A Faithful Dog n the Battle-Field. Lieutenaut Pfieff, ki ted at the battle of Shiloh, was buried at Chi agiga few days ago. In speaking of the funer , the Times, of that city, remarks:

A beatiful and toug' inglincitient is connected with the manner i which Mrs. Pfieff was enabled to discover the place where her husband had been buried upon the battle-field,— She visited the field, a mil with a pass from General Hallsok, but, 5 one could possibly in-form her of the place there be had been buried, as such a large ne hour, of both-friend and foe, had been interred upon the same ground. She remained about that day, and was about She remained about halffer day, and was about giving up in despair, when she espied, at the distance of nearly halffer mile, a large dug coming rapidly towards for, which she immediately recognized as the same which had accompanied her with the mass intense manifesta.

She did so, and he led the way to a distant part of the field, and stopped before a single grave She caused it to be opened, and there found the body of her dead husband. It appears from the statement of some of the southers that at the time Livetenant Pheff fell, this slog was at his side, and there remained, leking his wounds, until he was taken from the field and buried -He then took his station by the grave, and nothing could induced him to abandon it but for a sufficient length of time each day to satisfy his hunger, until by some meaus, he was made aware of the presence of his mistress. Thus had he watched her twelve days by the grave of his slain master. This is certainly one of the most wonderful instances of canine sagacity on record. When the body was being conveyed to this city spis wonderful animal took up his position by the box containing the remains, and no presumann could induce him to leave it until its irrival here.
