No remedy known to men has such a powerful and permanent influence in maintaining or regaining health as the judicious employment of cheerful, exertive exercise in the open air; and, if properly attended to in a timely manner, it will cure a large majority of all cureable diseases, and will sometimes succeed when medicines have lost their power.

If you have actual consumption, or are merely threatened with it; or if, from some of your relatives having died with it, you have unpleasant apprehensions of its lurking in your own body; or whether from a diseased liver or disordered stomach or a dyspeptic condition of the system, the foundations of the drendful disease are being laid in your own person; or whether by exposure; by over bodily exertion or mental labor, or wasting cares for the present, or anxieties for the future, or by hugging sharp pointed memories of the past, or by intemperate living in eating or drinking, or by unwise habits and practices in life, you have originated in your own person the ordinary precursors of consumption, such as hacking cough, pains in the breast chilliness, wasting of flesh and strength, shortness of breath in exercise—under all these circumstances, a proper attention to air and exercise are indispensible aids-are among the principal, essential means of cure, and are never to be dispensed with; confinement to the regulated temperature of a room in any latitude is certain death, if persevered in; and if, from any cause, this air and exercise are not practicable to you, except to a limited extent, it is your misfortune; your not being jury a talking to." able to employ them does not make them the less necessary, and they have no substitutes,

When the body is diseased, it is because it is full of diseased, decaying, dead and useless particles; medicine does it more quickly, but exercise more safely and certainly, if there is time to wait for its effects. Every motion of the body, every bend of the arm, every crook of the finger, every feeling, every breath, every thought, is at the expense, the consumption, the throwing off, of a greater or less proportion of the material body; all muscular motion implies friction, and where there is friction there must be loss. In proportion then, as you exercise you get rid of and in a short time came back with a verdice the old useless and diseased parts of the body, of "not guilty." and by eating substantial, plain, nourishing food, you supply new, healthful, life-giving particles in their stead; therefore, every step you take tends to your restoration, provided that step be not taken in weariness and fatigue, for then it prepares the way for a greater destruction of living particles, rather than a removal of the old. You will never fail to find that when you overdo yourself, in the way of exercise, you will feel the worse after it. The exercise must be adapted to the strength, and the rule is imperative under all circumstances. STOP SHORT OF FATIGUE.-This applies to mental as well as bodily operations. But if you say, as many others have said and died, "I can't help it," then you must take the consequences and responsibility. If you do not use the means of health, you cannot be cured. If you really and truly cannot use them, that inability does not alter the necessity of their observance, nor the effect of their neglect.

Have, if possible, an hour's active, cheerful, willing, out-door exercise thrice a day; this is many times better than three hours continuous exercise. If you walk, or leave the house before breakfast, cat first a cracker or crust of bread. Avoid during warm weather, in the South or West, and in level or damp situations, the out-door air, including the hour about sunrise and sunset. There is no danger usually, even to invalids, in exercising in the night air, if it be sufficiently vigorous to keep off a feeling of chilliness. This should be the rule in all forms of outdoor exercise, and is an infallible preventative, as far as my experience goes, against taking cold in any and all weathers, provided it be fatigue. Such exercise never can give a cold, whether in rain, or sleet, or snow, unless there be some great peculiarity in the constitution. It is the conduct after exercise which gives the cold; it is the getting cool too quick, by standing or sitting still in a draft of air, or open window, or cold room. The only precaution needed is, to end the exercise in a room or temperature uncomfortably warm when first entered, and there remain until rested and no moisture is observed on the sur-

. If working or walking cause actual fatigue, then horseback exercise is the next best for both sexes, but if not able, then ride in a close carriage, especially in cold weather, or when there is a damp raw wind blowing. You may in the bitterest, coldest weather, secure for yourself the most favorable of all circumstances for recovery-that is, a cool, dry, still atmosphere, by riding several hours a day in a close carriage, well and warmly clad, with your feet on bottles of hot water. The atmosphere of the carriage will not become impure but to a slight extent, as the cold air is constantly coming in at every crevice at the sides and below, while the warm, used air, rises to the top, and is expelled by the more powerful currents from without.

It is a laborious business to spend hours every day in exercising, for the mere sake of the exercise; therefore, if possible, devise means of employment, which will combine utility with your exercise. The reader's ingenuity may devise means of accomplishing this, adapted to his condition and the circumstances by which he is surrounded. Some trim, or bud, or grast fruit trees, work in a garden, cultivate the vine or flowers, or plow in fields, free of stumps and stones, thus requiring no great effort, yet a steady one; which can be left off at any moment, and followed more or less energetically, so as to produce a very moderate degree of perspiration on the forehead, without fatigue; others saw wood, visit the poor and unfortunate, drive cattle, collect accounts, obtain subscriptions, sell books, distribute tracts, ride on agencies. The great object is, useful, agreeable, absorbing, profitable employment in the open air, for several hours every day, rain or shine, hot or cold; and whoever has the energy or couraging results; and be assured, that these are the persons who can rationally expect to succeed in effectually and permanently warding off the disease when seriously threatened, or in arresting its progress permanently.

A Law Case out West.

A case was tried at Grand Rapids, Michigan, a few years ago. A man who had previously borne a suspicious character, was indicted for stealing a large quantity of pork.

He employed a lawyer of considerable lo-cal reputation to defend him, and although the affair had an ugly look he was strongly in hopes of getting off clear, but when the testimony on behalf of the prosecution was concluded, his counsel was about to give up his case in despair.

But the prisoner was as cool as a cucumber, and confident of acquittal. He insisted upon the defence being proceeded with.

"Have you any evidence to refute this overwhelming array of testimony?"

"Not a particle." "Then how the devil do you expect to get

"Never you mind Squire-go on with your speech. I shall do well enough."

"I tell you this is nonsense. You acknowledge you stole the pork, and they have proved it upon you to the entire satisfaction of every man in the court. Now what can Isav?

"Make 'em a good speech, Squire, and I'm sure to get off."

"Impossible-there's nothing that can be

"I hired you, and intend to pay you, but not a cent shall you have unless you give the Under this inspiration, the lawyer made a rambling, incoherent address to the jury, in which everything was discussed except the case under consideration. On concluding, he whispered in the prisoner's ear-"You infernal scoundrel, I ought to be sent to the States prison myself, and what you expect to gain by this strange proceeding I can't conceive." "I'll tell you," said the prisoner, "when the jury comes in." After the charge from the judge, in which his criminality was distinctly asserted, and maintained; that intelligent part of the "palladium of our rights" retired for consultation,

"What in thunder does this mean?" inquired the lawyer of his client.

"Oh, I wanted you to make a small fuss to pull the wool over the outsiders, but 't was a sure thing from the start, for three of the jurymen had some of the pork!"

Sincerity does not consist of speaking your mind on all occasions, but in doing it when silence would be censurable, and falsehood inexcusable.

**Messrs Erans & Walson—Gents:—It affords us the highest satisfaction to state to yon, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Safes which we purchased of you some few months since, we saved a large portion of our Jowelry. Books, Papiers, &c. exposed to the calumitous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th first.

When we reflect that these Safes were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied, and that they fell subsequently into a heap of lurning ruins, where the vast concentration of heat caused the brass plates to melt, we cannot but regard the preservation of the valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security afforded by your Safes. We shall take much pleasure in recommending them to men of business as a sure reliance against file.

business as a sure reliance against fire.

George W. Simons & Bro.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12, 1856.

Megars Evans of Watson—I have to offer you my testimony in favor of the great security afforded to my entire stock of jewelry, books, papers, &c. during the recent disastrous confagration in Hauntead place, from the fact that the same were contained in two of the Shiamander Safes manufactured by you. Having nallen from the fifth story of the Artiana Building, where they were previously placed and exposed to a vast heat for a long time, the preservation of the valuable deposits seemed to every one who witnessed the opening and interior examination, a matter of profound astonishment.

To all who may require a perfect protection from the ravages of fire, I shall not hesitate to recommend the use of your Safes, as I consider they have now undergone the most trying test. PHILADELPRIA, April 12, 1856.

**Messrs Frant & Witson—Gentlemen—No doubt you will be deeply gratified to learn the good condition in which I discovered my look, policy of insurance, certificates of stock, and other valuable documents, when on Friday last 1 opened the act made by your firm.

**With my knowledge of its great exposure, both to the intensity of the heat from so hot a fire as that which destroyed the Artisan Building, as also from the force of the fall frost lits former elevated position in the third story, I could entertain but slender hopes prior to its interior inspection, that the contents which I once so highly prized would ever be of any service to me, but as these fears are now happily removed, I feel it only due to say to yon, that I can henceforth recommend the use of your Safes to all who may wish to feel a confidence in the perfect security which such means provides against so frightful an element.

In these fires, the HERRING'S SAFE, standing side by sils with those advertised as "warranted to stand 10 per cent more fire than Herring's came forth the acknowlessed victor, not only, preserving their contents in excellent order, but being themselves in a condition to go through another ordeal, while the boasted "Salamanders" of other makers were badly used up in every instance, and in some cases their entire contents completely destroyed.

To the public we would simply say, that, during the fourteen years the Reyring's afte has been before them, more that two huadred bave passed through accidental fires without the occurrence of a single loss.

We would therefore, caution purchasers against the merepresentation of interested parties. The Herring's Patent is the only Fire-proof Safe made in this city which is protered by a Patent Right, and we will guarantee it to resst mere then double the amount of heat of any other safe now known.

All the public Roads, Raitroads, Crossings and Stations, Post, Offices, Churches, School Houses, Stores, Mills, Public and Private Houses, Cemeteries, Manufactories, Shops, &c., are to be shown on the Map, in addition to the usual topograph's Rivers, Streams, Ponds and Mountains. The names of preperty holders generally, (including those in the county who subscribe in advance for the Map) are also to be inserted at their respective places, in the style of the Maps exhibited by the canvasers. Spring & Summer Goods

ne canvassers.

Maps of the principal villages will be inserted, on a large cate, in the margin; also engraved views of public and printer building. with the magnifiers and organized views of photos and private buildings.

No expense will be spared to execute the Map in the highest style of art. The plan will be plotted on a suitable scale, so as to show distinctly all the particulars above specified, and make a large and craquiental map. To be engraved and delivered to subscribers, handsomely colored, so as to show the territory comprised in each testiship, and mounted on roller. As the map will contain some eighteen square feet of engraving, at a cost of several thousand dollars, it will be seen that As the map will gentatin some eighteen square feet of engrating, at a cost of several thousand dollars, it will be seen that only a large subscription list will warrant the heavy expensionerred. The maps are sold only by subscription, and at only one price. No more maps issued than subscribed for. The map will comtain tables of the population, productions, assessed value of proportry, religious societies, schools, number of voters, &c., of each town-hip and village raspectively, carfully made up from the latest authentic documents.

Relying upon a just appreciation of our efforts, by the citizens of Tiogs, to issue a map of their county on the above plan, that shall answer their proper expectations, and he entirely satisfactory, subscriptions are respectfully solicited by
