"Hello 17 replied the shirt, with vigor, removing his pipe from his motth.
What place is this?" de handed, the trav sier, whose name was Thomp on.

The answer of the shirt was uperpected. There was about fifty yar is between them and the wind was blowing. Lt. Thompson thought he had been mistaken.

"What did you say?" he laked.
""" You Dam," replied the stranger, cheer-

What place is this?" raised Mr. Thomp-Yu-ba Dam!" said the shirt, in a slightly Heyated tone of voice.

Look here?" yelled the irate Thompson.

I asked you politely what place this was:
why in thunder don't you answer?

The stranger became excited. The rose and replied with the voice of an &0-pounder: n & Yu ba dam L Do you hear that?

In a minute Thompson, burning with the wrath of the righteous, jumped of his horse and advanced on the stranger with an expres-sion not to be mistaken. The shirt arose and ussumed a posture of offense and defense. . Arrived within a yard of tam, Thompson gald: "I ask you for the last time, what place is,this 2"

Patting his hands to his glouth, his opponent roared: "! Mu-ba-dam!"

The nath minute they were shalt. First, Thompson was down; then the shirt; and then there was a dog fall, that is, both were down. They rolled about kicking up a tremendous dust. They squimed around so energetically, that you'd have thought they had a dozen legs instead of four 11 tooked like a prize fight between two publishes centipedes. Finally, they both rolled of the bank and into the river. The water coole them! They went down together, but came ip separate, and put out for the shore. Both reached it about the same time, and Thompson Accampled up the bank, mounted his warline steed, and made tracks, leaving his foe gove ng the mud out of ore of his eyes.

Having left the businesson reion of the town that is to say, the corner where the three bars were kept—he struck a house in the suburbs, before which a little girl of about four years of age was playing. "What place is this. Sies? ?", be asked. The little girl, frightene ht the drowned rat-figure which the stranger cut streaked it for the house. Having reached the door she stopped turned, and squeaded Ob-bee-dam? his heels between his heels similar with the condition of the conditio Heavens ! let me get out of this horrid place, where not only the men but the very babes and sucklings swear at inoffensive travelers."

A First Rate Morning Bath.

A great deal is said about bathing, and houses are generally preferred for having baths fixed in them, supplied with hot water and cold; but the simplest bath, and one in which all may indulge without trouble or expense, is that of a sponge or towel bath wand if renested every morning, summer indiventer, is such a renovater of the system that you will have little occasion either for east weter bathing or ong other kind of bathing, and may fairly promise your doctor a long holiday, so far as you are concerned. Just do as we tell you in this article, and, if you do not feel better, throw the blame upon our advice

Before going to bed, fill your wash basin with water, say two-thirds full; then put into it a large soft sponge, or towel just which is handiest. Provide something to stand on—either a piece of old carpet or a shallow tin-to keep the floor from being wet; and; also a couple of coarse, good-sized towe to Then all being ready, immediately upon ril ing in the morning having thrown off your right dress, first wet your head, and then take the sponge or towel full of water and squeeze it upon your shoulders, the water running down to your feet. The body having thus got a good wetting, you need not, as some suggest, sponge the body any further, but take the towels and give yourself a good rubbing for about one of the minutes, till the skin begins to react; then dress as quickly as possible, and, if convenient and the weather suitable, take a short walk. Bathing and dressing should not take you more than ten minutes. Practice will render less rubbing sufficient, and the walk in time may be dispen sed with. This is a buth that everybody should take, and will be found an infallible source of vigor and good health, if properly done and followed up. .

Mrsrery of the Hun. Hand.—Issuing from the wrist is that winderful organ the hand. "In a French book says Sir Charles Bell. "intended to teach young people philosophy, the pupil asks why the fingers are not of squal length. The master makes the scholar grasp a ball of ivory, to how him that the points of the fingers are the pequal. It would have been better had he plosed the fingers upon the palm, and then bive asked whether or not they correspond. Tas difference in the length of the fingers served a thousand pur poses, as in holding a rod, sewitch, a sword, a hammer, a pen, pencil, or effecting tool, in all of which secure hold and freedom of action are admirably combined." On the length, strength. and perfectly free movements of the thumbs depends, moreover, the power of the human hand. To the thumb, ind ed, has been given the special name Polfex, from a Latin verb, meaning to be able, strong mighty, because of its strength—a strength hat is necessary to the power of the hand, being equal to that of all the fingers. Without it is freshy ball of the thumb the power of the fin ters would be of no avail, and accordingly the targe ball formed by the muscles of the thumb is the special mark of the human hand, and particularly that of a clover workman. The loss of the thumb almost amounts to the loss of the hand.
