A mighty knowing man was Caleb Page, who kept the grocery at the fork of the road, near Woodchuck Creek, Sprag Hollow, in the village of Hornville. No occurrence had taken place, of all the particulars of which Caleb did not possess a thorough knowledge in the minutest detail. All matters in the prospective were and ticipated, discussed, arranged and satisfactorily disposed of by Caleb long before they took place. If a neighbor rushed into the store to communicate what he believed to be a very recent piece of news, he would have the conceit taken out of him by being told by Caleb that he "had heard of it a week ago." Events of the past, present and future were all the same to him; his ubiquitous knowledge graped and covered them all to him they were all " stale news."

A small bet was mide one evening between Si Stevens and Joe Stubbins. Bi het Joe couldn't nonplus Caleb with any piece of intelligence-real or imaginary. Joe took all such bets as that.

The following evening Si and Joe, accompanied by two or three more of the "boys" of the village who were to "help the thing along," and "fill in," proceeded o Caleb's store. After being comfortably seated here and there, on boxes, barrels &c., Si opened the evening's amusement by asking in a manner that indicated he was continuing a conversation com-menced before they had, intered the store: "So you say, Joe, the / have caught him at last." "Yes, sir, about seventeen minutes after eight." "Well, Joe, how far up the creek was it?" "On a careful consideration, I should say it was about three miles, or three miles and a half up the creek."

Caleb, who had not lost a word of the conversation, dropped his sugar scoop with astonishment and opened his ears, for the boys were talking about a matter in which he was not

The conversation continued : "Well," saya Si, "that couldn't 'a been far from Deacon Hunt's."

"Jest so," answered Joe, "It was about eighty rods from Deacon Hunt's hog pen, in a slanch wise direction."

"Did you hear, Joe, with a face as solid as a grave stone, "how much ile they got?" "Yes, I did," replied Joe, with another face as solid as two gravestones, "I hearn that they got nigh about sixty bards of ile."

. The wags observed that Caleb was getting exceedingly uneasy and " piled it on." "Well, Joe, how long was the reptile?

"Well, Si, the insect was about eighty-two feet long and twenty-eight odd inches broadthick in proportion." "I thought, Joe, that there was a pair on

'em?" "That's a fact, there was two on 'em but they only caught the he one." At this point of the dialogue, Caleb became so desperately excited that he could contain himself no longer, and spappishly demanded to know "What in the thunder they were talking about ?" "Why," said Joe with well feigned astonishment, "don't you know about their catching that are-"

"That are what?" snarled Caleb. "Why, that are whale!" seriously answered

"A whale " exclaimed the bewildered Ca "Have they caugh, that whale up the leb. creek ?" - "They havn't caught anything else," said the imperturable Joes "And how much ife did they get?" inquired

Caleb as he recovered his wits. "Ninety two bar'ls," said Joe, forgetting eviously mentioned "Well," said Caleb with slow deliberation, and a satisfied look, "I'm glad they caught him, for I heard they were arter him."

SINGULAR MEETING OF BROTHERS AFTER BATTLE-BOTH OF THEM WOUNDED .- A correspendent of the Richmond Dispatch, writing from "Camp near Manassas July 27th," relates the following affecting incident of the meeting, after the separation of seven years, between two brothers, one a member of the New Orleans Washington Artillery, the other belonging to the 1st Minnesota Infantry. He Says: "We went into a stable at Centrville, where thirteen wounded Yankees were, and upon entering found a-Washington Artillery man seated by the side of a wounded soldier, evidently ministering to him with great care and tenderness. He remarked that it was very hard to fight as he had fought, and turn and find his own brother fighting against him, at the same time point ing to the wounded soldier from whose side he had just risen. I asked if it was possible that was his brother. Yes, sir he is my brother Henry. The same mother bore us, the same nursed us. We met the first time for seven years. I belong to the Washington Artillery from New Orleans-he to the First Minnesota Infantry. By the merest chance I learned he was wounded, and sought him out to nurse and attend him. Thus they met-one from the far North, the other from the extreme South-on a bloody field in Virginia, in a miserable stable far away from their mother, home and friends, buth wounded-the infantry man by a musket ball in the right shoulder, the artillery man by the wheel of a caisson over his left hand. Their names are Fredrick Hubbard, Washington Artillery and Henry Hubbard, First Minnesota

Infantry." The above extraordinary incident we are as sured is literally true. The wounded brothers are nephows of Mr. Henry M. King, of Utien. -Utica Observer

A Noble REPLY .- Among the Federal pris offers, writes a correspondent from Richmond Is a noble looking and, intelligent Zouave. enw him on the field just after he was taken .-While passing a group of our men, one of the litter called him some hard name. "Sir." said the Zouave, turning on his heel and looking the Virginian full in the eye. "I have heard that yours is a nation of gentlemen, but your insult comes from a coward and a knave. I am your prisoner, but you have no right to fling your curses upon me because I am unfortonate. Of the two sir, I consider myself the gentleman." The Virginian slunk away under the merited rebuke, and a dozen soldiers guthered round the prisonir, and assured him of protection from further insult.

There is no policy like politiness; and a good manner is the best thing in the world, either to get a good name or supply the want of it.

NEW ORLEANS, 25th August, 1859.

Dr. J. C. Ayer: Sir, I cheaffully comply with the request of your agent and report to you some of the effects I have realized with your Sarsaparilla.

I have cured with it in my practice, most of the complaints for which it is recommended, and have found its effects truly wonderful in the cure of Venereal and Murcureal Disease the of my patients had Syphilitic ulcers in his throat, which were consuming his palate and the top of his mouth. Your Sarsaparilla, steadily taken, cured him in five weeks. Another was attacked by secondary symptoms in his nose, and the ulceration had caten away a considerable part of it, so that I believed the disorder would soon reach his brain and hill him. But it yielded to my administration of your Sarsaparilla; the ulcers healed and he is well again, not of course without some disfiguration to his face. A woman who had been treated for the same disorder by murcury was suffering from this poison in her bones. They had become a sensitive to the weather that on a damp day she suffered excruciating pain in her joints and bones. She, too, was cirred entirely by your Sarsaparilian is few weeks. I know from its formula, which your dgent give me, that this preparation from your labratory must be a great remedy; consequently, these truly remarkable results with it have not sarprised me. Fraternally yours,
