THE TWO PARMERS.

Many years ago we knew two farmers in Ohio heighbors, one of whom had thirty acres of rather poor land, a sickly wife, two little girls, two little girls, and a small boy; the other had two handred acres of much better land, a robust wife, two full-grown daughters, and five sons averaging six feet. The man with the small farm had not even a Summer rivulet on his premises. He had one acre of timber; and he so laid out his fields that there was a spring in each. He kept half a dozen cows, about thirty sheep, two horses, six or eight hogs, an abundance of fowls, and a score swarms of bees. Half an acre devoted to his vegetable garden; small fruits he raised in abundance, and his orchard being on high grounds and properly tended, he had an abundance of choice fruit when his neighbor had gone.

At all seasons of the year he had something to sell. His usual crop of wheat was four acres and not one year in three did it fall below 150 bushels. Three and a half tons was his usual crop of clover and two of timothy. His three acre corn patch yielded about 250 bushels; and his root grop was a constant source of astonishment. There were no such cows, sheep or pige for miles around. Nobody could make such butter. In truth verything he had was worthy of a premium. He had a workshop, and was his own blacksmith, carpenter, and shoemaker. His crops never suffered from the weather; his animals never shivered in the cold; he himself never seemed into hurry. He took half a dozen newspapers; he had a good library; he read much, studied much, and always had plenty of money. People said he was a very lucky man. But luck had nothing to do with his success. He pursued a system of mixed husbandry. He wasted none of his labor. In these lay the secret of his prosperity.

The farmer with the 200 acres raised wheat and corn-of courses everything else was sub-ordinate. About half, his farm was each year devoted to them. Let had very poor horses, breechy, long-legged cattle, hogs that were a nuisance and an eyes re to his neighbors, sheep with tails like foxes a third of whose wool at shearing time was happing on briers, thorns and hazel bushes; an orchard in which half the traces were always out of repair. Scarcely a year passed in which acres of mown hay did not rot in the meadaws, or in which acres of not rot in the meadows, or in which acres of Call and see us, and we will part with you sure to see wheat did not sprout before threshing. the reason assigned by this man for his losses was that " he had not enough time." He lived one year shead of his income and was compatively involved in law guits. His most formidable adversary was, if his judgment could be relied upon, a mystertous personage called bad luck. He worked hard, and was too economical to take a newspaper. After a hard strugg'e of over twenty years he became convinced that he had not land enough, sold out, and moved to Ibwa .- Press and Tribune.

CHIPS FROM THE RAIL SPLITTER .- Douglas .-Hards I win, tails from lose.

Q. Do you go fer a slave code, or are you for giving the nigger iberty? A. I think we are. Q. Are you for he Taney Dred Scott decisidn, or do you repudiate it? A. I believe so. Q. To which wing of the split-tail democracy do you belong? A. We are all democrats.

Q. What does democracy mean? A. It does. Q. You mistake! Democracy does mean (meanly) I know, but what is its true definition as interpreted at Baltimore? A. Yea! you are right, I recollect it means Baltimore. Vide

"Cushing's Manual," fly leaf. Yes again, and it be means Baltimore too. Exuant all!

MRS. PARTINGTON ON WEDDINGS .- " I like to tend weddings," said Mrs. Partington, as she came back from one in Church, and hung her shawl up, and replaced her bonnet in the long preserved bandbox. . "I like to see young people come together with the promise to love, cherish and nourish each other. But it is a solemn thing, is matrimony, a very solemn thing, where the minister comes into the chancery with his surplus on, and goes through the ceremony of making them man and wife. It should be husband and wife. It isn't every husband that turns out to be a man. I declare I never shall forget when Paul put the nuptial ring on my finger and said: With my goods I do thee endow. He used to keep a dry goods store and I thought he was going to give me the whole there was in it. I was young and simple, and didn't know till afterwards that it meant only one calico dress a year."

On person asking another if he believed n the appearance of spirits, he replied, "No; of Thelieve in their disappearance, for I have d d bottle of gin singe last night."

EVANS & WATSON'S SALAMANDER SAFES 304 Chestnut Street, PHILADELPHIA.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH! PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29, 1859.

To the President of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Society:—The subscribers, your committee to examine the contents of a Saiamander Safe of Evans & Watson, after being exposed to a strong fire on the Fair Grounds for eight hours, respectfully represent—

That after seven cords of oak wood and three of pine had been consumed around the Safe, it was opened in the presence of the committee, and the contents taken out, a little warmed, but noteven scorched. Several Silver Medals heretofore received by the manufacturers, and a large quantity of documents were in the Safe, and came out enoirely uninjured.

The experiment satisfied us of the capacity of Safes of this kind to protect contents from any fire to which they may be exposed. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29, 1859.

and Watson, Philadelphia.

Gentlemen: The Salamander Fire-Proof Safe of our manufacture, purchased by us from your Agent; erris & Garrett, of our city, some nine months ago, as severely tried by burglars last Saturday night; and although they had a sledge hammer, cold chiesle, all, and gunpowder, they did not succeed in opening the Safe. The lock being one of Hall's Patent Powder-proof," they could not get the powder into it, but diled a hole in the lower papel and forced in a large charge, which was ignited, and although the door, inside and out, showed the explosion not to have been a small one, it was not forced open. We suppose they site and out, showed the explosion not to have been a suell one, it was not forced open. We suppose they was the greater part of the night at work on it. We are much gratified at the result of the attempt to enter it, and if the above facts are of any service, you are at liberty to use them.

GREAT FIRE: ANOTHER TRIUMPH: K. KOXVIILE, TENESSEE, March 13th, 1859. Messrs. Evan & Watson, Philadelphia:

Evam & Watson, Philadelphia:

Gendemen: It affords me great pleasure to say to you that the Salamander Safe, which I purchased of you it February, 1853, proved to be what you recommended it—a sure protection from fire. My store-housed gether with several others, was burned to the groundin March last. The Safe fell through into the cellar and was exposed to intense heat for six or eight wars, and when it was taken from the rains and opened, all its contents were found to be in a perfect state, to books and papers not being injured in the least. Can cheerfully recommend your Safes to the community, believing as I.do, that they are as near-fire-preciously its possible for any Safe to be made.
