Action!

Just now the Republicans of Tioga County are in a state of political apathy amounting almost to indifference. It is the dead calm which invariably precedes the storm; but as the storm is inevitable, would it not be wise for us to wake up and prepare for it?

The frequent successes of our opponents may principles, these being but poorly understood by those who vote for them; but it is a fact worthy the attention of Republicans, that the strength our opponents lose in the avowal and advocacy of corrupt measures, is sometimes more than made good by their unceasing party in the background. Let, however, a Southern drill, and their untiring vigilance. We can learn lessons of success from our enemies if we come at once the leading question in our nawill, not by trammeling men's minds with the slavery of opinion, not by appealing to a senseless and pharasaical loyalty to party, but by earnest appeals to men's minds and hearts, to their love of country and to free institutions. Men will thus be induced to think-think for themselves as men unbound by the ties of party -think for themselves as free citizens of a great and glorious country which they would fain make greater and more glorious still-and we are greatly mistaken indeed, if such thought does not beget action in the right direction.

Action at the present time is necessary. We know that Republicans generally believe that the election of our ticket in this State this Fall is a foregone conclusion-a mere matter of course. We believe so too; but it can be made more than a victory. It ought to be made a triumph, and a memorable one in the history of the State. At a time when the Slave Democracy of Pennsylvania and of the whole country are split up and divided among themselves fall of its own weight. Pro-slavery men, parby internal quarrels; at a time when each sep-arate faction is bent upon humbling the other ties, and churches, in the free States, are fear-fully responsible. They have strengthened the in the dust of popular repudiation and defeat; at a time when such Democratic catch words as "disunionists," "traitors," "disorganizers," "abolitionists," have lost their force and significance upon the minds of the ignorant by being used by the Democratic factions not against Republicans but against themselvesat such a time it would become all earnest wishers of the good of the country to be dilligent in their labors in behalf of Republican principles and measures. They should be industrious in directing the plain unvarnished facts of the doings of the present wicked and unscrupulous Administration into the healthful channel of independent thought. They should take care to show the facts as they actually exist by placing the record of them along side of such demagogical representations as those lately set forth in the edict or manifesto of Robert Tyler, an F. F. V. who has been called to instruct the "faithful" of this State in their duties to "the party;" and they should act broke out. The carpenter of the vessel, one from a sense of duty to themslves as men, as well as from a sense of duty to the commonwealth as citizens, and in no case should they act as partizans who desire only to secure the success of the party as such, without reference to the principles and measures of which the party is but an embodiment.

We ask our friends, therefore, to go to work. Supineness and indifference may bring disaster if not defeat. The victory of 1859, if it be a triumphant victory, will place Pennsylvania in the front ranks for 1860. Remember that nothing but vigilance and energy on the part of Republicans, will counteract the unwearied and untiring exertions of the pro-slavery Democracy. Remember too that the more work we do this Fall to insure success, the less will be necessary when we come to fight over again the battle of 1856 next year. So far as we can foresee, the issues will be the same; Slavery against free labor, economy in the administration of the Government against shameless profligacy, and "homes for the homeless against main issues, and in view of the efforts now being made to separate and divide the opponents of misrule and corruption by appeals to partizan pride, let us counteract these efforts by laboring more and more manfully for the Right. By working now, we may not only achieve a numerical victory, but an absolute triumph which people everywhere.

The Great Question South.

New proofs are every day accumulating of the hold which the question of reviving the African slave-trade has taken on the Southern mind. The pending gubernatorial contest in Texas turns entirely on that question. Gen. Houston has presented himself as a candidate for Governor against the regular Democratic nominee, exclusively on the ground of opposi-tion to the revival of the African trade. Though from motives of policy not inserted in terms into the Texas Democratic platform, the revival of the African slave-trade is well understood to have the tacit support of the regular leaders of the party. In this emergency the citizens of Texas opposed to that policy have appealed to Gen. Houston to give them the advantage of his name and leadership. Educated in the old Virginia school, of which Thomas Jefferson was the apostle, and taught in his youth to regard Slavery as an evil, Gen. Houston has not yet been converted to the new ideas which of late have made such rapid progress at the South. Hence he has been an object of bitter and persevering hostility on the part of the ultra partisans of Slavery, by whose means he has been ousted from the Senate. His triumph at the pending gubernatorial election might probably lead to his return to that body. Such a triumph, however, appears to be very problematical though no doubt, in addition to the support of those opposed to the revival of the African slave-trade, Gen. Houston may receive a considerable number of votes on the strength of his personal popularity. On the other hand, the defeat of Gen. Houston would undoubtedly be claimed by the partisans of reviving the African slave-trade as a popular sanction of that

We observe, too, in Georgia, indications of the importance which this question is assuming. A Convention of those opposed to the present National Administration was held at Macon on the 20th of July. At this Convention a resolution was offered declining to express any opinion, one way or the other, as to the policy of reviving the African slave-trade, yet urging the repeal of the Federal laws against it, on the ground that the Constitution grants no such power to Congress, and that the subject belongs properly to the States. This resolution was met by another declaring that "it is inexpedient, unwise, and contrary to the settled policy of the United States to repeal the laws prohibiting the African slave-trade." The Convention, however, disposed of the matter not always be accounted for by the triumph of by laying both resolutions on the table, which must be taken as an indication of a pretty equal division of opinion.

A Story that Beats Jonah.

We are indebted to Mr. L. recently returned from a whaling voyage, for the following touching narrative. Jonah may henceforth hide his diminished head:

On the home trip of one of our New York and Liverpool packets, she being crowded with emigrants, that awful scourge, the ship fever, of nature's noblemen, and having on board his little son, a lad of twelve summers, was one of the first victims. His shipmates sadly enclosed the body in a hammock, and having read over him the burial service, and attached to his feet a grindstone, for the purpose of sinking it, committed it to the embrace of old ocean. The poor boy, filled with grief at the loss of his natural protector sprang overboard, and before he could be rescued he was beyond the reach of human aid. On the day following the burial, a large shark was noticed in the wake of the ship, and as it was almost calm, the sailors asked permission to catch it, which was readily granted by the captain. Having procured a hook and attached a chain and baited it with pork, they east it overboard, and soon had the excited pleasure of hooking the monster, and with the aid of the windlass, they hauled the writhing mass on board. As it lay on the deck in its death struggles, the sailors heard a singular rumbling noise that seemed to proceed from within the dying captive. Taking their shipaxe, they soon cut their way into the now dead fish, and to their great surprise found that it had swallowed the carpenter, grindstone and niggers for the niggerless." These will be the boy, and the former, who had swooned, had rigged up the grindstone, and with the asssistance of the boy to turn it, "was grinding his

FROM THE PEOPLE. [SUNDAY SCHOOL CELEBRATION IN LAWRENCEVILLE.]

A Leaf by the Wayside. For many weeks the eyes of the children had grown brighter and opened wider as our Sabbath School celebration became an "oft repeated tale" by them. At last the long looked for morning came. Little innocent faces scanned the sky to see if "the big rain drops" were there. But with the sunrise fled the dark clouds. There never beamed a fairer day upon God's beautiful earth. The Lawrenceville Sabbath Schools, with three schools of adjoining places, met at the Methodist church at half-past nine o'clock A.

M., where they formed themselves into a pro-cession. Each class bearing a banner with appropriate scriptural mottoes, marched to the sound of music, to the grove selected for the celebration. The Tioga Choir then sang a hymn. I fervent prayer was offered by the Rev. L. Nichols; then followed the address by the Rev. John Raines of Corning. Beautiful and appropriate were his remarks. Not only were young hearts made better and wiser by them, but older ones were made to soar to that "better land" where the good will be welcomed.

After the feast of the soul came the feast of the body. All marched to dinner to the sound of music. After dinner a short time was given to do whatever you liked. The conversation of the elder folks mingled with the silvery voices of childhood, and "all went merry as a marriage

Afterward remarks were made by the Superintendents of the different schools. It was pleasant to see these men so earnestly, so willingly cheying the commands of our Saviour-"Feed my lambs."

Next in order came a few excellent remarks by the Rev. E. D. Wells. Then the choir sang. As those strains floated over the hills, I thought of the songs that we shall one day sing, with the blessed in those mansions of our Father.

The Secretary of the M. E. Sunday School of Lawrenceville read the report. The number of verses recited from Jan. 1st 1858 to July 3d. was 66058. The number of scholars in attendance 150.

After the report the Choir sang again. A prayer was made, the benediction given, and the several schools marched to the church in the same order as they left it in the morning .-After they arrived at the church, the children returned their thanks to the Speaker, Choir, Marshals and other officers.

At half past three o'clock, the Fire Company came out in uniform. The people, and children were much gratified at their appearance. Many hearts throbbed more quickly, in kind appreciis a strong disposition on the part of many ation as they remembered their untiring efforts Southern political leaders to keep this question to save the property of their neighbors on the night of a terrible fire.

Almost at the close of day, as I watched the departure of little pattering fect, I asked my self, how many of these little boys and girls, will in coming years be found walking in in the A certain editor speaking of the resolutions passed upon the subject of Slavery by a certain fall upon the ear, like angel's voices, will ring thurch existing only in the free States, says: "There is but one way that they can reach the gave his only son to die for us?" In years to some how many of those little hands will be ever ready to do good to his neighbor, eschewing the forbidden practice of living for himself. But to be ever ready to give a cup of cold water to whomsoever asketh it; for angels often come Is it true that an anti-slavery Church in the in disguise? How many of those bright eyes, free States can reach the evil of slavery only perchance dimmed by age, and the sorrows of life, will close in death with gladness, as their May they not do something by their "valiant souls, "for the good deeds done in the body" soar upward to home-heaven?

The Masses should do their own Thinking. FRIEND Young; The permission of yourself and the readers of the Agitator, as the lawyers say, "first had and obtained." I propose to write a series of articles upon the leading political questions now at the bar of public opinion in this county. In a short time we will be in the midstof another exciting presidential campaign. But a few months will clapse, before this whole hands and applied relieving plasters to the con-Mexico-from the Atlantic to the Pacific, will be agitated by another mighty political conflict. All classes of men, all shades of politicians will be found rallying around one or the other of the great political organizations. But few will occupy neutral ground. Action, a characteristic which distinguishes the American from all others, will be the motto of nine-tenths of the voters of these United States. And viewing the matter from this stand point-believing that in a free representative government where all power emanates from the people, a correct knowledge of the true theory of government and the blessings of liberty must go hand in hand, I candidly submit, is it not the plain duty of every American citizen to be fully alive to the questions which he is called upon by his vote to decide-the wrongs which he is in duty bound to redress? But few realize the vast and untold responsibilities which devolve upor us! If the privileges which we constitutional ly enjoy are great, does it not logically follow that the accountability resting upon us is correspondingly great also? With citizens of other countries the case may be, and is materially different. Among the monarchial nations of Europe all power reposes in the hands of the The titled nobility have but to issue their mandate, and all classes are ready to do their bidding. There the masses are but passive re cipients. They practically have no part nor lot in the management of the affairs of their country. They merely perform the work given them by those high in place. As an illustration of this, see the Emperors of France and Austria. two entire strangers, closeted together for an entire day, solemnly parceling out and divid-absolute sway their hundred million of subjects at home, deliberately, by force and arms, decide upon the political fate of that country which once could boast of a Caius Gracchus, a Fabius Maximus, a Junius Brutus! But thank Heaven, the freemen of these United States sustain a different relation to their government .-In Europe the sovereign commands and the people have but to obey. Here the people command, and those in office must either obey or be forced to retire into private life through the silent yet powerful medium of the Ballot Box. Yet while we have as citizens of this country, increased power politically, our duties which we owe to our country are enhanced also. In despotic nations, the subject having next to nothing to do with civil affairs, his responsibility becomes correspondingly lessened. But with us, all political power coming from the people—-all offices being practically elective, does it require any argument to convince any one that if liberty is to be perpetuated-if the great truths taught us in the Declaration of Inwill awaken new courage in the hearts of the Thompsonville, advising her to save her money. dependence are to be upheld and transmitted to hose that are to come after us, that the masses

How can great reforms be forwarded, or gross abuses corrected except the freemen of this Union, fully understand the effect of their votes and conduct themselves accordingly? How can they vote intelligently without being correctly informed? And how can they obtain the desired information without giving the matter their honest attention? Almost every Presidential campaign has brought with it new issues. Old ones either become the settled policy of the government, or are repudiated altogether and new ones spring up in their stead. At times the great political parties have been divided upon the U. S. bank, the tariff, the subtreasury, the distribution of the proceeds of the sale of public lands, of the improvement of rivers and harbors, and many others. But these in a measure have been passed upon, and others have arisen in their place. Of these dead questions I care not; the living questions are
