"We do not propose to shrink the Journal, until it melts into thin air, but a "military necessity" has byeriaken us, by which in order to keep up our communications with our base of supplies, to prevent the raid, by our excellent sheriff, upon our desched trains, to secure an undivided front, serried flanks and an impregnable reat, it has become necessary "in the course of human events" to reduce materially the size of the Journal. By so doing we avert these possible catastrophies, and the contingency of a "change of base" from the Editorial Sanctum to the

With few, if any exceptions, countries of the war in the contribution of the war. try newspaper establishments, have severely suffered from diminution of patronage. Patriotically, few have complained, or sought to divide the burden with the reading public. But the recent enormous ad-wance in the price of printing paper, an advance of fifty per cent with a monthin, has compelled some spedy action. Two courses were open to us, viz: to in orease the subscription price, or lessen the size of the sheet. We have chosen the latter, for various reaancet. sons. It avoids confusion in collecting or crediting subscriptions, and the same trouble, when favorable times may permit a return to the former size. Again, the parons of country newspapers do not expect to find a large amount of rending matter, as competition with the weekly issues of the Daily Press of the cit-ias is impossible, such weeklies costing nothing for type-setting, but simply require a margin above presswork and white paper. The county newspapers are taken mainly for their local character, and therefore subscribers will prefer to pay three cents for a small sheet, than four or five for one larger, as there would be no increase in local items and county news.
