For the Agitator. A SILENT SUMMER EVE. BY JOHN MCINTOSH. Spectacles, listless, in the evening sun, The cat purrs half asleep.

MY RUNAWAY MATCH. That I was in love was a fact that did not admit of a shadow of doubt. I departed myself like a person in love; I talked like a person in love; I looked and felt like a person in love.

Wonders of the Mississippi. The difference of level between high and low water mark at Cairo is fifty feet. The width and depth of the river from Cairo and Memphis to New Orleans is not materially increased, yet immense additions are made to the quantity of water in the channel by large streams from both the eastern and western sides of the Mississippi.

Love in a Tunnel. Many amusing anecdotes of Ventriloquists have been published, and many more that have not been published. But we think there are few ventriloquist incidents that will compare with one we witnessed recently on the cars of the Virginia Central Railroad.

COMMUNICATIONS. A Starlight Reverie. 'Tis evening—the stars, rejoicing at the faded glory and hidden splendor of the setting sun, are beaming forth from their hidden retreats in you far-off realms of ether, and one by one, all radiant and lit with joy, are forming a long vaulted concave, gemming and dotting the sombre vestments of darkling night.

And his hat, father! cried the wicked little Fan. "I declare!" exclaimed the doctor. "Wife, wife, look here and see Jason's coat and hat!" What should I do—stand there till morning before that incessant fire of words? Should I sneak off slowly, as Janet was doing? What, oh! what should I do?

And here let me tell you in confidence, reader, that I really think little Fanny Stoddard was a very deep motive in her head when she betrayed Janet and me, though she was but a child. She liked me, even then, I believe. Well, at any rate she declares every time that the affair is mentioned, that I have had my revenge upon her. Bless her faithful heart, it has been indeed a sweet one.
