

The Broken Saw.

A boy went to live with a man who was accounted a hard master. He never kept his boys; they ran away, or gave notice they meant to quit, so he was half his time without or in search of a boy.

It is always bad to begin with a man who has no confidence in you; because, do your best you are likely to have little credit for it.

However, Sam thought he would try; the wages were good, and his mother wanted him to go. Sam had been there but three days, when in sawing a cross-grained piece of wood he broke the saw.

"And Mr. Jones will thrash you for it," said another boy who was in the wood-house with him.

"Why of course I didn't mean to, and accidents will happen to the best of folks," said Sam looking with a very sorry air on the broken saw.

"Mr. Jones never makes allowances," said the other boy; "I never saw anything like him. That Bill might have stayed only he jumped into a hen's nest and broke her eggs.

"Did he tell Mr. Jones about the eggs?" asked Sam.

"No," said the boy; "he was afraid to—Mr. Jones got such an awful temper.

"I think he'd better own square up," said Sam.

"I reckon you'll find it better to preach than to practice," said the boy. "I'd run away before I'd tell him."

It was after supper, and he was not likely to see Mr. Jones that night. The shop shut, and his master had gone to some town meeting.

The poor boy did not feel very comfortable or happy. He shut up the wood-house, walked out in the garden, and then went up to his little chamber under the eaves.

"What did you get up to tell me for?" asked Mr. Jones; "I should think morning would be time enough to tell me of your carelessness."

"Because," said Sam, "I was afraid if I put it off I might be tempted to be about it. I'm very sorry I broke it, but I tried to be careful."

Mr. Jones looked at the boy from head to foot, then stretching out his hand, "There, Sam," he said heartily, "give me your hand. Shake hands. I'll trust you, Sam. That's right. That's right! Go to bed, boy. Never fear. I'm glad the saw broke; it shows the mettle in you. Go to bed."

Mr. Jones was fairly won. Never were better friends after than Sam and he. Sam thinks justice has not been done to Mr. Jones. If the boys had treated him honestly and "above board," he would have been a good man to live with.

Jackson's Duel with Dickinson.

To the Editor of the N. Y. News: Some time ago I saw in your paper a statement about the duel between Gen. Jackson and Dickinson, fought before the year 1800, which account was erroneous in several particulars.

Desirous of correcting these errors, I offered to furnish you an account of the duel, told me by Gen. Jackson's biographer and intimate friend, John H. Eaton.

The following is Gen. Jackson's account of the duel, told Gen. Eaton who related the same to me:

Jackson settled at Nashville between the years 1790 and 1800, and began the practice of law. Dickinson was already there, following the same profession. He was a great duelist, having killed several in duels, and almost certain to kill at the fire.

He issued writs against the merchants, who until then had gone free. This irritated them, and they being desirous of getting Gen. Jackson out of the way, incited Dickinson to provoke a duel. He began by acting on trials offensively to the General.

He remonstrated with Dickinson, and plainly told him he would not stand such disrespectful treatment.

Dickinson persisted, and Gen. Jackson challenged him. The time and place for the combat were fixed upon, and the news spread for miles around.

Dickinson himself bet that he would kill Jackson at the first fire. Dickinson fired first, and his ball hit Jackson on his right pap and peeled his breast.

As soon as the smoke of the pistol blew away he saw Gen. Jackson still standing, and he exclaimed—"Hav'n't I killed the damnedascal yet?"

Gen. Jackson told Gen. Eaton that until then he meant to give him his life, but on hearing these words, he raised his pistol, fired, and killed Dickinson instantly.

WHAT GREAT HEART DID.—I saw Great Heart one day in a railway train. He was well dressed, and appeared to be reading, through his spectacles, the morning paper.

A poor woman sat opposite with six little children, the eldest scarcely a dozen years old. The husband was a stupid, hard-hearted wretch, and administered blows unsparringly to a weary little thing who showed his discomfort by crying and fretting as the hot dust swept over his face.

"Did he tell Mr. Jones about the eggs?" asked Sam.

"No," said the boy; "he was afraid to—Mr. Jones got such an awful temper.

"I think he'd better own square up," said Sam.

"I reckon you'll find it better to preach than to practice," said the boy. "I'd run away before I'd tell him."

TO THE LADIES! A New Kind of Soap has recently been invented, which promises to supersede all other kinds of hard soap. It is used extensively for washing clothes, and possesses the remarkable property of extracting dirt without boiling the clothes and without the use of the rubbing board. The process of washing requires less than half the time, and only about half the labor, by using this Patent Soap. This article is peculiarly excellent, and superior to any thing else called Soap; because while it saves time and labor, it never rots or injures the clothes. It is just the article it is represented to be, and one that disappoints the expectations of purchasers. It does not take out stains. For sale at Roy's Drug Store, Wellsboro, Pa.

BLANK MARRIAGE CERTIFICATES, FOR sale at this Office. June 24, 1853.

DR. WALTON'S AMERICAN PILLS. JOY TO THE AFFLICTED. YOUNG AMERICA VICTORIES.

One small box of Pills cures ninety-nine cases of a hundred. No balsam, no mercury, no opium, no breath, no fear of detection. Two small pills do; tasteless and harmless as water. Full directions are given, so that the patient can cure himself as certain as with the advice of the most experienced surgeon, and much better than with the advice of one of little experience in this class of disease.

Send by mail to any part of the country by enclosing one dollar to Dr. D. G. Walton, No. 151 North Seventh st. below Race, Philadelphia. A liberal discount to the trade. None genuine without the ten signature of Dr. D. G. Walton, Proprietor.

Dr. W's treatment for self-abuse, weakness &c. is entirely different from the usual course. Dr. W. has cured hundreds who have tried others with no benefit. The treatment is as certain to cure as the sun is to rise. Enclose a stamp, and address Dr. W., as above, giving a full history of your case: you will bless the day you made the effort to see what is certain—A RADICAL CURE. March 11, '53. (1y)
