A Young Lady lost in a Snow Storm

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE. IOWA POINT, K. T., Saturday, Feb. 9, '85. This has been a day of excitement in our quiet town, caused by a young lady in this neighborhood being lost in a snow-storm.

The facts are as follows: A Miss Martha Perkins, who resides five miles from this place, was on a visit to her brother-in-law, who resides here. On Tuesday night, the 5th inst., she started to walk home. It was snowing hard at the time she started and continued for two days.

There, in the deep snow, she constructed a little house out of the tall grass that grew near by, and there she spent the first night of camp life, without food to sustain life, or fire to warm, or any clothing except her apparel to shelter her, the little wood house she had erected being the only thing she had to shield her from exposure to the cold winds and the storm.

It was a most miraculous escape from death, and those noble spirits who searched and found her, deserve great praise. To think that a young and delicate girl, not over sixteen years, could travel through such a snow storm five miles, wading often waist-deep in snow, lying out on the open prairie exposed to the storm of snow and the piercing blasts of the wintry wind four days and nights without food, fire, or even a blanket, and then live, is hard to believe; but such is the fact beyond a doubt.

As he spoke he looked along the tables, and a slight emotion was visible among the borders; and the man who sat opposite with his mouth full of edibles, with which he was endeavoring to smother a laugh, grew dark with the effort, and then collapsed, scattering dismay and crumbs over old Roger's shirt flaps.

As he spoke he looked along the tables, and a slight emotion was visible among the borders; and the man who sat opposite with his mouth full of edibles, with which he was endeavoring to smother a laugh, grew dark with the effort, and then collapsed, scattering dismay and crumbs over old Roger's shirt flaps.

Excellent Advice.—On the subject of behavior in company, Leigh Richmond, gives the following excellent advice to his daughters: "Be cheerful, be not gigglers, be serious but not dull. Be communicative, but not forward. Be kind but not servile. Beware of silly thoughtless speeches; although you may forget them, others will not. Remember that God's eye is every place, and His ear in every company. Beware of levity and familiarity with young men; a modest reserve without affectation is the only safe path. Court and encourage serious conversation, and go not into intelligent company without endeavoring to improve by the intercourse permitted. Nothing is more unbecoming, when one part of the company is engaged in profitable and interesting conversation, than that another party should be trifling and talking comparatively nonsense."

Lighting the Lamps of Heaven.—We find the following unique explanation of electrical phenomena in the Knickerbocker. A little girl, the idol of a friend of ours, was sitting by the window one evening during a violent thunder storm, apparently striving to grapple some proposition too strong for her childish mind. Presently a smile of triumph lit up her features as she exclaimed, "Oh, I know what makes the lightning; it's God lighting his lamps and throwing the matches down here."

"Halloo Steward!" exclaimed a fellow in one of the steamboats, after having retired to bed. "Here, massa." "Bring me the water-bill." "What for, massa?" "I want to see if these bed bugs put down their names for this berth before I did; if not, I want 'em turned out."

A rich four pointer, has been found out west. He has been exhibited with ring tailed monkeys, wild hogs, shaver horses, three legged calves, and other trinkets.

Donna says he can't understand why his sister likes the society of young men so much, he says he would rather be with one lady than twenty men.
