How Gen. Hooker lot titto the Bervice. We find the following interesting story about

Gen. Hooker in the Ch cago Pribune : "When the war broke out, Gen. Hooker, then in California, came post firste to Washington to offer his services to the government. General Scott was at the head of the military affairs of the country; and between that old gentleman and Gen. Houker was a feud dating back to the Mexican was; hence as everything relating to the army was related to Scott, Hooker was suffered to apply in vain for even a regimental command. Disgusted and mad, he regimental command. Disgusteg and mad, he made his preparations to return to the Pacific coast, and was about to start then the first battle of Bull Run was fong. There was nothing in that to encourage; the went up to the White House, as the last thing he fore leaving, to call on the President, whom he had never seen. He was introduced by some mistake of his friend as Captain Hookers and the follow-ing was the conversation that ensued:

Hooker .- Mr. President, I was introduced to you as Captain Hooker. I appor was Lieuto you as Captain Hooker. Is and or was Lieutenant Colonel Hooker of the regular army.

When this war began, I was at thome in California, and hastened to making the new relation to General Scott or some other impediment stands in the way, and I see To hance of making my military knowledge at experience useful. I am about return, the thefore going I was anxious to promy my respects to, you, and to experse my wish a fur your personal welfure. to express my wish a for your personal welfare less than and for your succe a in putting down this infernal rebellion. And I want while I am at it, to say one thing more; I state Bull Run the other day, Mr. President and it is no vanity or boasting in me to say that I am a sight better general than your sir, had on the field!'

manner of a man be was well mande such a boast. "His eye was sterd sand clear, his manner not half so confident a his words, and altogether he had the air of the man of sense and intelligence who thoroughly believed in himself, and who would at lost try to make his words good. I was impressed with him, and rising out of my chair walked up to him, and rising out of my chair walked up to him, and putting my hand on his spoulder, said, Colonel, not Lieutenant-Cylenel Hooker, stay, I have use for you; and a regiment for you to command."

"He did stay. The populace regiment was put under his orders, and from the was soon promoted to a brigade, and thence to a Major General's place in command of a division.

"In every position in while he has been put," says Mr. Lincoln, "Gene Hooker has equalled the expectations which his self-confidence excited."

A Voice from Missoul i on Slavery.

A pamphlet edition of the speech delivered by Charles D. Drake, of Missouri, at the great emancipation meeting in it. Lauis, has just been published. Mr. Drake is an emineat lawyer in St. Louis, an old democrat and a vigorous speaker. We make the following extracts from his speech: "When I speak, as I shall to-night, of sla-

Fun at Home.—Don't be afraid of a little fun at home, good people! Dou't shut your house lest the sun should fade your carpets, and your hearts, lear a hearty laugh shake down some of the musty old cobwebs there! If you want to roin your sons, let them think left on the threshold without, when they come in at night. When once a home is regarded as only a place to eat, drink and sleep in the work is begon that ends in gambling houses and reckless de radation. Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere; if they do not find it at their own hearth-stones it will be sought at other and less profitable places. Therefore let the fire burn brightly at night, and make the homestead delightful with all those little arts that parents so perfectly understand. Don't repress the bouyant spirits of your children; half an hour of, merriment round the lamp and firelight of home blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day, and the best safe guard they can take with them into the world is the influence of a bright little domestic sanctum.

BOOTS, SHOES, LEATHER AND FINDINGS. DR. FRANKLIN SAYS:

"When you have anything to advertise, tell the public of it in plain, simple language."

I'am manufacturing good custom made Boots and Shoes which I will sell at fair prices, and only for READY PAY. Such work cannot be sold at as low rates per pair as eastern made slop-work, but it can and will be sold at prices which will enable the purchaser to protect his feet with good substantial boots more cheaply than with a poor slop-shop article, which, even if it chances not to fall in pieces with the first weeks service, is but a doubtful protection in
