following touching incident: While in the curs the other (), during my tour through Western New Y , a lady ap-proached me and made inquiry tout her son, whom she suid was in my britans. I could not help expressing my surprise to her that. one so youthful in appearance had a son old enough to be in the army. She said her boy was only sixteen when he enlisted, but being large of stature, no questions about his age were asked. After such epquiries as would suggest themselves to an affectionate mother, she gave me a message to him. She bid me say to him that his father had just enlisted in the Ninth Cavalry and that she was now quite alone. "Tell him also," said she "that we are as poor as ever, but that all the pay he sent me I have put in the bank in his name. Not a penny of it has been touched. I want him to know that if he comes home not as able to work as when he went, something is laid by for him." Turning to a bright youth some ten years old, who stood near her as she was leaving me she, said: "General, I wish this the was. old enongh, and you should have him too, for I think God will bless every mother who gives her children to the cause.
