

THE AGITATOR.

HUGH YOUNG, EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.

WELLSBOROUGH, PA. WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 15, 1862.

The President, it is reported, will decline to receive Gen. Sigel's resignation, deeming him too valuable a soldier to lose, if it is possible to prevail upon him to remain in the service of the Union.

Gen. Simon Cameron on Monday last, resigned the Department of War, and Edwin M. Stanton (also a Pennsylvanian, but recently a resident of Washington City) was promptly nominated to fill the place.

Gen. Cameron goes out as Ambassador to Russia, relieving Cassius M. Clay, who has expressed a wish to be recalled. Clay does not well comprehend how there should be fighting in Kentucky, and he has no hand in it.

LATEST WAR NEWS.

From Kentucky we learn that the forces under Gen. Buell's command consist of 1012 regiments of infantry, 9 regiments and nine companies of cavalry, and 19 batteries of artillery. Of this total force, about 75,000 men are already fully disciplined and organized, and are in the field.

The fighting that is to come will be the severest on our side performed since the outbreak of the great insurrection; these Western soldiers will make short but bloody work.

Humphrey Marshall, the bibulous rebel brigadier, who for some months past has been harrying the loyal men of Eastern Kentucky, and was just about to leave his camp at Prestonburg, Owen Co., on the west fork of the Big Sandy River, to take up his victorious march for Frankfort, the capital of the State, has suddenly found a lion in his path.

Gen. Buell spoiled his plans by dispatching Col. Garfield with a superior force against him. The Col. dividing his command, sent one column along the road leading to Louisa, at the junction of the forks of the Sandy, while the other took the direct road to Prestonburg.

From Hatteras Inlet we learn that our troops are all well, and have not been troubled by the rebels since the 5th of December. Contrabands from the mainland had crossed over, at great peril, to inform our people that the rebels were at work strongly fortifying Roanoke Island, in expectation that Gen. Burnside's expedition would go into Pamlico Sound to operate against Norfolk.

We clip the following interesting dispatch in relation to the Pennsylvania troops from Sunday's Herald:

This has been a gala day in General McCull's division to the Sixth, Ninth, Tenth and Twelfth Pennsylvania regiments, the Bucktail Rifles, Capt. Easton's battery and Col. Bayard's cavalry. The regiments attached to Gen. Ord's brigade that participated in the Drainsville battle were presented their regimental flags, on each, in conformity with the directions of Gov. Curtin, of Pennsylvania, the words, "Drainsville, Dec. 20, 1861," having been inscribed.

AN EFFICIENT BLOCK. AFTER ALL.—The following remarkable information taken from the New Orleans Crescent and which we find in the Memphis Appeal (Dec. 16th) is to the point: Unfortunately the military and resources of the Hessian Government of Lincoln have been underrated. It is now a matter of six months since a general entered the north of New Orleans from a distant country. The issue remark will apply to Mobile and other ports on the Gulf where a vessel with a cargo of merchandise has passed Lincoln's blockade, twenty passed the blockade in the war of 1812.

From Captain Calkins' Company.

CAMP HAZARD, FORTRESS MONROE, Va., Jan. 6, 1862. FRIEND YOUNG: I received your very welcome letter several weeks ago, but owing to the pressure of business, as a citizen would say, I have been unable to answer it sooner, as you desired; but the better reason for my neglect, to speak more military, is that for some time after the reception of your letter, we were "on the march," or at least were not settled in "permanent quarters."

This company, now known as "Company F. 11th Pa. Vol. Cavalry," was organized at Try, Pa., on the 24th of August last; was mustered into the service of the United States on the 27th of the same month, and went into camp two days after, on Meridian Hill, about three miles from Washington.

Colestock, Charles Clark, Lewis Canady, J. Driscoll, C. N. Fenton, C. W. Fellows, O. M. Fletcher, H. H. Foster, J. W. Fuller, John Gratton, James Gratton, C. Garabrant, Wm. Hancock, A. H. Ingalls, Herman Inascho, Darius Inascho, J. C. Impson, W. H. Kirkendall, A. D. Keeney, A. Klock. Those marked (*) are residents of Tioga Co.

Since we arrived here at Fortress Monroe, we have been called to mourn the loss of two of our brothers in arms, members of this company, namely, Ira O. Mudge, of Tioga county, and Henry A. Armstrong, of Bradford county. Actuated, as I doubt not, by the Golden Rule, the members of the company sent these dear comrades home to their bereaved friends.

Our Regiment, after having completed its organization and equipment at its first encampment, moved to Ball's Cross Roads, Va., and joined Gen. Palmer's brigade. It was while lying at this place, that we saw "actual science." Our squadron was ordered to join General Howard's brigade, which lay at Bladensburg, Maryland, to go on an expedition down the Western shore of that State, to guard the election polls at her November election. The 45th Penna. was at this time attached to Gen. Howard's brigade, and we had the pleasure of meeting many old acquaintances in the companies of Captains Whitney, Hill's and Scheiffelin.

Our Regiment is now detached from General Palmer's brigade, and under the immediate charge of Gen. Wool at Old Point Comfort. Here we are well cared for, and engaged in drilling and scouting with our faces always set in the direction of the head-waters of the James River, where the boys away they can smell the enemy, and all seem anxious, at no distant day, to "take up our line of march" in that direction and "turn powder." Indeed it is rumored that we are destined to do so as soon as the Burnside expedition, which is fitting out at Annapolis shall arrive.

The boys are generally enjoying excellent health, and keep up remarkably fine spirits; never quarrel except as to who shall go with the scouting parties; all seem to prefer this to camp duty. Old Point Comfort is rightly named, on account of the beauty of its scenery, the healthfulness of its climate, and its pleasant and delightful weather. For these qualities, I would not exchange it as a camping ground for any other in the United States, nevertheless I would be quite willing to exchange it for one a little farther down in "Secession," for the purpose of extending the Government of the United States over original and rightful dominions.

In Bonds.—There can be no longer any doubt but that the invincible Parson Brownlow has been arrested and is in rebel hands. He had permission to leave and was starting when he was arrested and detained a prisoner. The Cincinnati Gazette has the information direct from an escaped Tennesseean, who was to have accompanied the redoubtable Parson...
