigation and study, are offered to the public as the best and most complete which the present state of medical study, are oneren to the phone as the best and most complete which the precent state of medical science can afford. They are compounded not of the drugs themselves, but of the medicinal virtues only of Vegetable remedies, extracted by chemical process in a state of purity, and combined together in such a manner as to insure the best results. This system of composition for medicines has been found in the Cherry Pectoral and Pills both, to produce a more efficient remedy than had hitherto been obtained by any process. The reason is perfectly obvious. While by the old mode of composition, every medicine is burdened with more or less of acrimonious and injurious qualities, by this each individual virtue only that is desired for the curative effect is present. All the inert and obnoxious qualities of each substance employed are left behind, the curative virtues only being retained. Hence it is self-evident the effects should prove as they have proved more purely remedial, and the Pills a surer.

self-evident the cfiects should prove as they have proved more purely remedial, and the l'ills a surer, more powerful anlidote to disease than any other medicine known to the world.

As it is frequently expedient that my medicine should be taken under the counsel of an attending Physician, and as he could not properly indge of a remedy without knowing its composition, I have supplied the accurate Formule by which both my Pectoral and Pills are made to the whole body of Practitioners in the United States and British American Provinces. If, however, there should be any ican Provinces. If, however, there should be any one who has not received them, they will be promptly forwarded by mail to his address.

Of all the Patent Medicines that are offered, how few would be taken if their composition was known! Their life consists in their mystery. I have no

The composition of my preparations is laid open to all men, and all who are competent to judge on the subject freely acknowledge their convictions of their intrinsic merits. The Cherry Pectoral was pronounced by scientific men to be a wonderful medicine before its effects were known. Muny eminent Physicians have declared the same thing of my Pills, and even more confidently, and are willing to certify that their anticipations were more than realized by their effects upon trial.

They operate by their ferential inductions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Being sugar wrapped they are pleasant to take, and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.
