

Dress Marks the Man.

The London Lancet tells the following

Ourions Revence,

Late one evening, a person came into our office and asked to see the editor of the Lancent. On being introduced to our sanctum, he placed a bundle on the table, from which he proceeded to extract a very fair, and symmerical lower extremity, which might have matched " Atlanta's better part," and which

A great variety of opinions prevail among "There I said he, " is there anything the matter with the leg? Did you ever see a farmers, as to the period of the year most proper for trimming fruit trees. From the rationale of the process, and a good deal of handsomer ? What ought to be done to the experience, we are disposed to consider the man who cut off that leg ?"

time or season of the year of very little imnortance, so that it is not performed during gatories put before us, we found it was the the opening or entire expansion of the leaves, leg of the wife of our evening visitor. He whereby there is a great expenditure of tree had been accustomed to admire the leg and

The spring season, before and at the time of the first raising of the sap, is probably as judicious a time as any for this operation .---For small limbs and ordinary thinning, the fall or winter months are perfectly safe .--For cutting large limbs and branches, the spring of the year is preferable, as the wounds do not season and crack-the san keeps them moist, and they heal sooner and bettc food and vitality lost to the portion left.

Trimming and Thinning Trees.

The trees that have been long neglected and become very thick and bushy, it is not advisable to cut too much in any one year, as the sap and vital energy that supported the excised limbs, is not, as many suppose, turned directly to the remaining parts, for every twig on the tree has its set of indeits way to the parts left; but by a kind ex. tion, it is slowly diverted to the remaining vessels. A considerable portion is expended were cut of Another objection to excessive pruning, is that it has a lendency to deter the trees from bearing fruit freely, and frequently for some years. When a tree makes wood excessiveiv, it does not make fruit buds; this is a well known fact. The fruit bud in the apple is two years in forming, and in the year often lour or five years, and when pushed too fast on its first year. it loses its disposition to set -inrows out leaves and becomes a twig. and incipient organ of a limb.

The best process for regulating and keeping the orchard in proper order for the certain production of Iruit and that of the largest and fairest kind, is never to let it get in a condition requiring heavy prunings, but to carefully examine, then cut and balance the bearing wood every year, keeping the tree open in the center to admit light and air, for every one is aware that the central fruit in a bushy. close tree with dense foliage, are and cried : small, paie, without flavor and of very little

It is not always safe in grafting old trees, to cut many large limbs at once, for the bark is so thick and resisting, and the vitality of the tree so spent, that it cannot throw out the dormant buds to carry on the circulation, and dead sides or centers of the trunk are ant to be the resul. The entire alteration of an old tree should be the work of three or four year.

On having the meaning of these interrofoot of the lady, of the perfection of which she was, it appears conscious. A few days before, he had excited her anger, and they had guarrelled violently, upon which she left the house declaring that she would be revenged on him, and he should never again see the object of his admiration. The next he heard was, that she was a patient in the hospital of -----, and had her leg amputated. She had declared to the surgeon that she had suffered an intolerable pain in her knee, and begged to have the limb removed-s petition which the surgeon complied with, and thus became the instrument of her own revenge upon her husband.

THE story of the farmer who would not have his hired men called from their work pendent pores, extending to the roots, and to take a saw-log off from him, reminds me, when cut off, the sap does not directly find says a New Bedford correspondent, " of a wealthy ship-owner of that place, a member osmosis, or by the lateral viscera of circula- of the Society of Friends, and now deceased who was very remarkable for economizing the time of his hired men. He had one of in luxuriant water spouls-those long rods his ships have down at the wharf to repair that start out about wounds where the limbs | and copper. It was a cold winter's day, and there was a plank extending from the wharf to the floating stage around the ship, on which the carpenters and caulkers were at work. Among the men was one by the name of John, a man of all-work, a man of color, and on free-and-easy terms with his master. John was carrying matters and things up and down a slippery plank to the workmen, when he slid of a sudden, and shot, head over heels into the water. The old Quaker saw him, and as John came up to blow, called out to him.

"Don't make a noise, John, you'll stop the men in their work; keep quiet, and I'll help thee out."

As good or bad luck would have it, the same day, the kind Quaker was coming down the plank, and away he went into the briny deep. But John was close by, and as he rose to the surface, and looked the image of despàir, the wicked negro put on a long face,

"Master, don't make a noise, to call the men off; l'll help thee out."

And so he did, while the men looked on and laughed at the fun.

KIND words make other people good natured. Cold words freeze people, and hot words scorch them, and bitter words make them bitter, and wrathful words make them wrathful. There is such a rush of all other kinds of words in our days, that it seems desirable to give kind words, a chance among them. There are vain words, and idlo words, and hasty words, and spiteful words, and silly words, and empty words, and profane carefully examined the matter, to note the words, and boisterous words, and warlike toss sustained by the vast majority of farmers, words. Among the most prevalent of these pests is the dock, which is often seen growing luxuriantly from under the very walls of the house, and in monopolizing rankness in the corners of the yard, as well as in massive bunches in meadows and lawns.

It is often so, no doubt from the very prevalent opinion that nothing short of digging up the last fibre of the roots will exterminate them, when nothing more need be done than . to cut off the top of the root, throw on a thim. ble full of salt, or a spoonful of strong brine, and a sprout will never again appear.

Farmers, try it, and if "too busy," a little tow will entice children, too small for other work, to kill your docks, and learn habits of industry almost unconciously,

To DESTROY VERMIN,-The celebrated Raspail, well known as one of the best French chemists, has given an important receipt for destroying vermin on animals, and also on plants and trees, important al least if true. The process he recommends is to make | p a solution of aloes-a quarter of an ounce of that gum to two pints of water, and, by means of a large brush, to wash over the trunks and branches of trees with this solution. This simple process, says Raspail, will speedily destroy all the vermin on the trees, and will effectually prevent others from approaching. In order to clear sheep and antmals with long hair, they must be bathed with the solution, or be well washed with it. Raspail mentions several trials he has made with the mixture, all of which have been attended with the most complete success, and he recommends it very strongly to general U88.

PEAS.-Early garden peas should be planted in double drills, that is two rows about eight or ten inches apart, and should be put in the ground as soon as the frost is out .---By the by, the ground shou'd invariably be prepared in the Fall, by trench spading or subsoil plowing, with a good coat of fine manure well worked into the soil, and then the only preparation necessary before planting would be to rake open the bed and mark the rows.- Besides keeping away the hens, it is of great advantage to the seed to cover the ground thickly with brush as soon as you have done planting, which you will not remove until the plants require heeing.
