Scieet Miscellany.

Some of the Causes of Female Debilities.

The hours in which the great majority of American mothers and housekeepers are free from care, and can go forth to breathe the pure sir or join in social amusements, as ts so common in other nations, come few and for between. To this add all the mischief done by impure air, improper food and neglect of the skin, which they share equally with the other sex. But, worst of all, add isn't very often beat, as far as speed is conto those disadvantages the pernicious custom of dress, by which one-half the body is subpected to extreme changes from heat to cold, while the other portion is compressed by tight girding, heated by accumulated garments, pressed downward by whalebones, and by heavy skirts resting over the most delicate are abundant. Corn, wheat, oats, rye, hemp, organs. Into our rural towns, even, these per- sweet and Irish potatoes can be produced as nicious customs of dress have been carried if they were indigenous of the climate, while by mantua makers from the city, and still more by the miserable fashion plates, in our hierniure, that set forth the distortions of deformity and disease as models of taste and fashion. In our country towns, and among the industrial classes, it will be found that the taxation of care and labor on the brain horned cattle, horses, sheep and swine." of women is even worse and greater than it is in the same class of our cities. The wives of rich farmers are often ambitious to up. What is a pyramid?" carry out plans of labor and wealth with their husbands, while their daughters must be other. ment to boarding school, and all the habits and tastes of city life must, in consequence, be mingled with other cares. The great majority of the American women have their brain and nervous system exhausted by too much care and too much mental excitement in their daily duties; while another class. who live to be waited on and amused, are as only one outlettotothemsir." great sufferers for want of some worthy obtect in life, or from excess in seeking amusement. Next, there never has been any previous generation of children who have been so extensively deprived of pure, cool air in nursery, school-room, and parlor as those now on the stage. The air tight stoves in bedrooms, the cooking stoves in kitchens, the close stoves in school-rooms, and the far greater care taken to make windows and doors tight, have secured this result. Then the furnaces that are so generally used, keep the atmosphere of a house far warmer than n ever becomes with open fires. For, when the body is warmed by radiated heat from a fire, the sir never becomes so heated as when all warm'h is to be gained from the surrousding atmosphere. And as the upper part of the room is always warmest, both stoves and furnaces keep the head warmer than the feet, and, furnish to the lungs only a heated atmosphere to breathe. In former days little girls took cold air baths all over their person whenever they went out. In these days, when they feel a chill or have cold feet .-Besides this, the school-rooms are made tighter and heated hotter than they ever could be in former days. At the same time they are crowded with occupants whose brains, while struggling with bad air, are stimulated with tutellectual drills and exciting motives to exertion, such as never were known to a former generation. Little girls are especial sufferers in all that appertains to health .-They must be housed most of the time in heated and impure air, and then when al. plied, rolling his eyes skyward. lowed to go abroad, they must wear thin elippers, and must not romp and run like the tion of brain increases, the exercise diminishes, and the monstrous fashions that bring distortion and disease are assumed. In England, the higher classes rarely send a daughtperfect physical developement. Twenty years ago, a distinguished medical man gave it as his opinion that a majormy of school girls had more or less of the curvature of the spine. A still more terrific defermity Than this is pow added as the resuit of our miserable neglect and abuse of the

er to a boarding school, but parents secure tenchers to educate them at home, and take the greatest pains to secure a healthy and

AGE .- But few men die of age. Almost all die of disappointment, passional, mental, or bodily toil, or accident. The presions kill men sometimes, even suddenly. The common expression, choked with passion, has little exaggeration in it; for even though not suddenly fatal, strong passions shorten life. Strong hodied men often die young-weak men live longer than the strong, for the strong use their strength, and the weak have none to use. The latter take care of themselves; the former do not. As it is with the body, so it is with the mind and temper. The strong are apt to break, or, like the candle, to run; the weak burn out. The inferior animals, which live, in general, temperate lives, have generally their prescribed term of years. The horse lives twenty-five years; the ox fifteen or twenty; the lion about twenty; the dog ten or twelve; the rabbit eight; the guinea pig six or seven. These numbers all bear a similar proportion to the time the animal takes to grow to its full size. But man of all the animals, is the one that seldom comes up to his average. He ought to live a hundred years, according to the physiological law, for five times twenty are one hundred; but instead of that he scarcely reaches, on the everage four times his growing period; the cat six times; and the rabbit seven or eight times the standard of the measurement. The reason is obvious-man is not only the most irregular, and the most intemperate, but the most laborious and hard worked of all animals. He is also the most irritable of all animals; and there is reason to believe, though we cannot tell what an animal secretely feels, that more than any other animal man cherishes wrath to keep it warm, and consumes himself with the fire of his own secret reflections.

REMEMBER that an impious or profane thought, uttered by a parent's lips may operate on the young heart like a careless spray of water thrown upon polished steel, staining it with rust which no after scouring can

AN INCIDENT OF YESTERDAY, They met, twas on the sidewalk, he thought to cut a swell; so he raised his beaver gracefully, bent his, body like an L. She bowed and smiled so sweetly, that he thought her very nice, quite forgetting for the moment that he stood upon the ice. Thus, little reeking what he did, or how he stood, or where, his head approached the pavement, and his heels went up in the air; while he sternly and with violence, on the sidewalk took his sent, and with a very sheepish look, picked himself up, and, the way he "put" around the corner, isn't very often bent, as fat as sneed is conmont substantial manner, and under his own supercerned, at all events.

A resident of Kansas, furnishes a Chicago paper his opinion of the probable character of that territory, "The soil and climate are highly praised. Coal, lime and sand-stone cotton would not be an unprofitable crop in southern portions. Fruit is brought to perfection in the adjoining counties of Missouri. But, above all, he says Kansas is destined to become pre-eminently a stock-growing State. The climate and soil are well adapted to

THERE was a fellow in the State of New York asked a young lady out to ride; the lady agreed; he drove around to the house at the appointed time; she made her appear- a good assortment of ance dressed in the prevailing fashion; having got herself and hoops into the carriag, the young man saw there was no chance for him, whereupon he mounted the horse's back and drove off in triumph.

We do not believe in political preachers. But we think that a clergyman in Warwick made a happy turn last Sunday, when he said "My brethren, I wish you to vote just as you pray. If you pray for slavery and intemperance vote for them; if you pray for freedom and temperance vote for them."-We don't know of any way of getting over this, except by saying that politics have no proper place in the pulpit .- Prov.
