He came, and went away-it was nothing-With cold, calm words upon either side;
But, just as the sound of the room door shutting,
A dreadful door in her soul stood wide.

Love, she had read of it in sweet romances-Love that could sorrow, but never fall, Built her own palace of noble fancies, All the wide world a fairy tale.

Bleak and bitter, and utterly doleful, Spreads to the woman her map of life; lour after hour she looks in her soul, full Of deep dismay and turbulent strife.

Face in both bands, she knelt on the carpet;
The black cloud loosen'd, the storm rain fell;
Oh! life has so much to wither and warp it— One poor heart's day, what poet can tell? -Once-a- Week.

Bayard Taylor.

Bayard Taylor was born in the village of Kennet Square, Chester county, Pa., on the 11th of January, 1825. So at this time he is only about thirty-five years old. Truly he is young for so popular a traveler, poet, author, and lecturer; but deservedly he stands at the head of all American travelers, both in the amount of travel and the rich and spicy way in which he describes what he has seen, for the convenience and pleasure of his fellow-men.

At the age of seventeen, he entered a printing office in Westchester, Pa., as an apprentice, and about the same time began to write poetry, his effusions appearing in the N. Y. Mirror and Graham's Magazine. In 1844 he collected and published his first volume of poems, and the same year he visited Europe. After two years of travel in Great Britain, Switzerland, Germany. Italy and France, but principally in Germany, he returned to America and published an account of his travels with the title of "Views a Foot." This work will well repay a perusal by any one, although it is now some time since it was first published, as it proves that industry, energy, and perseverance, will accomplish much more for a young man, just starting in life than all the good that wealth, with concomitant evils, can possibly bring him. In 1848, having published his "Rhymes of Travel," he received a place as permanent writer for the New York Tribune, and in this journal the greater part of his late productions have first appeared.

The middle of the year 1849 found him in California, and in 1850 he returned to the Atlantic States through Mexico, and soon after that appeared his "Eldorado, or Adventures in the path of Empire." His fame as a poet was greatly increased by the appearance in the following year of his "Book of Romances, Lyrics, and Songs," and immediately after, he started on a long tour in the Orient, in which journey he was absent two years and four months, and traveled more than fifty thousand miles.-Sketches of this tour may be found in three exceedingly interesting volumes, entitled, "A Journey to Central Africa," "The land of the Suracen," and "India, Loo Choo and Japan."
His "Poems of the Orient," appeared in 1854.
These include only those pieces which were written by him while on his passage around the world. Sparkling as the warm sunlight of the East, they have passages "Rich, sensuous, and impetuous as the Arab sings in dreams," with others which are perfectly charming. During the last few years he has traveled in northern Europe, and lectured in different parts of the United States. He was married in 1857 to the daughter of the Chief Astronomer of Gotha,

Mr. Taylor is in stature, about six feet, and middling thick-set. His hair and whiskers are black-the latter are of moderate thicknesshigh forehead, Roman nose, and pleasant countenance, which fully agrees with the English critic when he says, no man ever regretted making the acquaintance of Mr. Taylor, and every American should be proud to own him as his countryman.

Brand from the Burning .- The Gospel Herald has a communication from Mr. D. Birney, giving an acount of the conversion of a woman of such great-age that it is doubtful if another instant of the kind will occur in a whole gene ration. Mr. B. says:

"Agnes Brown, aged one hundred and ten years, who lives near Hillard, who was one of Colonel Slaughter's slaves in the Revolution, was recently converted and united with the church and was baptized. This is the crowning glory of my whole ministerial life. Perhaps no person, at least for the last hundred years, has been the feeble means under God of the conversion of a person so very old. One hundred and ten years old! Only think of it! How many millions would be lost, if they did not repen until so late an hour! Many thoughts crowd my mind when I think of this conversion; but will close by saying that an unconverted man told me at the waterside that her baptism had impressed him the most deeply of anything he had ever seen. The Lord grant that it may be the means of his conversion."

COMMENDABLE ECONOMY.—Our friend W. issued a license for the marriage of John Mur phy and Mary Manning, both of the Emerald Isle, for which he received from John the legal fee-$1. But the intended bride "rude." weeks and two days afterward John made his second appearance at the Clerk's office.

"Misther W .---," said he, "in February last I got a license from you to marry Mary Manning, an' I deed'nt marry her; an' now plaz yer honor, wud yer be so good as to alther it so it wud fit Honora Moriarty?"

Jim informed him that this couldn't be done and that he must get a new license to "fit"

"And pay for it?" said John.

"And pay for it," said Jim W-"Och, indade! thin I'm rnined intirely, in tirely!" exclaimed John, "for I jist coorted Honora to save the dollar"

A young Jonathan took it into his head one day to get a wife. He accordingly looked around him, and was not long in striking a bargain and settling the preliminaries. He then applied to a clergyman to perform the ceremony. "But are you prepared for such an important change in life;" asked the reverend gentleman.

"I guess I beez," replied Jonathan, "for hev got my land just paid for, and own a good yoke of steers and a kow."

"Very well," said the holy man, with a long breath and sober face, "all these worldly things may be very proper in their place to be sure-but have you ever thought of salvation?" This was a poser, and Jonathan, musing, re-

Gentlemen: The Salamander Fire-Proof Safe of and Watson, Philadeiphia.

Gentlemen: Tha Salamander Fire-Proof Safe of your manufacture, purchased by us from your Agent, Ferris & Garrett, of our city, some nine months ago, was severely tried by burglars last Saturday night, and although they had a sledge hammer, cold chisels, drill, and gunpowder, they did not succeed in opening the Safe. The lock being one of Hall's Patent Powder-proof," they could not get the powder into it, but drilled a hole in the lower panel and forced in a large charge, which was ignited, and although the door, inside and out, showed the explosion not to have been a small one, it was not forced open. We suppose they were the greater part of the night at work on it. We are much gratified at the result of the attempt to enter it, and if the above facts are of any service, you are Yours, truly, RNOXVILLE, TENESSER, March 13th, 1859.—Messrs.

Evans & Watson, Philadelphia:
Gentlemen: It affords me great pleasure to say to you that the Salamander Safe, which I purchased of you in February, 1858, proved to be what you recommended it—a sure protection from fire. My storehouse together with several others, was burned to the ground in March last. The Safe fell through into the cellar, and was exposed to intense heat for six on eight hours, and when it was taken from the ruins and opened, all its contents were found to be in a perfect state, the books and papers not being injured in the least. I can cheerfully recommend your Safes to the community, believing as I do, that they are as near fire-proof as it is possible for any Safe to be made.
