M. H. COBB, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR. WELLSBOROUGH, PENN'A

WEDNESDAY, ::::: AUGUST 5, 1863. Republican Co. Convention, Aug. 28th

Election of Delegates, August 22d. Hon Joun J. CRITTENDEN of Kentucky

died at his residence in that State on Sunday last, aged 77 years. Mr. Crittenden was one of the landmarks of the political age of the republic, and perished nobly pleading the cause of law and order.

VALLANDIGHAM, the "glorious martyr," finds the road to gubernatorial honors a hard road to travel. The German Democratic, as well as several native papers, have taken down the candidate of the Union War party. Val. can't succeed.

WHEN Marshal KANE, of Baltimore, was arrested and lodged in Fort Lafayette, the Copperhead papers and orators put up a terrible cry against the tyranny of Mr. Lincoln. He was subsequently released on taking the oath of allegiance, and as soon thereafter as was possible, departed for rebeldom, where he now flourishes as a brigadier general,

WE commend Mr. Lincoln's reply to the Vallandigham Committee to the careful perusal of our patrons. The endorsement he invites them to give to certain pledges near the end of the letter has not yet been given. Nor will it be; for the President, incapable of political subterfuge, has made his propositions so plain that there is no room for more than one construction; and that construction requires the endorsers to be thoroughly loyal. As neither Vallandigham nor his apologizers are loyal men, they will not endorse the propositions.

Look into history: Who has enviable distinction and grateful remembrance in its page? Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Hancock, Otis, Henry, Warren, and a noble host whose names Prisoners—Sergt. R. risk attaches to profession or practice of loyalty. Rather, honor, fellowship, respect, and the approval of conscience. Then why are we brought in daily contact with fraitors? As well ask why we are daily brought in contact with knaves, liars, licentious men, and respectable villains! There are "faults" in the clearest coal-basin; why should we wonder at the recurrence of ugly dykes in political and social strata?

A man being free to choose, if he elect theft, knavery, licentiousness, or treason, as his vocapractice virtue. This fully accounts for the presence of disloyal men in every community.

But community forgets one thing-that disloyalty is the highest crime known to law, dipurse, or murder the passing traveler, or set a crimes. Remember the New York mob: It and wind had increased so much and the private houses and burned them, assassinated unoffending men, and reveled in excess. Behind this mob stood politicians, not a jot gorse, or more abandoned, or cowardly, than such as of riot and rampant crime, and inciting to outrages more terrible.

Pray, most skillful hairsplitter, which of these was most vile, the mob, or its concealed eaders?

Young man, see to it that you keep not comnany with men who have one word of apology for mob violence, or resistance to law in this time of trouble. Better herd with thieves and strike bands with assassins.

And bear in mind that a man had better go to market with a stone than with milk-andwater, when a coming generation is to purchase. Posterity will never recognize the plea of Conservatism" in this contest. It is a skulking-place for the timid and unprincipled. The conservative man, in this time, is the shirking, feeble-souled man; the man who wants the rebellion put down a little, then up a little; then put down a little more, and put up again; he is a man who doesn't like jars and shocks; he Vallandigham's name and put up Browen's, wants the rebellion put down gracefully, so as not to shock the "Confederacy."

> Friend, that man vonder-he who is endeavoring to carry water on both shoulders; and that one youder, who pats the devil on the back with one hand, and stretches the other toward Heaven-he is the Conservative Man.

Right is Right; Wrong is Wrong: What reputable man will hold that there can be two equally just, yet conflicting, opinions as respects the criminality of assassination? Not

No more can there be any material difference of opinion as respects the villainy of the man who shows his dislovalty by magnifying disasters to our arms, howling about the arrest of Vallandigham, denouncing the draft as unconstitutional, and Lincoln as a tyrant. Such fellows are traitors.

The secret of Copperheadism is this: -Unless the war can be prolonged beyond the term of the present Administration, Copperhead Democracy is a "dead cock in the pit." The knavery of the Southern wing of the Demooracy precipitated the war, and the knavery of Copperheads has prolonged it a full year.

That's what's the matter!

THE Copperhead fraternity will be rejoiced to know that Louis Napoleon has conquered Mexico, and that an Austrian prince is to be its emperor. Jeff Davis is negociating with European despots for a king to rule over Cot-

FBv. Permission. CAMP NEAR JACKSON, MISS. July 14th, 1863.

DEAR FATHER: I wrote you on the 5th inst. giving you an account of our doings up to that time; and as I have a few leisure moments I will write you again, and give you an account of our adventures up to this date. Soon after I wrote you, we moved our camp about one mile nearer the Big Black, remained all night, tion, it is because he is depreyed by nature and and at four o'clock on the afternoon of the 6th. education, and will not put forth an effort to moved down to the bank of the River and bivouacked for the night. There was considerable skirmishing at this point on the 5th. The 6th Iowa lost about twenty men killed and wounded. The bridge was completed about noon, on the 7th, and the troops commenced to cross vine or human. A traitor may not steal your immediately. We laid on the bank of the River half an hour after crossing, and then started on our march towards Jackson. About neighbor's house on fire, ordinarily; but be dask it commenced to rain and blow, but we only waits an occasion to do every one of these continued on our way. At ten o'clock the rain chesred for Jeff. Davis, cursed Lincoln, sacked roads were so bad that we could not go any farther, so we had to file off into a field and encamp. We soon had rousing fires, and coffee over them, and at eleven o'clock we kild down with no cover but our gum blankets; and part of the boys had nothing but one piece of we all meet every day stirring the helt-broth tent. Soon after we laid down it commenced raining, but we were all so tired that we never slept better in our lives. We remained in this camp until half past three on the afternoon of the 8th, when we started, but did not go more than half a mile before we halted, for the 2d Division and the Corps supply trains to pass us; and as they did not all get by that night, we laid by the side of the road all night, and early in the morning the 45th pulled up stakes and started. Marched all day, and as we were rear guard of the 9th Army Corps, did not get into camp until midnight. At daylight in the morning we drew three days rations, left our knapsacks in charge of one or two sick men. and started about noon. We came upon the enemy about three miles from Jackson. The 45th Penna. and 79th New York regiments were deployed out in an open cornfield, in front of the 1st Division. About two o'clock the word ran along the skirmish line "forward." We had not advanced more than forty rods before we were fired upon by some Rebel Cavalry in front of us; we returned the fire and kept on to the railroad without any one being hurt. When we got there we could not find any rebels, they having made themselves scarce as soon as they fired. We kept advancing and soon the right of our Regiment reached the Insane Asylum .- a splendid building, with two or three hundred lunatics confined in it. Co. A. captured one prisoner here. The 45th about this time, broke off from the 79th Regt. and kept on through the woods until about nine in the evening, when we halted directly in front of the enemy, within rifle range. A part of the Regiment was deployed out as skirmishers, and the rest held in reserve, part of the men being allowed to sleep. At early daylight on the morning of the 11th we deployed and started, but had not got over fifteen rods before we were fired upon by the enemy in their Rifle pits. We kept on under heavy fire a short distance to the top of a ridge where we halted and began to return the compliment in the shape of a few minies. We were here exposed to a severe cross fire for a short time, but the 5th Michigan, one of Kearney's old regiments, deployed out on our left and put a stop to it. We continued in this position until about ten o'clock in the forenoon, when the word ran along the line to "forward double quick." The whole line of skirmishers started forward on a dead run under a heavy fire. We kept forward until we came to a slight rise of ground affording us shelter, within a few rods of their rifle pits, where we halted and commenced "parching," as the boys call it. We remained here until our ammunition was of the 36th Mass. We then fell back to the woods behind our first position. I am sorry to announce that Corporal James Navle of Co. C. was shot through the neck and shoulder and instantly killed; and as our acting orderly Sergt. Edwin B. Carvey, ran forward to help him off, he was severely wounded in the right knee. The ball went in on the left side of the leg below the knee, passed through the under side of the knee, and came out about four inches above on the right side of the leg. Capt. William Chase was struck in the right shoulder by a minie ball; the ball struck his sardine box and tore it into twenty pieces. Had it not been for this he would have been severely wounded, his shoulder was considerably bruised as it was. Frank Stratton of Co. H. from Hollidaytown was shot through the head. Foster Hill, a sergt. of Co. F., from Clymer, was mortally wounded in the shoulder. He died this morning. Sergt. Campbell, of the same company, wounded; and 2d Lieut. Humphrey. missing; Co. B. had two men wounded, one in the knee and one in the arm. The 2d Michigan charged in among their eatables they had cooking for dinner, kicked in there, so they made tracks out as soon as possible. They lost about sixty killed and rounded: Our right and left rests on the river. We have a skirmish line directly in front of their rifle pits, and firing, both with musketry and artillery, is kept up most of the time. Gen. Welsh had command of the 1st Division of our Corps in the advance on this place, and has been highly complimented by Gen. Parker for his skill in handling his men. Our Regiment, or at least a detail of 350 men and nine officers, went out to the front at one o'clock this murning. I expect they will have some skirmishing to do before returning.

They are out for forty eight-hours.

I forgot to mention that Cook Wilkinson of Co. I. was sun-struck on the charge. He is nearly well now.

Foraging is A. No 1 in this country. JOHN B. ENERY.

Sergt. FRANK BAILEY, writes his mother under date of July 27, from camp near Warren-

"We have passed through great hardships since I last wrote. The Rebs. got possession of Manageas Gap, and we were sent off about Morgan and his officers, capfured last week | 30 miles from our supplies to drive them out, in Ohio, has been lodged in the Penitentiary at carrying but a day's rations. They fled on our Columbus, Ohio. They are held as heatages for Col. Stright and his officers, now in close took possession of the Gap. But we had to confinement in a rabel prison in Alabama. took possession of the Gap. But we had to make our one day's rations last about ross days, daving which time we suffered all the pange of hunger imaginable, I was about to say, but it was not quite so bad as that. Let it suffice to say that, for one, I never wish to get so hungry again. In the 33 days since we left Fairfax Station we have marched 32 days, at an average of 12 miles a day. Our biggest day's march was 26 miles. We marched 20 miles yesterday, with nothing to eat but a little piece of pork, without salt, toasted on a stick before the fire. We boys killed a pig the night before, or we should have had nothing. Thank fortune, I am in good health, else I would have been under the sod.

"I haven't seen a newspaper for nearly two weeks, and don't know what's going on in the civilized portion of the United States. We got rations to-day, and I have eaten enough to astonish you. We shall march to-night or in the morning.'

From Captain Cole's Company.

IN CAMP NEAR LOUDON; PA., } July 28, 1863.

FRIEND COBB :- Since last writing, we have had more marching to do. Early Monday morning we received orders to pack up our "duds" and march with three days' rations. It was the inquiry of all-". Where to?" Some thought we were on the, by many, long-wished for march to Harrisburg, to be mustered out of the service, in accordance with Gov. Curtin's speech to our (35th) regiment at Greencastle, in which he assured us that he would send us to our homes as soon as the people down here were satisfied that there was no more danger of a rebel raid. After marching five miles it leaked out that we were going to Loudon, 14 miles from Greencastle.

At two o'clock we halted for dinner, the or der giving us much satisfaction. Seven miles through the mud and rain rendered us as tired and hungry a set of fellows as rain ever fell upon. Our Colonel gave us an hour to eat and get ready to go on. Shortly news came that a force of 2500 rebels was approaching; but it turned out to be a canard set afoot by the telegraph operator at McConnelsburg, who, I leared to-day, while in that town, has been arrested and sent to Harrisburg.

An unfortunate occurrence happened in town to-day. Two men from Philadelphia were riding along in a carriage, when they were stopped by a citizen living about a mile from town, who informed them that they would have to get passes, and so insulted them in many ways that they had a squad of cavalry sent to arrest him. He mounted a horse, and when the cavalry came up, he seized the sergeant's saber and threatened to kill him. He then rode off, and the guard pursued. They shortly over took him, and after a brief encounter in which he got half-a-dozen saber cuts about the head, took him into custody. His recovery is doubtful. He was rather under the influence of liquor at the time.

The night we arrived here we encamped in a field. Some put up their tents, while others, myself among them, preferred to sleep in the open air. In the morning we selected a better camping-ground, half a mile distant. Heretofore we have been camped in the open field. We have new a shady and delightful spot.

To-night a package of Agitators arrived in camp, and the man who brought them sang out-"Who wants 'taters?" As we had had no sight of that delightful vegetable since we left Tioga, we all concluded to draw a few. When the joke came out there was a rush for the papers, and the news was devoured greedily. The Agitaton is more sought after than any other paper that comes into camp. ...

Our Regiment was very lucky in getting Hugh Young for Quartermaster. He is bound that the Tioga county boys shall not starve.
