Danger of Rubbing with Brandy.

We heard the other day of a singular, and, we believe, a new effect of the application of brandy as a medicine. A gentleman, convalescing from an attack of sickness, was recommended by his physician to rub him. our elbow. We glanced up at the half-built self all over every morning and evening with house, and then with a shudder looked from the very best brandy.

Home it came, and that very evening it was tried-outwardly, of course. The convalescent felt better, much better, and he continawoke one morning, and, to his horror, discovered that his entire cuticle-at least where it had been rubbed with the old cognac-had become of a deep crimson color.

He sprang out of bed in alarm. The family was aroused; a servant despatched in hot haste for the doctor. The invalid's wits were terribly shaken by this never-before-heard-of entastrophe. What could cause it? He looked a picture for a painter, as he sat before a large looking-glass in an arm chair, ruefully surveying his crimson covering. It was almost ludicrous. It was quite as bad as Mr. Tittlebat Titmouse's predicament about his purple-green hair. But this could be no laughing matter; it must be some extraordinary phenomonon, as he explained it to his wondering and alarmed family.

"And just imagine, my dear, how I shall look all my life, if this confounded thing isn't cured. Like a boiled lobster-like a boiled lobster! I shall go by no other name! Oh dear! Oh dear!

The door bell rang; the front door opened; in rushed the doctor. For an instant he could not contain himself—he had to drop into a chair, and laugh it out.

"Oh, it's very funny to you, no doubt doctor; but how would you like to go about all the balance of your days looking like an overdone lobster ?"

The doctor burst out again at this; but he saw that the sick man's family were really alarmed, and he soon sobered down into his usual pulse-feeling gravity.

"Maybe it's the iodine, doctor?" suggested the anxious wife.

"Oh, its ironed in, no doubt," said the patient, indulging the ruling passion strong in death.

The doctor shook his head. "Had that rubbing been done as he prescribed?"

"Yes, faithfully."

"Good brandy ?"

"Yes, the very best-we use no other." "Let me have it."

The brandy was brought. The doctor tasted it, and shook his head again.

"I'll take it home to examine it chemically, There are so many tricks among liquor deal-

"Oh, no fear of that with our grocer. He sells none but the best liquors, imported direct by himself."

"No doubt. I'll look into it nevertheless." And calming the family alarm, the good doctor departed, the pure old cognac in his pock-

That evening came a note from him:-"Dear L- make yourself perfectly easy. The cognac is first-proof whiskey, and won't hurt you. It was the logwood in it that did your business."

Little Bettie.

"Hand me some water, buddy, wont you?" "In a minute, Bettie,"

And Bettie's fevered cheeks were pressed again to the pillow; and little Harry's hands went on as busily as ever with the trap he was making, and at length he entirely forget the request.

strings in his haste, he was soon holding a cup to her crimson lips. But she turned her head languidly from it. "Not this, please; but some fresh and cold from the well," she said.

"O don't be so particular, Bettie; this is fresh; and I'm so busy I can't go now; won't this do ?"

She no longer refused, but quietly took the cup which he offered, and it was the last, last time she ever called upon her brother for an act of kindness; ere another day had passed, she stood beside the river of life, and drank its cool waters never to thrist again. And of all who wept over that little brown coffin, as it lay on the table before the pulpit, there were none who shed more bitter tears than the little boy who could not forget that he had refused the last request of his little sis-

Little children, are you kind to one another, or are you cross, selfish, and fretful? Remember, then, the time will come, when they will be beyond your reach; and then, O how gladly would you give all your possess to have them back again! You might gather all your books and toys; everything for which you are now so willing to contend, but all you could do with them would be to place them on the grave of one you had wronged. It would not bring them back .-Henry was a kind-hearted boy, and dearly loved his little sister; and she had only been sick a little while, so that he did not consider her dangerously ill; but this was no comfort to him when she was gone.

"O mother!" he would say, "if I had only brought that water for her, I could bear it, but now she is where I can never, never wait on her again." Think of this when you are tempted to quarrel, to be selfish, or unkind; for do you know if one of you should die, the rest would remember every act of unkindness, every hitter word which had fallen from their lips? But then it would be too late to recall it, too late to ask forgiveness .- N. C. Prespyterian.

A grain of carmine will tinge a gallon of water so that in every drop the color will be perceptible: and a grain of musk will scent a room twenty years. Just so if a man cheats a printer-the stain will be forever visible on the minute atoms of his soul, and will leave a scent of rescality about an individual strong enough to make an honest man turn up his nose in disgust and kick him out of his presence, if he can get rid of him no other way.

The Riches of the Poor.

"Is he dead?" That fearful question drew us near the little group who stood at the corner of the street.

"Fell from the scaffolding," we heard at the scaffold to the ground, expecting to see a The invalid accordingly sent to his family laborer who had fullen from his post. Alas! grocer, with whom, he had dealt for years, there was before us no man, cold and dead, and ordered a sample of the best old cognac. but a fittle child, poorly clad, of obscure birth. He had seen some four summers, and with childish daring had climbed the scaffold to see "papa" build the house. His little ued to feel better for a day or so, until he face was set, and the fearful pallor of death was spread over the small features. By his side, as he lay on the cold stones, knelt a rough man, down whose sunburned cheeks the tears poured as he mouned .-

"Oh, Lorny! Lorny! Who'll tell your mammy, mavourneen ?"

No need to tell her, -such sore news travels fast. Even while we stood there she came through the crowd, her arms covered with soapsuds, her cheek pallid, her tearless eyes wild with that awful news. Her first cry was, "Oh, Jimmy! how can you let him lie on the cold ground?" and she caught the poor little body to her mother's heart. Then the tears came,-and seated on the stones, she rocked to and fro with her sad burden clasped close to her breast, mouning and wailing for her only child.

Kind friends gathered around. Rough faces, softened and hard voices sounded sweet with words of sympathy. One comforter whispered.—

"He's better off now, honey. You are very poor, you know."

The mother looked up, and oh! the pathos in her voice as she said,

"Yes,-he was all the riches we had!"

Brown had for some time been much in love with a young lady, and one evening when visiting her, and wishing to be a little particular, asked permission on taking leave. to call her by the name of some animal.-The request was granted, on the condition that she should have the same privilege.-When Brown made his conge, he said--"Good night, Dear!"-Good night, Bore!" replied the lady. Brown, from that night foreswore the company of young women.

Upon the occasion of the French emperor's visit to Queen Victoria, two or three years ago, says Prentice, she fastened a garter around his leg with her own royal hund. Neither the French nor English papers state whether the gallant emperor returned the compliment upon the occasion of her majesty's late visit to his empire.

DUCHU LEAVES are procured from the southern part of Africa. The Hottentots at the cape of Good Hope have long used this article as a remedy in a variety of diseases. From them the medicine was borrowed by the English and Dutch physicians residing there and by their recommendation it was soon employed in Europe. In process of time this medicine has come into general use, and is highly spoken of by the best medical writers. and is highly spoken of by the best medical writers.

Physicians recommend it mostly for complaints of the urinary organs, such as gravel, a morbid irrita-tion of the bladder and urethra, retention of urine, also incontinence of urine from want of tone in the urinary organs. It cools the unnatural heat and relieves pain; and in many cases of long standing it has been effectual when other valuable medicines had failed to produce an effect. The active princi-ple of this medicine is a volatile oil which is mostly lost by the old process of boiling. Hence it requires great care and skilful management to prepare this nedicine properly.

FLUID EXTRACT OF BUCHU is a strong or Concentrated preparation prepared by the new process called Displacement." By this the value ble properties of the Buchu are entirely preserved, and this form of the medicine is less liable to injury from age and more palateable. Useful equally in all cases of the kind whether male or female. Price 75 cents per bottle. For sale at Roy's Drug and Chemical Store at Wellsboro Pa.
