

the Pacific coast, because such a power would instantly close the route across the Isthmus of Central America. It is impossible to conceive, that whilst the Constitution has expressly required Congress to defend all the States, it should yet deny to them, by any fair construction, the only possible means by which one of these States can be defended.

I forbear for the present from expressing an opinion as to the wisest and most economical mode in which the Government can lend its aid in accomplishing this great and necessary work. I believe that many of the difficulties in the way, which now appear formidable, will in a great degree vanish as soon as the nearest and best route shall have been satisfactorily ascertained. It may be right, that on this occasion, I should make some brief remarks in regard to our rights and duties as a member of the great family of nations.

We ought to cultivate peace, commerce, and friendship with all nations, and this, not merely as the best means of promoting our own material interests, but in a spirit of Christian benevolence towards fellow men wherever their lot may be cast.

Our diplomacy should be direct and frank; neither seeking to obtain more, nor accepting less, than is our due. We ought to cherish a sacred regard for the independence of all nations, and never attempt to interfere in the domestic concerns of any, unless this shall be imperatively required by the great law of self preservation.

It is our glory that whilst other nations have extended their dominions by the sword, we have never acquired any territory except by fair purchase or as in the case of Texas, by the voluntary determination of a brave, kindred and independent people to blend their destinies with our own.

A YANKEE TALKING LIGHTNING.—An engine on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Rail Road broke down last week at nine o'clock at night, nine miles distant from a station. The Conductor instantly started on foot through the snow to get another machine. A telegraph operator in one of the cars, named Stager, (of course a Yankee) hearing the cause of the detention, got out and taking down the main wire from the pole along-side the track, cut it—attached small brass wires to the two ends—"dotted" the distress of his train to the Pittsburgh and Brighton stations; and putting one of the brass points to his tongue, read the answer that an engine should be immediately sent, and then talked off this pleasant lightning to his anxious and impatient fellow passengers.—Albany Journal.

MARRIED.—In Gaines, Feb. 28th, by S. B. HARRIS, Esq., Mr. Jos. HENSON, to Miss REBECCA BEACH of Gaines.

DIED.—In New York, on the 3d inst., of hemorrhage of the lungs, I. M. ROCKMAN, Esq., aged 25 years. Mr. ROCKMAN was well known to our citizens as Editor and proprietor of the Balance, formerly published at Mansfield in this county. We have known him for several years, and have passed many a pleasant hour, made short and lightsome by the dry and irrepressible humor which characterized the man. He will be remembered by the craft as a genial companion, generous in his friendships, gentlemanly in his deportment, and as the possessor of a heart incapable of bearing malice toward any created thing.
