

A Withering Appeal to Dealers in Drink.

The following eloquent appeal is from the pen of the Ducancon:

DEALERS IN DRINK!—Yours is a melancholy position—a more pitiful, more unworthy more degraded, and more sinful position cannot be conceived! To prey upon the shame, the crime, the poverty, the body, the time, the eternity of a fellow-creature is awful! To prepare the way of bankruptcy, pauperism, disease, prison-death, is not to be coveted! To assist to ruin character, murder reputation, sink position and circumstances, fitch a man's crumb of bread, is odious.—To beggar families, break the hearts of wives scatter domestic fire-brands and death, break up unhappy homes, divide united hearts dissolve family links of the closest tie, is a baseless indescribable. To rise into riches by such a course is not to be rich; to be honored; to gain place in the world is to have no dignity; to stand forth in the cause of religion is to dash Zion's walls with untempered mortar.—To swell out into portly dimensions by the sale of strong drink is the price of poverty; to rise into luxury is a gain from wretchedness; to walk about in ease is a purchase from perspiration and toil; to assume high airs, and gad about all bespangled and bedjewelled, is an elevation wrung from shame, degradation, misery and death. How infatuated must the drinker be to see a class of men rolling in every comfort and luxury, possessing wealth and property, and all purchased at the poor infatuated inebriate's expense. The publican well clothed, while he in his rags; the publican's wife, handsome, buxom, jeweled, but the poor drunkard's not where to lay her head; the publican's children, clothed, fed, educated, head and feet preserved from the inclemencies of the season; but mark his customer's, cold, wet starved, ragged, wet, diseased. What difference between the state of those that support and those that are supported by strong drink.—Surely if reflection was left in the drunkard's mind, the sketch we have just given would banish forever the drinker from the drunkey door.

"And what state can that mind be in that can keep such a house? How destitute of all the finer feelings of humanity—to speak of the feelings of religion would be nonsense. Where is love for his country and his kind? Can patriotism inhabit such a bosom? Impossible. Can such a man be a reformer—a regenerator of society—and keep a house and sell an article to degrade, dehumanize, and enslave his fellow-man, soul and body hand and foot? Incredible. How much of Christ's love can be in the bosom of the man who continues to sell spirits, and sees hears, and reads the awful deeds it is doing against God and man? Not a spark.

"And is it possible that the spirit-dealers can commend his traffic to God in prayer? Could he lay his hand on his heart, and enter the divine presence, and crave God to bless his efforts? It cannot be. His blood would run cold, his soul would freeze in the endeavor, his smitten conscience could not bear the piercing glance of God; he can only carry on his trade by forgetting eternity, trampling on the sacred dictates of conscience and escaping from the thought of future death and judgment. Infinitely better for a man to beg his bread from door to door, than occupy such a position. In this case he might be an heir of heaven—but who can reconcile the selling of whiskey and eternal glory."

CURIOS PHENOMENON OF THE WAVES.—Some weeks ago Lake Michigan fell, in a few moments, two feet and a half. The bystanders were startled at an apparition of mother Earth where it had not been visible before for years, and, for awhile, had suspected a repetition of the old Red Sea miracle. The fears of the special presence of a divine power were, however, soon relieved by the return of the waters to their old bed. The occurrence was all the more singular from the fact that the wind was blowing strong in-shore. Similar occurrence are frequently observed on the sea coast, at which time the sea runs in or out from shore, against both wind and tide. The cause usually assigned is the prevalence of distant gales of wind over the water's surface, creating strong currents, and hence a spasmodic action of the surface in particular localities.

RUNNING A BEND.—A good thing occurred at Warren between an old Democratic lumberman and Senator-Bigler, the morning after latter had made his recent speech there. The court room had been very warm, and just at the point in his speech where Mr. B. was trying to justify his own and Mr. Gillie's votes in favor of Leconte, the sweat poured off of him in fine style. The next morning, the old lumberman remarked to Mr. B. that he appeared to be very warm last night. Senator Bigler replied that he was very warm indeed, it was very oppressive. "But," said the lumberman, "you should have done as we do on the river in a hard job, take your coat off." "Do you always take your coat off?" said Bigler rather patronizingly. "Well, not always," said he, "but we always do in a tight spot—when we run a short bend!"

RULING PASSION STRONG IN DEATH.—We scarcely know of a more touching instance of "the ruling passion strong in death," than is afforded in the last words of a Schoolmaster who had gone in and out before successive little flock in the same place, for upwards of thirty years. When the firm of death was gathering over his eyes, which were soon to open in the presence of Him who took little children in his arms and blessed them, he said,—"It is getting dark—the boys may go out—school's dismissed!"

A GENTLE HINT.—A sportsman, who during the shooting season had gone to pass a week with a friend in the country on the strength of a general invitation, soon found, by a gentle hint, that he would have done better to have waited for a special one. "I saw some beautiful scenery," was the visitor's first remark, "as I came to-day by the upper road." "You will see still finer," was the reply, "as you go back to-morrow by the lower one."

MEN'S HEART.—Men's hearts? Do what you will, the things won't break. I doubt if even they'll chip.

A shooting affray was enacted, on Tuesday night last, in the vicinity of Shepard's Creek, some two or three miles from this village—disgraceful in its origin and probably fatal in its character—at the house of John Ticknor, whose respectability is a matter of question in the community from his notorious conduct while a resident here. John V. Hagadorn, who gave Ticknor a most brutal horse whipping some time since in our streets, in company with some particular comrades—are unknown to the public—took occasion, under the cover of darkness, to attack his house—for what object or design is as yet unexplained satisfactorily, but there is no doubt but what the intent was bad—and demanded admission. No sooner was the demand made than it was responded to by the report of fire arms. The shooting was in the house, the balls passed through the door and two of them took effect upon the person of Hagadorn one entering his breast and the other piercing one of his shoulders. The party with their then retreated, carrying with them their wounded companion, who is still alive, though in a dangerous condition. It is supposed that Ticknor did the firing.—Waverly Advocate.

BUCHU LEAVES are procured from the southern part of Africa. The Hottentots at the Cape of Good Hope have long used this article as a remedy in a variety of diseases. From them the medicine was borrowed by the English and Dutch physicians and the use of it has since been recommended. It was soon employed in Europe. In process of time this medicine has come into general use, and is highly spoken of by the best medical writers. Physicians recommend it mostly for complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, a morbid irritation of the bladder and urethra, retention of urine, also incontinence of urine from want of tone in the urinary organs, and in many cases of long standing it has been effectual when other valuable medicines had failed to produce an effect. The active principle of this medicine is a volatile oil which is mostly lost by the old process of boiling. Hence it requires great care and skillful management to prepare this medicine properly.

FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU is a strong or concentrated preparation prepared by the new process called "Displacement." By this the valuable properties of the Buchu are entirely preserved, and this form of the medicine is less liable to injury from age and more palatable. TO THE LADIES! A New Kind of Soap has recently been invented, which promises to supersede all other kinds of hard soap. It is used extensively for washing clothes, and possesses the remarkable property of extracting dirt without boiling the clothes and without the use of the rubbing board. The process of washing requires less than half the time, and only about half the labor, by using this Patent Soap. This article is peculiarly excellent, and superior to any thing else called Soap; because while it saves time and labor, it never rots or injures the clothes. It is just the article it is represented to be, and never disappoints the expectations of purchasers. It does not take out stains. For sale at Roy's Drug Store, Wellsboro, Pa.
